DESPITE DISARMAMENT TALK MARATHON

World Gun Laws Still Pretty Lax

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

GENEVA (AP)—The world's off-again, on-again effort to negotiate lasting disarmament has gone into another recess.

As the 286th meeting of the current session closed, the problems of war and peace seemed basically unchanged.

Mildly optimistic statements—customary in most Geneva negotiations—have not dispelled the grim reality: East and West continue to pile up arms, the war clouds over Southeast Asia are as dark as ever, the smaller powers of the "third world" go on flexing their muscles.

Yet it may not be all grim as long as the principal opponents are expressing the desire to meet again and talk about their differences.

Defenders of the conference point out that despite its failure to obtain large - scale, concrete, achievements, it is perhaps the only hope in the tense world of atomic menace.

Conference participants note that two international pacts originated in recent years in this Swiss city: The 1963 Moscow treaty limiting atomic tests and the subsequent U.S.-Soviet agreement to cut the production of fissionable materials.

Seventeen nations — ranging from the Soviet Union, Britain, the United States and Canada to Ethiopia and Burma—have thrown a considerable amount of effort and prestige behind the talks.

This session ended Thursday in more promises to meet again next year, as usual with routine statements of "guarded optimism" and "sincere hope for success."

The session began in January on an optimistic note, with fervent wishes by President Johnson and Pope Paul for peace. Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin echoed these wishes afterward.

But the main issues soon became obscured in technical proposals disputing individual paragraphs, and the round of cocktail parties at which diplomats earnestly discussed amendments that perhaps would make their own amendments more acceptable to others.

Solid SC Wall Cracking?

By JOHN MIKA

DAWSON CREEK—Cracks have begun showing in the "solid Socred" Peace River country.

And despite the massive patching-up job here Friday night, they could widen into a serious split of the Social Credit vote on election day.

The internal conflicts may not prove enough to strip the north and south Peace River constituencies from the Socred slate Sept. 12 but the irony of the threat added to wisps of tenseness that floated periodically through Premier Bennett's campaign train.

He was to cut the ribbon later today opening the Prince George Pulp and Paper's $84 million mill at Prince George and undoubtedly would find the gala ceremony a boost to his campaign.

BAD LUCK

But for the past two days bad luck has hung over the premier's entourage like the heavy overcast that wiped out his sunny start of the tour with drizzle ever since he entered the party's stronghold in the north:

Rain splattered the streets and dampened the parade preceeding both meetings here and in Fort St. John;

A widely-publicized half-hour interview on the local television station was almost incomprehensible due to transmission difficulties and finally had to be cut off as the station went off the air.

Premier Bennett delivered a lacklustre speech here to a friendly crowd, then sent some shocks through the audience in the final moments with testy answers to troublesome questions.

And even an emergency stop for half-an-hour marred his departure southward when two

STRACHAN CHARGES:

'East Businesses Call Tune in B.C.'

By AB KENT

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan Friday said he had to go to Britain to see democracy in action and now is ready to fight to throw Social Credit out of office.

Speaking to a crowd of 160 persons at Victoria High School the New Democratic Party leader rejected an accusation by Attorney-General Robert Bonner that his summer trip to the U.K. was "to learn how to freeze wages."

"I went to Britain to see how democracy should work and I came back to British Columbia to fight to make it work," Mr. Strachan said.

He was "fed to the teeth with the ruthless, arrogant undemocratic" manner of the B.C. government, he said.

BIG BUSINESS

The government's election call for Sept. 12 was at the behest of "eastern big business," Mr. Strachan charged.

"Any time big business in the east calls an election in B.C. it's time the government which heels to the request was tossed out."

The request was because business "wants a bigger slice of the pie," the opposition leader said.

Premier Bennett's "smooth, slippery government hopes to slip quietly into office Sept. 12 merely for the sake of slipping into office and perperpetuating the regime," Mr. Strachan told the audience.

REDISTRIBUTION BIGGER

The premier had already "rigged the redistribution of seats in the legislature" and then succeeded in having the old voters" list adopted due to shortness of time offered for registration, the NDP leader said.

Mr. Bennett also "as usual didn't understand" eastern concern for provincial stability.

Mr. Strachan said it wasn't

Rails, Unions Await Action By Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — All eyes are on Parliament today as 118,000 railway workers entered the second day of their far-reaching national strike.

Last-ditch negotiations collapsed in Ottawa as the walkout began Friday. Both the railways and the unions are waiting to see government legislation on transportation before resuming hard bargaining.

Parliament opens emergency sittings at 2:30 p.m. EDT (11:30 a.m. PDT) Monday to deal with the crisis. The government plans to introduce two major transportation bills Monday.

The first measure would order the strikers back to work and grant them an 18-per-cent wage increase over the next two years, informants say.

The 17 rail unions involved in the massive tieup are seeking wage boosts averaging 30 per cent. Some labor leaders warn privately that the strikers would ignore return-to-work legislation embodying an 18-per-cent increase.

REVAMP RAIL ACT

The second bill would revamp the Railway Act and relate statutes along the lines recommended in 1961 by a royal commission on transportation.

The commission recommended that railways be freed to set freight rates at competitive levels, drop money-losing branch lines and passenger services and generally operate without close federal regulation.

Prime Minister Pearson has said that this second bill is comprehensive, running to 150 pages, and that it will improve the railways' earnings position.

This led Opposition Leader Diefenbaker to comment Friday that a removal of freight rate regulation would hurt shippers, especially in the Maritime and Prairie provinces.

He told a press conference that if the new transportation bill is similar to one introduced in 1964, it will lead to higher shipping costs in the Maritimes and Prairies.

WOULD FIGHT MOVE

He warned that any attempt to abolish the low Crowsnest Pass freight rates on wheat exports would be fought all the way by the Conservative opposition. These rates were set in the 1920s to protect wheat farmers and have remained unchanged ever since.

All freight rates have been frozen since 1959 when the Diefenbaker government blocked a transport board decision to increase them by 17 per cent. The railways have been compensated by special federal subsidies, which total about $100,000,000 in the current fiscal year.

Union and railway negotiators met for 4½ hours here Friday, then adjourned their talks until after the transportation bills are introduced Monday.

Labor Minister Nicholson told reporters he still hopes the negotiators can reach an agreement before Parliament has to impose one, but the outlook was gloomy. Some union leaders talked about a strike lasting at least 10 days.

Mr. Pearson, Mr. Diefenbaker and railway executives all have predicted that the strike will have disastrous effects on the economy.

In Toronto, The Telegram quotes NDP member Arnold Peters as warning he will refuse unanimous consent for the government to bring in strike-ending legislation Monday unless it also initiates a war on inflation and the cost of living.

The story quotes Mr. Peters as saying: "I'm not interested in telling the men to go back to work unless we have guarantees that the wage increase is going to suffice in this period of inflation."

TIEUP EFFECTS ALREADY FELT

By UPI

Fifty thousand miles of railway track lay rusting and unused across Canada today as a nationwide strike began to choke off the country's economic lifeline.

With the walkout of 118,000 railroaders in only its second day, effects of the strike were already beginning to seep through the economy and to touch remote areas.

The Alberta government may have to airlift supplies into remote communities 250-to-400 air miles north of Edmonton, where some 500 persons face food shortages if the strike lasts more than five to seven days.

The communities, strung along a north-bound railway that angles toward The Northwest Territories, have no telegraph communication, few telephones, and no medical facilities.

A scheduled food delivery missed the last train out of Lac Labiche, Alta., before the strike began at noon Friday.

In the Maritimes, the province of Prince Edward Island was linked to the mainland by two tiny privately-owned ferries, but a proposal to have the federal coast guard take over ferry service was temporarily shelved.

"The Prince Edward Island government is reluctant to act as a strike breaker," Premier Alex Campbell said.

Railway employees who normally man the island's ferry service were described

Pickets Barricade Nfld. Ferry Terminal

HALIFAX (CP) — An estimated 500 strikers lifted their roadblock at the CNR ferry terminal in Port auz Basques, Nfld., at 11:15 a.m. ADT today and permitted more than 200 passengers in 71 vehicles to leave the wharf where they had been confined since the William Carson docked at 6:30 a.m.

John Ford, assistant port superintendent at the western Newfoundland terminal, said the strikers immediately reformed their picket lines and reconstructed a barrier of railway ties to prevent more than 50 cars from entering the terminal area.

There was no indication why the union members decided to lift the barricade. A spokesman said earlier no passengers, except those on foot, would be permittted to leave the wharf until the strikers received a guarantee the 8,200-ton William Carson would discontinue her service between Port aux Basques and North Sydney, N.S., for the duration of the country-wide rail strike.

'30% Wage Boost Is Sacred Figure'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Spokesmen for the two largest unions involved in Canada's country-wide railway strike say their members are in no mood to accept an 18-per-cent wage increase expected to be imposed by Parliament.

John McNicol, British Columbia strike committee secretary for the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, said the strikers view their demand for a 30-per-cent wage increase as a "sacred figure" that they will not go below.

William Apps, provincial strike leader for the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers, said in a Friday night interview:

"I am very concerned with the feeling of our membership. The members are aroused and frustrated. They are in no mood to accept an 18 per cent increase — even if it is imposed by what amounts to compulsory arbitration."

"If a settlement is considerably less than our members expect, then they (parliament) are going to have problems," Mr. Apps said.

SOLO SAILOR, 65, STARTS WORLD TRIP

PLYMOUTH, England (AP)—Francis Chichester, 65 next month and three times solo conqueror of the Atlantic, sailed today on his greatest adventure—to circle the world in 200 days.

Cheering crowds waved him goodbye from Plymouth Hoe—the green headland where Sir Francis Drake is reputed to have played a last game of bowls before defeating the Spanish Armada.

Chichester hoisted full sail in his gleaming white 53-foot ketch Gypsy Moth IV and headed out to sea.

This time Chichester has set himself the formidable task of navigating non-stop to Australia, then back again via Cape Horn — by far the longest voyage of its type ever attempted by one man.

Hurricane Escapes Bop in the Eye

MIAMI (AP) — A history-making attempt to tame the fury of hurricane Faith was cancelled today as the storm lumbered toward the south-eastern Bahamas.

The storm churned toward the west-northwest on a path parallel — but 150 miles south — of a whale-shaped area where scientists had hoped to bomb her eye with silver iodide to prove that man can conquer one of nature's mightiest forces.

The seeding plans were called off because the storm was too close to land.

However, officials of Project Stormfury said the plans would be reactivated if Faith were to make a dramatic turn to the northeast. But this, a forecaster, said, "was only the slightest of possibilities."

Hundreds of scientists and technicians and a fleet of planes had stood by all week waiting for their first chance in three years to test their theory that heat and moisture can be artificially drawn from hurricanes, wrecking their structure.

Hurricane Faith, not as strong as once feared, spun north of Puerto Rico, leaving little more than high tides and occasional gales in her wake.

Near Anarchy

TOKYO (UPI) — The teenage "Red Guard" movement sweeping China is out of hand and Peking is in a state of near anarchy, reliable Japanese reports said late today.

Nine of the youthful zealots were reported shot and killed by citizens trying to end their rampage.

BANDITS HOLD FAMILY AT GUNPOINT

'He Was a Very Nice Man'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three robbers used a San Francisco family's home as a hideout Friday and held six persons at gunpoint for 21 hours, police said.

The trio left all their captives unharmed when the three slipped away from the home late Friday night.

The gunmen permitted the Dennis Clements family to come and go individually but warned that those left behind would be "wiped out" if police were called.

Three of the Clements children, ranging in ages from nine to 18, were even allowed to attend Bible school and go shopping. Clements, 50, joined a neighbor for a beer in a nearby tavern in the afternoon.

"He was a very nice man," said 17-year-old Lily Clements of the leader. Clements said that as the last of the gunmen disappeared, "we shook hands, and he said to me: 'You're a good man.'" Clements then called police.

As patrol cars cruised by the house, unaware it had been invaded, the men divided up — before the family's eyes — some $500 taken in a drug store robbery.

Police said one gunman entered through a bathroom window, then let his two companions in the front door.

Mister Bennett's fightin' this election as if it wuz his first one—'stead o' prob'ly his last.

Ex-Bride Broken Up By Pre-Wedding Fray

The night before his wedding Ross Lashin was literally torn between his family and the family of the bride.

It happened when the two families got together June 24 to discuss what was to have been the wedding the next day, Nanaimo Magistrate's court was told last week.

The story of the star-crossed lovers was aired during the trial of Leslie Phillips, one of two persons charged with assault as a result of the fray.

The lovers, Ross and Norma Phillips, mother of Leslie, planned the wedding recently after more than a year of courting.

"He always told me nothing could ever break us apart, "Norma said today.

But when the families met the groom's parents, a brother, an uncle and an aunt did exactly that.

Court was told the Lashin family grabbed Ross and tried to get him to leave house.

His bride-to-be grabbed his arm and tried to hold him.

Blows were then exchanged between Ross's father and Lislie Phillips, a son by a previous marriage of the bride-to-be.

Robert Lashin, a brother of Ross, testified that Leslie pushed his mother down and his father tried to stop the pushing when the fight started.

In the tussel the bride-to-be's arm was broken and Ross was carried off by his family.

"I haven't seen him since, except in court," said Norma. "But as far as I'm concerned you couldn't find a better man."

The assault charge against Leslie was dismissed but more of the story may be told when Lashin's uncle, Peter Rohachuk of Vancouver, appears in court on a similar charge Sept. 1.

. . . WALL CRACKING?

boxcars of the train pulling his private coach accidentally unhitched.

But the unlucky breaks did not compare with the signs of internal stresses created by recent dumping of the incumbent MLAs in the two Peace River constituencies in favor of younger and untried men.

At Fort St. John, Jacob Huhn, a Roman Catholic and a farmer who held North Peace riding for the Socreds two terms and was dumped last week in a nomination meeting that produced considerable muttering among farmers, is considering running as an independent.

"I haven't made up my mind yet," he told The Times when asked if he would. "I will decide by Saturday night."

BOYCOTTED RALLY

He boycotted Premier Bennett's opening rally in the north Thursday night in his hometown although a chair was reserved for him on the platform. It was obvious party officials were embarrassed.

He won the last election with 2,310 votes to 603 for the Liberal runner-up and some of that was a personal following that might desert the official Socred nominee Edward Smith if Mr. Huhn runs against him.

The Liberals, sniffing the first zephyrs of a possible change, turned out in their largest numbers ever, 65, to choose between two men before selecting car salesman Leith Boulter as their candidate.

In Dawson Creek, Premier Bennett, Resources Minister Ray Williston, and Stanley Carnell, who was dumped after serving 10 years as Socred MLA for South Peace, made valiant efforts to mollify the obviously ruffled feelings of Mr. Carnell's supporters who accuse Donald Phillips of packing the nominations meeting to grab the party's nod as candidate.

BITTERNESS

But their effusiveness only spotlighted how serious the bitterness is.

Mr. Carnell, who was chairman of the meeting attended by about 450 in Notre Dame Separate School here, denied NDP leader Robert Strachan's allegation he was dumped because he criticized the government. But he did it in a strange way.

"After 10 years in the ranks of the Social Credit I say there are no rebels in the Social Credit movement," he said.

"We now have two outstanding men, two outstanding businessmen here. Mr. Phillips is a fine man with tremendous drive, a tremendous organizer and a tremendous businessman."

"The biggest business of all in B.C. is the government and we need good businessmen in our legislature."

But Mr. Phillips is running into surprisingly stiff competition from the Liberals who were able to muster only 825 votes against the 3,365 garnered by Mr. Carnell in 1963.

His opponent has the same name, Ald. Daphne Phillips. She has led the civic poll through most of the nine years she has been on council and was named the town's 'Citizen of the Year' in 1965.

"At the last session in the legislature I criticized the immense increases in farm taxes.

"But when a member defends the right of the people he represents, I do not consider that the action of a rebel."

STRANGE STATEMENT

Mr. Williston also made a strange statement in praising Mr. Carnell's contribution as an "industrious and conscientious MLA."

He said few people understand the strains on health that occur in long public service.

"I'm sure that this load partially affected his health during his course of office.

"It was a heavy load and the decision was that it should be shared by a younger man," said Mr. Williston.

"This decision was accepted by the people and Stan Carnell has accepted that."

Finally, Premier Bennett — with emotion choking his voice — paid tribute to Mr. Carnell's long service to his riding.

Reports are that her campaign slogan "Choose the right Phillips" — helped by the heavy Socred advertising for Mr. Phillips — is having a considerable impact among disgruntled Socreds as well as other voters.

Premier Bennett's only new announcement during his speech here was a dud.

NO HANDCLAPS

He failed to get a single handclap during his obvious pause for applause after telling the audience the government would provide $20,000 for clearing a recent washout in one of the back-country's side roads.

Although he had no hecklers at the meeting, the only two persons to rise during a brief question period scored heavily on sensitive subjects for this homesteading region and his abrupt replies brought a few gasps.

"If the revenues are pouring in so much to your dynamic government, why was it necessary to raise the taxes 700 per cent on my farm?" a man asked quietly.

'TOO LOW BEFORE'

"I guess they were too low before," said Mr. Bennett.

The answer brought an immediate rustle of whispering and another man at the back of the hall jumped up to say he wanted to hear it again.

"I said the assessment is too low," Mr. Bennett answered testily. "And if it is too high I'll buy the farm."

as "explosively hostile" to an order from their national union leaders that they return to their jobs.

The order, from Canadian Brotherhood and Railway Trainmen president William Smith, will be "explained" at a mass meeting on the island Monday.

Premier Campbell was understood to have pledged to union leaders that no action would be taken to bring in the coast guard until the meeting was held.

"It would be premature, if not dangerous to take any precipitate action at this point," Campbell said.

Premier Campbell said the two Wood Island ferries — privately owned but operating with subsidies from the provincial and federal governments—were able to handle the flow of tourists and cargo to the island for the time being.

But he warned that the situation could become desperate when the island farmers began to move their potatoes, the island's mainstay, to market in about two weeks.

Campbell did not rule out the coast guard if the situation worsened.

As the strike paralysis took hold, a special "strike committee" of eight federal cabinet ministers continued work on draft legislation to bring the strike to the earliest possible end.

A spolesmand for Prime Minister Pearson said he was in "constant contact" with the ministerial strike committee in Ottawa.

The Air Transport Board authorized both Canadian Pacific Airlines and BOAC to carry traffic on the domestic legs of their international services, as a temporary strike measure.

BOC was authorized to carry passengers in both directions between Montreal and Toronto, and CPA to carry passengers in both directions between Calgary and Vancouver and Edmonton and Vancouver.

CPA also was authorized to operate extra sections between Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal, subject to the availability of CPA equipment.

I CONVERTED RUSSIA, SAYS BENNETT

Premier Bennett, who said Thursday night the Soviet Union is turning more and more to free enterprise, said Friday night that British Columbia could claim some credit for the change.

Mr. Bennett, speaking at a campaign meeting at Dawson Creek, in the Peace River country, mentioned the recent visit of Soviet parliamentarians, headed by deputy premier Dimitri Polyansky. He said the Russians had asked for, and been given, information on the province's finances.

"You notice," he said, "since then they have been moving faster and faster toward free enterprise."

. . . STRACHAN

political stability they were referring to. "They were talking about financial stability.

"You don't provide financial stability by calling an election and the only way you can prove the financial stability of a province is to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth . . . then the people will have some faith in the minister of finance.

"The only way you can get stability is to elect a government that will bring truth to the people," Mr. Strachan said.

INSULTING

He said it was insulting to the intelligence of British Columbians for the premier to say he didn't know what Columbia hydro project dams would cost.

"The premier has now become so arrogant that he feels no matter what he tells the people they will believe him . . .

"There is far too much hocus pocus in the handling of the affairs of the people," the leader said.

Citizens should not be "treated like children" in matters like public debt.

In the legislature "year after year there is utter nonsense about contingent liabilities and no debts."

But year after year the opposition is thwarted in its attempt to get answers to questions about debt and government spending, he said.

FIGURES HIDDEN

Figures do not appear in budgets or in public accounts and questions in the House and on the legislative order papers go unheeded, Mr. Strachan said.

"They are not only not accountable to the people, they are not accountable to the representatives of the people elected by the people," Mr. Strachan protested.

He said he had been asked recently why the opposition allowed Highways Minister Gaglardi "to squander $600,000 on a new jet" after he had already spent $200,000 converting another aircraft to jet.

"I had to explain the opposition had nothing whatever to do with it," Mr. Strachan said.

NOT IDENTIFIED

He pointed out that aircraft are mentioned nowhere in the public accounts, nor are the highways department fliers identified as pilots.

"All he needs is an order from the treasury board and he goes happily down to the store like a boy with a nickel for candy, but it isn't for candy, it's not a nickel and it's not his money," the speaker said.

An NDP government promises "change, change and more change," the party leader said. "Things have got to be done."

Part of the change would be cheaper telephone rates and gasoline in B.C., government auto insurance, and expropriation of private hospitals for chronic care under B.C. Hospital Insurance Service to "stop the profiteering."

Socreds to Increase Funds for Hospitals

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

SKILLINGS

More money for education, hospitals and social welfare were promised Friday night by Works Minister W. N. Chant and Waldo Skillings, the Social Credit candidates for Victoria.

Opening their campaign in the Spt. 12 election, Mr. Chant and Mr. Skillings said British Columbia would continue to grow and prosper under Premier Bennett's government.

The were addressing a meeting of 160 in Social Credit headquarters at 722 Yates Street, organized by ex-MLA J. Donald Smith, and chaired by Hugh Ramsay, president.

Mr. Chant said British Columbia's spectacular progress in recent years was due to the wiping out of the net provincial debt in 1960.

"When we came to power in 1952, the provincial debt was in excess of $220,000,000," Mr. Chant said. "When we said we would wipe out that debt, it was called a dream — a gag.

"But by 1960 we didn't owe a nickel on the net debt — and that is the basis of our expansion in so many fields. If we hadn't wiped out the debt, this province would be $200,000,000 short on its current provincial budget today."

He spoke of "the dead hand of Socialism" in Great Britain and other countries, and said the New Democratic Party would "chase investment out of this province."

Answering criticisms that the Social Credit party did not spend enough on education and social welfare, Mr. Chant said the government is spending 31 per cent of its total budget on education and 33 per cent on social services.

HYDRO POTENTIAL

Pointing to the Peace and Columbia River power developments, Mr. Chant said B.C. now has a hydro potential of 120,000,000 horsepower.

He predicted the industrial dollar value of the province would exceed that of Ontario in the years ahead, and said the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway would eventually carry more tons per mile than the trans-continental railways.

Mr. Skillings said the government would do all possible to improve hospital facilities throughout the province.

"Everyone is concerned because there are not enough beds. We shall go all out to solve this problem and to provide for chronic care patients."

Mr. Skillings said the government's new home-purchase grant should not be confused with the home-owner tax rebate.

Under the home-purchase grant, couples or single persons of 19 years of age and over would receive $500 towards a down-payment on a house, and this grant would be increased $25 every year.

A student in the audience asked Mr. Skillings what the government planned to encourage higher education.

"We believe in rewarding ability and industry," Mr. Skillings said, "but you (the students) must play your part as well. The world does not owe you a living and you have no right to demand a college education unless you are willing to work for it."

NDP HOPEFULS SPEAK OUT

Auto Insurance 'Issue of Day'

YARWOOD
. . . people first

With support from provincial NDP leader Robert Strachan, candidates for Victoria, Saanich and the Islands, Oak Bay and Esquimalt gave the principle planks in the Sept. 12 election platforms.

In their order of appearance:

Edwin Haw, Saanich the Islands — Auto insurance is the "burning issure of the day. Everyone knows they are paying through the nose for insurance for the protection of his car."

Farmers need agricultural support in marketting and improvement of livestock herds, he said.

And action is needed to improve Patricia Bay Highway. "Only by the grace of God are there not more serious accidents on that cattle trail leading to Victoria," he said.

Mira Yarwood, Oak Bay — "People first" must be the slogan of the NDP because the mood of the people cannot be postponed to suit the government.

Motherhood, widowhood and student needs cannot be postponed, nor can mental health care, child day care and vocational school needs, she said.

The Social Credit government is lacking "any sincerity of commitment or any real will to come to grips with these problems," on which the NDP would place priority.

John Bartanus, Esquimalt — Cited previous Social Credit election theme, to save the free enterprise system from socialism.

But Premier Bennett had socialized ferries, hydro and medicare, he said. "His reason for calling the election is that he's looking for direction from the NDP.

"Even the financiers from New York say they can't trust him."

The candidate referred to Socred incumbent for Esquimalt Herbert Bruch, who has asked for a vote of confidence for another seven years. "He wants another seven years of doing nothing," Bartanus said.

He complained that Bruch spends only a few months a year at home, the rest of the time organizing for the party in western Canada.

Dorcas Blair, Victoria — Careful husbanding of provincial resources is needed, not give-aways to "those who make the fast buck."

Resources belong to all the people and B.C. needs people who plan intelligently and not spend frivolously.

"The NDP is the planning party," she said.

Harry Allen, Victoria — It is time for the "straight socialism of the NDP" rather than the "twisted socialism of Socail Credit."

He referred to assurances by Premier Bennett in 1961 that he would not take over B.C. Electric, who did just that a few months later.

The candidate cited a similar statement by the premier this week that B.C. Telephone Co. is free from government expropriation.

"One begins to wonder if he is preparing us for another piece of doubletalk."

NDP would introduce a 15-year development program on B.C. aimed at protection of agricultural lands from "being overrun by suburban spread," measures against pollution, and much more reforestation, he said.

Liberals, S.C. Plan Full Slate Of Area Meets

A full slate of meetings in the provincial election campaign has been lined up by Victoria Liberals, the last one just two days before voting day Sept. 12.

Candidates Frank Preston and John Porteous will speak jointly at three meetings — Sept. 2, 3 and 10 — but individually at the others.

Mr. Preston attends meetings at the Optimist hall Monday night, the Art Gallery Wednesday, Tillicum School Friday, Quadra School Sept. 7 and Burnside School Sept. 9.

Mr. Porteous will be at George Jay School Tuesday, Oaklands School hall Thursday, Sir James Douglas School Sept. 6 and Tolmie School Sept. 8.

Both men will be at 2022 Douglas Street headquarters Saturday, and on Sept. 10, and both will be at an all-candidates meeting at University of Victoria Friday.

AT FALL FAIR

Socred incumbent John Tisdalle running in the new constituency of Saanich and the Islands spends part of next week on the Gulf Islands following a visit to Pender Island fall fair today.

Monday he will be at Galiano Island, returning to Vancouver Island Tuesday.

Wednesday night the candidate will appear with Trade Minister Ralph Loffmark at a meeting in Royal Oak Womens' Institute hall at 8 p.m.

TO MAYNE ISLAND

Thursday Mr. Tisdalle returns to the Gulf to address constituents on Mayne Island.

Saturday and Sunday he will campaign at Saanichton fair, where Socreds will have a tent.

Sept. 7 he will be speaking at Brentwood Women's Institute hall and next day goes to Salt Spring Island.

Mr. Tisdalle will conclude his campaign at Sanscha hall, Sidney, on Sept. 9.

'Throwing Liberal To Wolves'

PORT ALBERNI — A prominent Liberal told a nominating convention this week that it would be wise for his party to forget a candidate here because "Liberals in the Albernis have no hope in hell of ever being elected here."

Loran Jordan, former Port Alberni mayor and a Liberal condidate in the last federal election, said they should make the Port Alberni election battle a two-way fight between Socred Dr. H. R. McDairmid and MLA of the last house, the NDP's John Squire.

Despite Jordan's stand, the party convention nominated George McLean as candidate for the Alberni constituency.

"It's a damn shame," said Jordan, "to throw this man to the wolves."

Grits Would Boost Education Support

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Liberal Leader Ray Perrault said Friday his party aims to provide high-level education in every community in British Columbia.

Speaking at a luncheon in support of Kamloops Liberal candidate Nick Kalyk, Mr. Perrault said the Social Credit government repeatedly refused to pay travel and living expenses for students travelling to institutes of higher learning.

He said his party would provide an educational television network throughout the province, emphasize post-high school education, enlarge the student bursary program, and establish a hold-the-line policy on fees.

He likened Premier Bennett to "an old miser with gold coins clinking through his fingers while we can't find enough to care for the chronically ill."

Parliament's Real Job

THERE IS WHAT IS DEscribed as a "spark of hope" that a settlement of the railway dispute may be possible next Monday after the railway managements have learned what the prospective government legislation may do to improve their financial position. But whether the strike is settled or not, the country must face higher costs and heavier pressure on the inflation spiral.

If the strike continues, the inevitable losses will accumulate: lost wages, stalled import and export business, unemployment in industries dependent on rail traffic, and other sorry evidence of our inability as yet to operate a complex industrial society.

If changes in the railway legislation open the way to higher freight rates, thus permitting higher wages, the effects of both increases will be felt in higher costs to the users of products carried on railways and a general move upward in the costs of living.

In either case we shall have taken one further step along the road to higher costs, a less valuable dollar, and further deterioration of all savings, pensions, insurance policies and fixed incomes. We face the same problem that confronts the United States and Britain, to name the two countries most closely associated with us. Higher costs of living lead to demands for higher wages which are one of the powerful factors in the equation. Greater consumer purchasing power leads to higher prices — and the spiral has made another turn.

The railway settlement, because of its dollar importance to Canada and its country-wide impact, may be a major milestone in our inflationary journey. The settlements of the Quebec dock strike and the Seaway workers' demands set new high peaks in such agreements. The big question is whether the rail settlement will confirm the wage pace set by these government-guided decisions, or achieve a less acute angle of increase — perhaps even a plateau. At the moment a conservative decision does not appear likely: the railway dispute is clearly going to add to Canada's economic and financial woes.

The federal government is thus challenged on much more than the railway issue. The whole problem of inflation is rapidly attaining a critical point and the control measures tentatively introduced in the last federal budget are obviously not sufficient to handle the situation.

Parliament is meeting next Monday ostensibly to cope with the crisis precipitated by the rail strike. That is serious enough, but it is only one facet of a much larger problem, and it is that problem which should engage the immediate attention of Parliament. Basically, there is too much pressure on the economy from spending — private, corporate and government. This pressure must force prices up. Canada is not alone in this situation, of course. We cannot escape involvement in world inflationary forces, particularly those evident in the United States. But we can take steps to minimize the serious effects of rampant inflation, and experience shows that calls for voluntary co-operation on the part of the public will not be enough.

A Need for More Research

BRITISH COLUMBIANS HAVE been given the traffic fatality statistics for June, showing an increase of 18 per cent over the same month last year; and the more dismaying figures for the half year: 21 per cent more than the first half of 1965.

Each represents an increase far above what might have been expected on the basis of the larger number of cars on the roads. The statistics not only emphasize the fact that no progress is being made in the battle against this major civilian killer, but that we do not yet know enough about the causes of traffic fatalities to arrive at a satisfactory treatment.

Enough evidence has been collected to show that speed and impairment through liquor are important factors, but more research will be required before a cure can be prescribed.

In the meantime British Columbia is carrying on its campaign for safer driving by continuing its driver examination program, encouraging high school driving instruction, intensifying efforts to keep irresponsible persons from driving, and by extending enforcement on the highway.

The construction of safer cars — an engineering project that will be operative within the next few years — should help to reduce the seriousness of accidents in many cases. But it will be of limited effect in preventing the mishaps in the first instance.

Some gains have been made this year in highway fatalities involving motorcyclists — an improvement which authorities attribute largely to expanded control legislation last year.

There seems to be, however, a need for much more research and much broader enforcement of driving laws on the road.

Breach in Apartheid

WHITE SELF - INTEREST HAS brought an interesting change in one apartheid convention in South Africa.

That country finds that it has insufficient engineers of the approved pigmentation to meet current needs. Hence the decision of the Department of Bantu Education to admit non-whites into engineering courses at white universities. This is reportedly a temporary measure only, until an adequate number of white engineers can be trained.

At the same time it provides an opportunity for the non-whites to prove their abilities and to secure a type of training superior to that provided for them in tribal colleges where facilities are not available for work beyond the artisan stage.

With rapid industrial expansion South Africa's government finds it impracticable to limit skilled work to the white minority and expediency dictates a liberalizing trend. Now the Negroes can prove false the concept that the black man has not the intelligence to cope with advanced technical tasks.

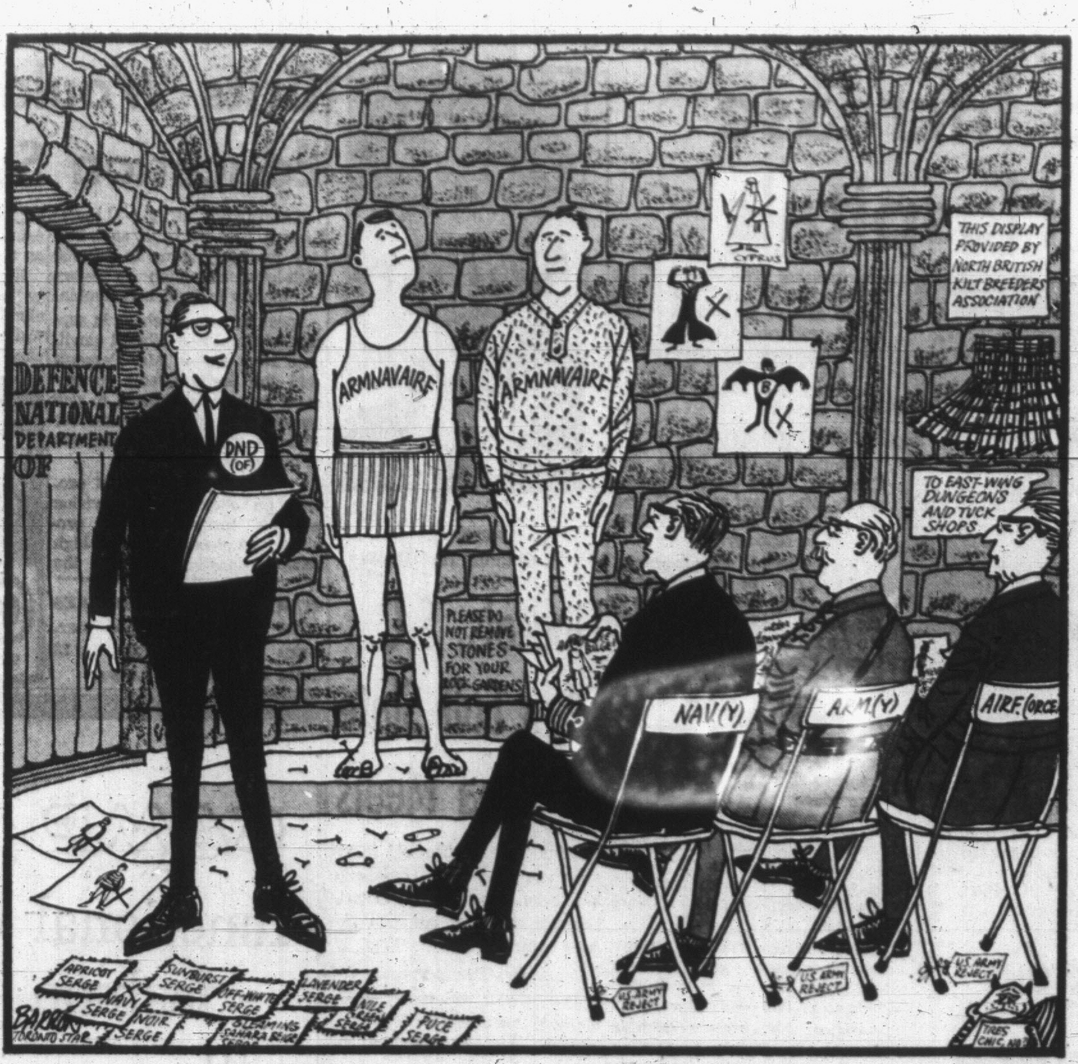
A Product of the Thaw?

LIEUT. V. SERGA, A YOUNG Red army officer of apparent sensitivity, has complained that Russian military schools neglect art, literature and the social graces in training their students. They may be turning out officers, but not gentlemen.

This might be dismissed merely as the musing of a young romantic who has seen too many operettas. It was, nevertheless, considered sufficiently important by Red Star, the defence ministry's newspaper, to justify publication.

Perhaps here is another small straw indicating the way the wind is blowing in the U.S.S.R. At one time it seemed sufficient for the Soviets to train fighting men. Their job was to defend Russian interests and Russian soil in the event of attack — and the apprehension on that score was over-riding.

Now, apparently, something more seems essential in the life of a young man dedicated to and trained for the Red Army. Conceivably the persistent political thaw is melting away the fear and a Soviet soldier can devote thought to something other than proficiency in the trades of war.



"... well gentlemen, so far so good ... we're agreed on a basic summer and winter UNDERWEAR design ... now shall we get on with the ... uh ... uniform. . . ?"

Facing a Mass of Work Left Undone

IN the atmosphere of unreality which has lately gripped the national capital, there is apparently serious talk in cabinet circles about a 10-day meeting of Parliament to be followed by another adjournment until some time in October. The argument is based, quite simply, on considerations of housekeeping. Preparations are going forward for meetings of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association and the western hemispheric regional organization of the ILO. As both will be large gatherings the vexing problem arises of finding space on the Hill to accommodate simultaneous sessions of members and distinguished visitors. Another adjournment, which means a reversion to the parliamentary time-table of last July, appears the easiest solution.

Western

But as the rail strike has rudely reminded the country, easy solutions not infrequently mean future trouble. The disruption of rail services will be due in good measure to the fact that Parliament is years behind in its essential work. Settlement will necessitate the passage in fall months of legislation which was promised long ago.

It was possible to speculate in July that the government would content itself at this session with a relatively few more items of important business and seek to conclude the session before Christmas. Mr. Pearson's address to the nation on Tuesday evening, however, has ended the last doubt that the MacPherson legislation is part of the essential parliamentary work-load of 1966.

What it failed to do, as became clear on Wednesday morning, was to banish official talk of a house-keeping adjournment.

It is true that Parliament, in the latter part of its spring and summer session, showed a commendable desire to move ahead in an orderly fashion with the public business. Nevertheless, the fact remains that it faces a backlog of unfinished work and it must be added that a good deal of the pending legislation is highly complex, controversial and likely to be time-consuming.

Important Issues

The railway bill is bound to raise important and difficult issues. The government has had trouble within its own caucus over the uncompleted bank legislation and it is only reasonable to expect trouble in Parliament over civil service legislation and the measure dealing with unification in the armed services.

Quite apart from the government's agenda, however, Mr. Pearson must reckon with the unforeseeable and unavoidable debates which arise in every session. However irrational it may seem, it is quite possible that the House will waste a day discussing the case of the Creditiste-turned-separatist, Mr. Gilles Gregoire. There is almost bound to be an uproar over the Spence report. Inflation may be expected to produce more wrangles over motions of adjournment and perhaps over further strike crises. It could force the government to revise its plans by the introduction of a "baby budget."

The observation that the government proposes and Parliament disposes is particularly valid when the ministry is without a majority in the House of Commons.

To say that Parliament is behind in its 1966 work schedule is, unfortunately, to understate the problem. In recent years the condition has been chronic. Mr. Sharp's banking legislation should have been passed last year. Instead, Parliament has limped along by extending out-of-date charters while postponing the necessary work of revision. The same thing is true of the immigration law.

But this Parliament itself is a most imperfect mirror of the country because of the procrastination of its predecessors and past governments. We are five years past the census of 1961 but we have a House of Commons based on the census pattern of 1951. A business which operated in such a fashion would soon be out of business.

Difficult to Grasp

In these circumstances the country may have some difficulty in grasping the necessity at such a time of a housekeeping adjournment. Before the days of simultaneous translation and other modern inventions, the imperatives of housekeeping seem to have made less impression on our national leaders.

As we are to be reminded in centennial year, Parliament carried on during the First World War (no doubt at considerable inconvenience) even though the Parliament Buildings burned to the ground. This could scarcely happen nowadays with the house-keeping notions entertained by some eminent figures in Ottawa.

If U Thant Retires—

By CHARLES BARTLETT
From Washington

THE lack of assurance with which the world body confronts its responsibilities is conveyed by the suspense with which the U.S. community now awaits U Thant's decision on whether he will accept a second term as secretary-general of the United Nations.

The reluctance of the quiet Burmese to retain his post at the helm of the U.N. has heated up an unusual stew. President Johnson wrote a personal letter to urge him to stay at least two more years. Premier Kosygin has given the U.N. will be damaged by the the Soviet blessing to his re-election.

The world consensus is strong that prolonged wrangling necessary to agree on a new man. On such occasions the U.N. declines into a Swiftian satire of the high purposes for which it was created.

Most observers do not believe that the soft-spoken Burmese will be able to resist the entreaties addressed to him. The post pays $65,000 in tax-free salary and perquisites, a sum not princely but comfortable by Manhattan standards. The role carries more dignity than opportunities for accomplishment but no one could find it dull.

Not Sanguine

However U Thant's associates in the Secretariat are not sanguine that he will agree to stay. He is a simple, direct man who does not relish the U.N.'s ceremonial and social aspects or the intellectual stimulation of international life.

U Thant is frustrated by concern that he will be judged a failure for his inability to come to grips with the war in Viet Nam. He is bothered by the U.N.'s financial disarray and by the autonomous powers of the specialized off-shoots like UNESCO, which have dug their own roots.

The fact is that the U.N. and the world may be better served if U Thant does decide to step down now. The agenda of the coming session of the General Assembly is not so burdened that great damage will be done if the selection of a successor becomes a legislative preoccupation. A delay in the ratification of an agreement on space co-operation, the only significant progress likely during the session, would be unfortunate but not critical.

The Soviet leadership is presently taking a rather mild view of the U.N.—there is no sign of a disposition to renew Khrushchev's insistence that the body's leadership have three heads. The Africans have not yet rallied their numerical forces in a determination to take over the Secretariat. The election of a new secretary general will stave off this prospect.

Less Dramatic

U Thant had disproved Khrushchev's assertion that "there are no neutral men" and dispelled the contention which arose during Dag Hammarskjold's campaign in the Congo. He has calmed and stabilized the Secretariat staff with a far less dramatic style of leadership.

By some inspiration and hopefulness has been squeezed out of the U.N. operation in this process. Functioning as an honest politician, U Thant has won respect but sacrificed the aura and urgency which seemed in the past to lend the U.N some promise of maturing into a more pervasive force in world affairs.

Hammarskjold invested the institution with the theology which conveyed an impression of growth and depth. He said, "The Secretary General has to try and reach the hearts and minds of people so as to get the United Nations effort firmly based in public reaction." His speeches and posture reflected a determination to make the instrument more than a sounding board for world opinion.

This may prove to be an excellent opportunity to search for a Secretary General who can articulate the U.N.'s aspirations, emphasize and even magnify its accomplishments, and symbolize its potential. Such a figure is sorely needed.

Vast Crowds, Uniforms for the New Revolution

THE latest move in Communist China's "great proletarian cultural revolution" is being pressed home in mass rallies and demonstrations throughout the nation.

The million-strong rally and parade in Peking, which lasted for seven hours on August 18, was the pattern. It was there that the new line-up of the Chinese leadership was displayed to the people and the political line of the "revolution" given official sanction through the presence of Chairman Mao Tse-tung. Additional rallies have since been held in cities all the way from Shanghai in the east to Lhasa in Tibet.

Sunday is the traditional day for mass demonstrations in China. The fact that the current campaign was initiated in mid-week indicates a feeling of urgency on the part of China's leaders.

When he appeared on the balcony before the Peking rally, Chairman Mao wore a military uniform for the first time in many years, a fact that is being repeatedly pointed out in the Chinese press. The papers say the masses approve. Mao also has been given a new appellation, "the Great Helmsman," to indicate that he is the one steering the present campaign.

It is being explained that with Mao at the helm, "the great ship of the Chinese revolution will pass through dangerous rapids and hidden shoals, survive many fierce storms, always sail on a correct course and triumphantly reach the destination of Communism."

Defence Minister Lin Piao is now confirmed as the Number Two among China's leaders and the official interpreter of the "thought of Mao Tse-tung." Liu Shao-chi, the Chinese head of state, was the former holder of this position but is now down to seventh place.

Mao Tse-tung's wife, under her formal name of Chiang Ching, appears in the list of leaders for the first time. In the sequence which usually in China reflects rank, Mrs. Mao appears as Number 24. Prime Minister Chou En-lai's wife, Teng Ying-chao, is listed as Number 30.

School students of correct revolutionary background are no being formed into a new military organization called the Red Guards. They wear khaki uniforms with red arm bands. Their first public appearance was at the Peking rally and Mao honored them by considerable personal attention and be wearing one of their arm bands.

The Red Guards, who are being described in the Peking press as the Red successors to the revolution, have since gone into action. On August 21 they virtually took over Peking's shopping areas, ordering the shopkeepers to rid themselves of their Western ways and telling restaurant managements to serve cheaper and simpler meals, suitable for workers and peasants.

The major stress in the current series of rallies is being put on to educational leaders and institutions falling into line with the "great proletarian cultural revolution."

Quotes from foreign sources in praise of Mao Tse-tung, which appear regularly in the Chinese press, have been restricted in the past few days to those paying tribute to Mao's military theories and his claim that imperialists are paper tigers. Broadcasting time, usually devoted only to quotes from Mao's works, now includes also quotes from Lin Piao in praise of Mao.

Battle of Admirals

Granby La Voix de l'Est

Defence Minister Hellyer hopes that legislation on the integration and unification of the armed forces will be submitted to the parliamentary committee on defence before its adoption by the Commons.

Thus, the retired navy officers will be able to present their points of view publicly. The minister of defence is not a man to back down before criticism and he is ready to confront those who do not share his opinion.

There will be some fine skirmishes, if one can judge by opposition to the minister's policy from Admiral Landymore. What military people, retired or not, consider of first importance is not the savings that the government can make while still maintaining an adequate defence system. Money means little to them. . . .

However, Mr. Hellyer is not exactly of this opinion and he has shown it for some years in pursuing a policy of integration and unification of the armed forces which does not at all diminish — much to the contrary — the effectiveness of national defence. . . .

The opponents of his policy are not many. They are especially admirals. And this because the minister is putting on the shelf a few useless ships whose maintenance costs considerable sums.

There will be no need to be impressed by their statements before the parliamentary committee. . . . The battle of the admirals seems to be a tempest in a teapot.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

A quiet walk around the Swamp Trail at Francis Park can be more than interesting..

At the top of the hill there is a clump of plum tree samplings that are hanging with the dark damson-like bitter plums. They look like grapes on a vine and the branches are bent almost to the ground.

Stop and look at the Garry oak, see how the acorns have formed and how the cup is curled around the flat nut. The leaves are now turning to a mottled rusty brown.

Down the hill look at the seed pods of the broom and note how they are twisted. This is a mechanical device that spreads the seed in an arc. Do you know that the seeds are sought after by the quail?

As you go along there are many red cedars that are loaded with cones. See how they are built up like tiny leaves. In many places you will find last year's open and looking like an open-faced rose.

When you reach the marsh see how the sedges are changing color and are heavy with their blackish flower-spikelets hanging in clusters. Mingled with them will be members of the rush family.

As the breeze blows across the opening see how the thistledown drifts amongst the alders.

As you go under the overhanging branches of an old cedar you go into another world. Now the sunlight is shut out by the overhead canopy and the ground is bare of plant life.

Here you can find several very big red alders that are perhaps one hundred years old. This is far beyond the normal span of this tree, but the habitat is ideal and there is always lots of water from the little spring that runs all year long.

Along the way see where the little red squirrels have fed on the cones of the Douglas fir.

Wage Cuts

There is only one way for the government to make amends and to check the growing wave of strikes which they themselves are chiefly responsible for, by their inordinate raising of their own salaries. They should immediately take a 25 per cent cut in their salaries and fringe benefits, then order a wage freeze, with a 10 per cent cut in all other wages and salaries. Otherwise there is great danger of a runaway inflation, such as hit Germany in the twenties. Quick action is needed and no more shilly shallying. — E. W. Abraham, 1125 Faithful.

Road to Inflation

What a far cry labor of today is from forced child labor! And although no right-thinking person would approve of the latter system, it seems to me that a middle-of-the-road course should be applied here as in all other things.

Hearing of the numerous strikes being called lately, in Canada and the U.S., makes me wonder how many more workers intend to add their voices to those of the ever-increasing number of people constantly clamoring for higher wages. Furthermore, why do these highly-paid citizens, with their latest model cars, speedboats, ultra-modern inventions and many other luxuries, keep a shut mind to the fact that inflation will bring on a financial collapse in these nations; to the fact that their insistence on doing what will eventually cause that collapse — namely continuing to clamor for higher and higher wages — will result in them having to tighten their belts as they've never had to before? Or is it a case of them knowing this and continuing to call strikes with a couldn't-care-less attitude? Surely either attitude needs correcting. — "Disgusted."

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

Canada was hit by its second national railway strike in 16 years and the big question is whether it will last long enough to cause serious damage to the country's economy.

Unable to mediate a settlement between the railroads and 118,000 workers, the government called a special session of Parliament for Monday to bring a quick end to the walkout.

Prime Minister Pearson hopes to have back-to-work legislation passed by Wednesday, granting an interim wage increase and provision for binding arbitration.

The unions indicated their members may defy such a law. Government sources said there would be no provision for fines or penalties in the emergency legislation.

The country's first railway tieup in 1950 lasted nine days and the total loss in wages and production by affected industries was estimated at $100 million.

There have been repeated strike threats and crises every two years since but this is the first time an actual walkout has occurred since 1950.

In a national radio and TV address Mr. Pearson warned the railway workers they would have to settle for less than the 30 per cent wage increase they have demanded.

Apart from the railways' financial position, settlement on such terms would cause increases in costs and prices and lead to serious inflation, he said.

Later in the week the prime minister was met by a demand for a 39-per-cent wage increase by the nation's postal workers. If this demand is not met, the union said, a mail strike would be called near Christmas.

In Hamilton, 11,000 workers at the Steel Co. of Canada rejected a proposed contract approved by union negotiators and threatened to walk off their jobs.

The pinch of Britain's new austerity program was beginning to be felt with industrial cutbacks resulting in increasing unemployment.

A growing number of firms blamed high taxation and the credit squeeze for shutdowns.

Latest statistics show a mounting stream of Britons emigrating to Canada and Australia, largely out of dissatisfaction with the country's economic health.

China was in the throes of a savage "cultural revolution" this week that is expected to end in further changes in the country's leadership.

Gangs of indoctrinated youths roamed the streets of Peking, attacking alleged reactionaries and stripping down any remaining symbols of western civilization ranging from traffic signals to churches.

Western observers believe the regime's new strongman, Defence Minister Lin Piao, is behind the purge in the expectation of taking over from aging and ailing Mao Tse-tung.

Increasing regimentation is in store for the people of China, it was predicted.

President Charles de Gaulle embarked on a strenuous three-week tour around the world with principal stops in Africa and Southeast Asia.

After visiting Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia he will travel to Cambodia and make a major speech in the capital of Phnom Penh on Sept. 1.

De Gaulle is expected to advance new pleas for ending in the Viet Nam war in his Cambodia speech. Later he will visit the French nuclear test site in the Pacific.

Briefly:

A committee of Parliament may be set up this week to decide the fate of MP Gilles Gregoire who became the first avowed separatist in the Commons by assuming leadership of the militant Le Ralliement National. Other members of the Creditiste party, which Gregoire helped found with Real Caouette, have called for his expulsion;

Three West German army generals resigned to protest strengthening of civilian control over the military by the Bonn government;

More than 3,000 persons perished in a series of devastating earthquakes which struck eastern Turkey;

Mounting dissent in Argentina's universities resulted in the country's military regime outlawing four leading student organizations.

What More Could PM Do Under the Circumstances?

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA—If you were prime minister and faced with the national disaster of a shutdown of the railways by strikes, what would you do?

Waring

Being prime minister, you would be buffeted by conflicting and contradictory economic and political considerations, contentions and claims. Under such conditions problems cannot be judged simply on the basis of right or wrong, black or white, for right and wrong are relative quantities, and the colors are all grey.

You would also be circumscribed and contained by legal considerations. You could talk to union leaders and management, using the prestige of your office to try to bring them to agreement and thereby avert a strike. But if they proved adamant, you would not have the authority to force a settlement or forbid a strike.

First, you would find yourself in agreement with the position that Prime Minister Pearson took while the conciliation board was functioning: it would be "quite improper" for your government to usurp the function of this board set up under law passed by Parliament. Your hands would be tied until the board had reported and either or both parties to the dispute had refused to accept the board's report.

Second, you would avoid threats as to what you would do if the unions or management did or refused to do this or that. The workers' right to strike after the legally prescribed conciliation procedures have been followed is guaranteed by law. And management has a parallel right to conduct its business without duress.

Probably you would say no more in the circumstances than Mr. Pearson did: 'When ordinary measures . . . have failed, we will discharge our duty."

You would know, as unions and management know, that a stoppage of the railways would be an economic disaster that must be prevented, or quickly ended if it develops. You would know that the danger of inflation would be much increased if the unions' wage demands were met and the railways passed the higher costs along to the public in the form of higher freight rates. You would know that only Parliament can make illegal for the railwaymen to start or continue a strike.

Mr. Pearson was asked last week if he intended to summon Parliament for the unstated but understood reason of having it take such action. "That is a hypothetical question," he evaded. 'I hope not, but if that is necessary, that will be done."

He knows, as you would know, that government's use of force in a labor dispute is repugnant to democracy, an anathema to organized labor. A great many union members vote Liberal despite their unions' official attachment to the NDP. The Liberals lack a majority in Parliament, and Conservative leader Diefenbaker and NDP leader Douglas would woo the union vote in debate on a bill to give the government power to end a strike. Unless the people favor the use of force, it would be politically disastrous for the government to resort to it.

You would end up, as Mr. Pearson is ending up, taking action necessary to put the welfare of the country ahead of the welfare of one group of citizens — and knowing that whatever you did or didn't do, you would be damned for it.

Anybody for prime minister?

So Now It's 'Teen Men' — But with No Place to Go

By ART STOTT

As the item of junk mail moved from my letter-rack to my wastepaper basket, a phrase included in it caught my eye. This was a publicity advance from publishers of a slick magazine tailored to separate kids from their money. It set forth the results of polls taken in 45 American cities indicating the political preferences and recording favorites of teenage males in the areas covered.

Stott

The phrase that caught my eye was "teen men." These, by the item's definition range in age from 13 to 18—roughly the group represented by the senior grade in elementary school and those who cease to benefit from the juvenile act when they get into trouble.

It is my conviction that boys from 13 up can be manly youngsters—and that most of them are pretty sound human material. But to my way of thinking "teen men" is a sales gimmick pandering to and fostering an exaggerated sense of self-importance among youths who have more loose change in their pockets than ever before. This is part of the market being intensively exploited in this era. The boys have money and it's a salesman's job to sell. Hence the inclination to make the boys feel that they are big wheels, adult and possibly mature.

The junk mail piece sent me back to a chapter on "The Adolescent Limbo" in Roul quency called "Kids, Crime and Chaos."

In one part of it he points out that "it's easy to see how we've created for youngsters an impossible dichotomy.

"On the one hand, we encourage adulthood in the young. We raise them to mature earlier physically . . . our youngsters acquire the bodies and emotional needs of adults at an earlier age than formerly . . . Certainly a large part of our splendid communications and advertising media expose the teen-agers to all the temptations of acting like an adult—in dress, in travel, in dating, in smoking, in drinking, in sex. Living in an affluent society, a child is more aware of the material advatages of being grown up than he has ever been in history."

On the other hand, says Mr. Tunley, "We subject him to a period of compulsory childhood. We have told him he must not leave school until he is sixteen (in British Columbia, fifteen), and if he does leave then, we have made it virtually impossible, because of labor laws, union policies, insurance and other regulations, for him to get any kind of permanent job until he's eighteen . . ."

This is part of the general Tunley thesis that children in poor countries, where they have to work to help the family to subsist, that we call delinquency. They're too busy being responsible, essential contributors to family subsistence—and as such the family automatically becomes the first concern of very young people who feel needed, useful and, in important social respects, mature.

Because of my years, I guess, I become increasingly impatient with and annoyed by teenagers who hang around, trying to be like adults by copying adult vices, making their changing voices raucus in a ludicrous attempt to ape the adolescent image of authority and command, and who think that stringing four-letter words together, ignoring the conventions of what we used to call decency and relegating courtesy to the discard, makes them men.

And like most other people of my age, I'm inclined to deliver my censure of all youth because a few irritate me. It's hard to notice the attractive features on the face of a person who has a boil on the end of his nose. But I forget that the hangers-around are among the unfortunates who haven't been able to get jobs—the class to which Tunley refers. I automatically segregate them from the lucky few who found work with boys' crews in the forest service or in some other useful occupation.

"Teen men," I scoff, thinking of what appear to be louts and punks, but not thinking of who, or what, fits them into the pattern we adults find so obnoxious.

Franco-American 'War of Nerves' Not Letting Up

THE ECONOMIST

PARIS — August is a holiday month. Paris, half deserted by the natives, has been taken over by the invading tourist hordes. But the phoney war between France and the United States goes on.

Three skirmishes took place in the first fortnight of this month. The public has been reminded that the roots of this diplomatic conflict are old and tough: that money, as d'Alembert put it, is the nerf de la guerre: and that when tension rises nerves get frayed and silly incidents tend to happen.

It was in 1958, the year of General de Gaulle's return to power, that the controversy over the structure of NATO started. On August 13 Senator Jackson was allowed to reveal the correspondence on this subject between General de Gaulle and President Eisenhower which began that year.

It was in September 1958 that the new French ruler made his request for a western triumvirate which would "take joint decisions on issues affecting world security."

Not in Earnest

The memorandum which the State Department prepared for Senator Jackson suggests that the general was never in earnest and did not seriously follow up his proposals.

As the story unfolds, with more and more documents becoming available, it will become plainer still that the conflict was both inevitable and insoluble, because General de Gaulle rejects the American leadership of the western alliance.

The French president was in no position to use economic weapons when he began his campaign. He has no intention now of relinquishing those he has forged in the meantime.

When U.S. Treasury Secretary Fowler argued this month that the American gold loss was due essentially to French conversions, his words were greeted in Paris with a righteous smile. The officials, or rather the few eccentrics left in the deserted capital, were quick to pointout that in converting its surpluses into gold France was within the letter of the regulations of the International Monetary Fund. As to the spirit, for more than a decade the French had to listen to the sermon about countries in chronic deficit: they can now preach it to others by heart.

If the controversies over the structure of the alliance and international liquidity are reminders of the seriousness of the conflict, this month's silly incident is probably more symptomatic of the current strains between Paris and Washington.

Press Rapped

Last week Mr. Charles Bohlen, the American ambassador, handed over an official protest against the coverage of the Vietnamese war on French television. American officials here are exasperated by the general treatment of the war, but the diplomatic protest was directed against a personal programme (a kind of "As I See It") in which M. d'Astier de la Vigerie contrasted American bombings of North Vietnam with the fuss made over a few American prisoners and congratulated President Ho Chi Minh on not trying the prisoners.

As soon as the contents of the note were revealed, French wits suggested that the paper on which it was written should be used to blindfold a miniature Statue of Liberty so that it should not wink.

It is easy to prove that independence is not one of the vices of the ORTF (l'Office de la Radiodiffusion et Television Francaise) and therefore to argue that if you have a complaint to make you should lodge it with the real boss, in other words, the government.

It is even easier to recall that the French television's sympathy for movements of "national liberation" is a very recent phenomenon. It dates back to 1962, the year in which the Algerian war came to an end. Until then it was from Paris that the violent protests against "perfidious" allies came. Indeed, when they recall the strict censorship of their own government, liberal Frenchmen, even if hostile to American policy in Viet Nam, have been impressed by the freedom enjoyed by critics of that war in the United States.

Cult Victim

One may like or dislike M. d'Astier de la Vigerie, the former Stalinist fellow-traveller now turned gaullist. His Parisian critics suggest that he is a victim of the personality cult; since the cult is no longer celebrated in the Kremlin, he has had to make his devotions to the Elysee. The fact remains that the introduction of his monthly program on television was part of a general policy of superficial liberalization.

The gaullists learnt, during the presidential campaign last year, that too obedient a television service has its drawbacks. M. d'Astier has even been allowed to criticize the government over the Ben Barka case. Admittedly, he would not be allowed even a quarter of an hour to attack, say, the force de frappe. But it is one thing to argue that the independence of the ORTF is a sham. It is quite another to attack the very principle of independence.

If the purpose of the American move was simply propaganda, the ground was ill-chosen. Speaking this time on commercial radio, M. d'Astier replied this week that it was wrong to equate hostility towards the war in Viet Nam with anti-Americanism, since in that case "certainly three-quarters of the world's population would be anti-American, which is not true."

Understatement

Whether or not this is accurate for the world as a whole, the proportion could be an understatement for France. This is why American attacks on his Asian policy only strengthen General de Gaulle's position at home.

If French television has proved too much for American diplomats this summer, what will be their reaction when the president of the United States is put in the dock here in the autumn? In principle, it is in Paris, in November, that the international tribunal sponsored by Bertrand Russell will sit in judgment over American policy in Viet Nam.

Some French papers have hinted that the government is undecided whether to grant permission for such a trial on French soil. The rumors are contradictory. According to one school of thought General de Gaulle himself has put the blame for the war on the United States and he may benefit from anti-American pronouncements at such a "trial." The doubters reply that the general is a great stickler for protocol: there have been more prosecutions for "insults to the head of state' under the Fifth Republic than ever before.

Who knows? The Quai d'Orsay is diplomatically discreet. It has an easy excuse: August is a month for holidays, not for decisions.

THE GALLUP POLL

Human Element Blamed For Most Auto Mishaps

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Despite the much-publicized controversy over the safety standards of cars, the Canadian people are far more ready to blame the human element, the driver, than the car itself for the high accident rate in this country. They most frequently name carelessness, drinking and speeding.

Reckless youthful drivers are also pin-pointed as the cause of many accidents.

Opinions in the United States are similar to those in Canada, except that Canadians place more blame for highway accidents on drinking drivers than do Americans.

The question: "What is the chief reason for auto accidents in your opinion?"

	U.S.	Canada
Careless drivers (poor judgement, lack of attention)	60%	40%
Drinking	21	30
Speeding	31	25
Young drivers	5	6
Faulty and too high-powered cars	3	3
All other reasons	8	6
No opinion	1	4
	129%	114%

Among "the other" reasons in Canada are . . .

Too many cars on the roads . . . need for improved highways (especially mentioned in Quebec and New Brunswick) . . . fatigue of drivers . . . and impatience of drivers.

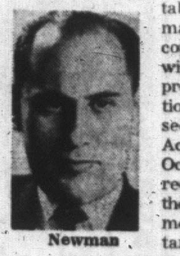
Tables added to more than 100% since some persons gave more than one answer.

Unruly Parliament May Trigger Election

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — In the brief six weeks since Parliament adjourned so little has happened to improve this country's political climate that by the time the new session is a few hours old, the odds are that the politicians—and the public—will feel they've never been away.

But there is one essential difference between the parliament that opens next Monday and the session that adjourned on July 14. It is this: If by mischance, or miscalculation, the government should be defeated on a vote of confidence, the Governor-General would now have to grant dissolution, and the nation would be plunged into yet another election campaign.



Newman

New Element

This fact introduces a new element of danger into an already explosive political mix. "The particular deterrent which made an election virtually impossible in the last session — namely, that the new redistribution bill had not passed — is now gone," says Dr. Eugene Forsey, one of the country's foremost constitutional experts. "The fact that the present Parliament is based on a seat distribution nearly 16 years out of date would give the Governor-General reasonable grounds for allowing an election on the new constituency boundaries."

The only exception Dr. Forsey recognizes would be a pledge both by the Social Credit and the NDP to support a Diefenbaker government, following the defeat of the Liberals on an important vote.

"But this," Dr. Forsey admits, "is a pretty dim possibility."

Few governments have faced the opening of a parliamentary session in such obvious disarray as the Liberals are this weekend. The administration is caught in a painful dilemma, bound to political pledges (medicare, higher pensions, more pay to servicemen, etc.) which no longer fit the inflationary context of the economy.

This unhappy situation will allow a militant opposition, under John Diefenbaker, to launch some devastating parliamentary assaults.

That one of these attacks might topple the administration remains highly unlikely. But the possibility does exist and it will require all of George McIlraith's considerable skill as Liberal house leader to keep the government afloat.

The administration's timetable is to introduce three main pieces of legislation—compulsory arbitration to deal with the railway strike, a bill providing for the modernization of the railways, and the second reading of the Bank Act—then to adjourn until October 5, the original date of recall. The railway bill and the Bank Act would, in the meantime go to parliamentary committees for further study.

But under the new parliamentary rules, adjournment is possible only by unanimous consent or a government motion on the order paper which requires 48 hours notice, a debate and a vote. It's doubtful whether John Diefenbaker will agree to give up the valuable forum of the Commons question period, particularly since the Spence report on the Munsinger affair is now completed and will probably be tabled next week.

Moved Sittings

Planners of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association meeting, which was originally meant to occupy the Commons chamber from Sept. 28 to Oct. 4, have already made arrangements to move its sittings into the Senate. The prospect is for a prolonged and painful session which will continue straight through until the Christmas adjournment.

The crunch will come immediately with the introduction of the government's railway legislation, based on the five-year-old MacPherson Royal Commission on Transportation.

The main element in any solution of the current railway crisis is to free the companies from the artificial restraints placed on them by what the MacPherson commission called "tradition, law and public policy . . . so that they can meet their competition by price and service."

To compensate the railways for the specific national obligations that Canadian geography places upon them, a new system of self-liquidating subsidies will have to be established. (This new subsidy, expected to total about $100 millions, will be on top of the $100 millions the railways already receive to offset past wage settlements.)

The politically most contentious aspect of the MacPherson report's recommendation was its call for the abandonment of unprofitable branch lines (mostly in Western Canada) over the next 15 years. At the moment, the railways have applications before the Board of Transport Commissioners for the abandonment of nearly four thousand miles of uneconomic runs.

One of the reasons the MacPherson legislation was not brought forward earlier is that most of these stretches of rail are in constituencies occupied by Diefenbaker Tories, and Liberals feared that any move to abandon them would bring about a fillibuster, not unlike the flag debate of 1964.

Diffusing Issue

But the cabinet now believes it has hit on a way of diffusing the issue. The branch lines debate will be taken right out of the Commons. A new federal regulatory body called the National Transportation Board will rule on which lines should be abandoned, making its decisions on the basis of treating the whole rail network in Western Canada as a singel unit whether it's operated now by CNR or CPR.

The MacPherson report called for a $13 million subsidy annually for 15 years (at total of $195 millions) to offset the cost of maintaining branch lines while the communities affected prepared for their abandonment. Under the new system of rationalizing the entire rail network, which has been worked out by Hedlin, Menzie and Associates, a Winnipeg firm of economic consultants, and adopted by the government, the cost to the treasury will be a fraction of the original $195 million estimate.

Few people in the capital this weekend believe the railway crisis can be settled without a series of political convulsions. What's even more discouraging is the realization that this is only the most immediate of the many horrendous problems facing this parliament — and this nation.

Gilbey's reveal how to make sensational Caribbean Collins

Around the islands of the Caribbean they know that one of the best gins for mixed drinks is Gilbey's London Dry. Its perfect balance gives a fresh, clean-tasting drink, time after time. Even Lulu knows that—and proves it with her Ginebra Collins.

Lulu's Ginebra Collins

Lulu makes her Ginebra Collins with fresh lemon juice, Gilbey's London Dry Gin, sugar and soda water. Then she gives the drink a special look with a simple garnish. This is a slice of pineapple—perched on the glass.

Saba—Volcano Collins

In Saba, you climb uphill to the Bottom (a town that nestles in the crater of an extinct volcano). At the pleasant Government Guest House, you can refresh yourself with a Volcano Collins—a normal Collins made with Gilbey's London Dry but with a ½ ounce of Pernod added for dramatic effect.

You can rely on Gilbey's London Dry, a perfectly balanced gin that gives you a fresh, clean-tasting drink. This gin is an international favourite, sold in 92 countries. It's been made by the Gilbey family for 109 years.

"Have You Hardening of the Ink Arteries?"

It is undoubtly true that to be able to express yourself well on paper practically assures you of a successful future; it is also true that good writing is not a matter of chance. You and your children (grade 8 onwards) can learn to write in a simple, lucid and effective style. By a well proven method I can give you, in 12 two-hour a week practice periods, this art. We shall start the second week of September, and you will pay only thirty dollars for an interesting experience that must reward you many fold. Write to me and join a small group of those who really wish to free themselves of hardening of the ink arteries.

An Apology to the People of Victoria

The Victoria Women's Symphony Society wish to apologize to those of their supporters who bought $2.00 tickets to the Banff School Festival Ballet but had to sit in the $1.50 section of the theatre.

The house did not oversell, but unfortunately some people who bought $1.50 tickets sat in the $2.00 seats. In order to prevent this happening at a future date, we feel it would be advisable to have one price for all seats unless reserved.

Ballet B.C. Difficulties 'Can Be Ironed Out'

SOUNDING BOARD

By AUDREY St. D. JOHNSON

It is wonderful what a few words from the wise can do about opening your eyes.

You may have considered yourself to have a slightly better than average knowledge and appreciation of a subject; then someone comes along with a profound knowledge and exceptional gifts of communication and all in an instant the focus is sharper.

Your mind has been sharpened like a pencil, supersensitized like a photographic plate, polished as a mirror.

It happened to me after two sessions with noted accompanist Gwendolyn Koldofsky last week. A couple of nights later I was present at a student vocal recital and found myself aware as never before of the deficiencies of the accompanists.

And at the Mossfield concert the superbly artistic performance of Pearl Mossfield at the piano stood out for me with particular significance.

Now it's happened again. This time with ballet.

Last Tuesday evening I had my first opportunity to hear —and watch — Peter Franklin White in one of his ballet lecture demonstrations.

My one regret is that I had to miss the earlier episodes. There is one more however, next Tuesday, and barring accidents I shall be there. (They're being held in Norfolk House School gymnasium, 801 Bank Street and start at 8:15).

It seems to me that for any ballet-minded person who would like to have a finer appreciation of the art, these lecture-demonstrations are invaluable.

They are better than reading a dozen books on the subject for Mr. White has the gift of communication.

His talk is informal, devoid of technical jargon but full of vivid phrases and elaborated with movement as he illustrates with excerpts from the many roles he danced during his years as a Royal Ballet principal.

This week he discussed ballet music, pointing out that it could be anything, from Beatles to Brahms.

"Ballet is a composite art — painting, music, movement," he told his audience. "Each part must be of equal quality.

"The high art of choreography must not be less significant than the musical masterpiece it seeks to interpret. Massine for example did not succeed in his choreography for the Beethoven Seventh Symphony."

Painting must also match. The designs for Daphnis and Chloe let down both Ashton's choreography and the music, he noted.

Mr. White is naturally disappointed over the organizational failure of Ballet British Columbia for which he was engaged as artistic director.

But he is not disheartened. "The difficulties can be ironed out," he says, "and in the meantime there's plenty to be done."

The dancer who has traveled far and wide with the Royal Ballet and given his lecture-demonstrations all over the British Isles and United States, says that more potential exists in British Columbia than anywhere else in the world for formation of a unique ballet company.

It is his ambition and intention to make Ballet British Columbia a company with a strongly individualistic style.

"We don't want to be a faint copy of another company," he told me. "That mistake has already been made once in Canada. We must be ouselves — and good."

Cheers to Franklin White, I couldn't agree with him more.

And may he and Ballet British Columbia not have to wait too long for a straightening out of the organization problems and for the financial backing to become available.

And while on the subject of finances, it's disheartening but not altogether surprising to note that Premier Bennett's election talk does not include any reference to more support for the arts in this province.

A few months ago we were told that the self-styled most affluent province in Canada would soon embark on a program of major assistance toward B.C.'s cultural development.

It seems to me that Mr. Bennett — and others I could mention — would be much surprised if they really examined the situation, to find how wide-spread is participation and interest in the various arts throughout B.C.

In fact, I wish the arts people in Victoria and Vancouver were the kind who would get together and form themselves into a flying wedge to tackle one of Mr. Bennett's political rallies.

I wish they would ask questions and go on asking them until they got answers or at least made their strength and their purpose known.

A letter came to my desk this week which should bring a glow of pleasure to all those who contributed in any way toward the acquisition of THE PIANO.

From San Mateo, Calif., Lauretta McAuliffe, a concert pianist, writes that . . . "on my first visit to your lovely city last week, I had occasion to play on surely one of the great and beautiful instruments in the world today. It was the new Hamburg-Steinway concert grand piano . . .

"The memory of the great quality and beauty of the instrument remains with me . . . I've written the director of the School of Music and told him of my interest in performing in concert on that piano."

Building School

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Merle Oberon, here to play a duchess in Hotel, said she's putting all her earnings into building a trade school for 60 orphan boys at Acapulco, Mexico.

"Fortunately I have a husband who can take care of me," she remarked.

He is Italian-born Bruno Pagliai, with whom she lives at Acapulco. Married nine years, they have two children.

As for getting involved in good works, Miss Oberon exclaimed: "Look — if one wants to do something, there's a need everywhere."

The orphans' school, she said, "will start building any minute."

FOCUS

By BRAD NUGENT

Attention — all local bands with sound equipment problems.

A new business opened in Victoria a few weeks ago and is ready to help.

Overlander Equipment, a division of one of Gary Wilcox's enterprises "The Studio" offers professional-type sound equipment, manufactured locally and ready for almost immediate delivery.

Talking earlier this week with Rod Evans, a great guitar player — many Victorians will remember him as the lead guitarist with the now-extinct Blackcats — he informed me exactly what the company has to offer.

The most exciting piece of electrical apparatus so far is the Buzz-Box, commonly called a fuzz-tone unit by our guitar-plucking locals.

"A Buzz-Box," says Rod, "is an electrical gadget which transforms a standard guitar note into a straight buzz."

"Well, that's nice, but what use is a buzz," I asked.

"Variety in sound is strived for in every group — occasionally a blured sound fits in a lot better than a clear one would," answered Rod.

So far, Rod has taken orders from Vancouver's Bitter Sweets, Seattle's Don and the Goodtimes as well as many of our local groups including the Motifs.

Even Don Crawford, who stars nightly at the A Go-Go on Wharf Street, has placed a buzz-box in his collection of electrical goodies.

Also on Overlanders order list are P.A. amplifiers, reverb-units, and bass and electric guitar amps in 60 and 120 watt sizes.

Victoria's great "No. 1012" returns to Victoria Sunday after a two-month vacation Hawaii . . . British quartet, The Beatles received a mere $198,000 for their 10-song, 33-minute concert in New York City, Tuesday night — something seems a bit out of proportion, don't you agree? . . . . How come? — our Up-Island towns have a lot more dances with American bands than we do in Victoria . . . The "Cage" has closed its doors — the popular Oak Bay nite-spot which opened early in the summer held its last dance last Wednesday night — no reason was given in a telephone call which I made last week to one of the owners.

SYMPHONY AUDITIONS

Auditions were announced today by Otto-Werner Mueller for young Victoria musicians to be featured in the fifth pair of Victoria Symphony concerts scheduled for Dec. 11 and 12.

The auditions are to take place early in September.

Appointments for audition can be arranged by calling the symphony office, 384-9523, or visiting Dunlop House, 1960 Lansdowne Road.

"We are endeavoring by this means to do what we can to encourage and further the interests of the spiring students and to determine the potential talent in Victoria," Mr. Mueller stated.

Nine Authors Discuss East Trade

EAST-WEST TRADE, edited by Philip E. Uren; Canadian Institute International Affairs; 1966; pp. XVI, 181; $3.00.

Reviewed by G. R. Elliott

This is a collection 10 essays by nine authors, with an introduction written by the Hon. Mitchell Sharp, when he was Minister of Trade and Commerce.

One of the authors is an MP and three live in the United States. The others are academics from Ontario and Alberta.

The first two essays are concerned with whether or not we should trade with Eastern Europe (and China). It is argued that conditions have changed since the late Forties when it was generally agreed that such trade could redound only to the advantage of the "socialist camp."

INFLUENCE

It is even suggested that, now, trade may well exercise civilizing influence — on them, of course.

There is, however, no bald admission that the competition between dollars and doctrines is, in the long run, invariably an equal one.

Others discuss various aspects of such a trade — the economic ends it may serve, the institutions which facilitate or restrict it, the implications for it of attempts to integrate the economies of the "socialist" countries.

The types of goods exchanged, the agencies directed to the prosecution of the trade, and the relatively successful efforts to develop an acceptable system of East-West commercial law — all these receive attention.

EXPAND TRADE

Essays eight, nine and ten examine the prospects for an expansion of the trade. The conclusion is that there is unlikely to be any significant expansion.

SHARP

. . . writes introduction

Periodic purchases of grain by the East will likely continue, but means of payment difficulties and mutual unwillingness to become too dependent on one another will hamper growth.

Implicit or explicit in nearly all the essays is the conviction that theirs is the blame for the atmosphere of mutual distrust which prevails. But the major concern of the authors is to provide information.

This they do, and, for the most part, quite clearly.

The result is a book which should give the reader what the editor hopes it will—"a better basis for making up his own mind" about the place of East-West trade in our scheme of things.

Conflicts of Military Colleges Illustrated in West Point Story

DUTY, HONOUR, COUNTRY, by Stephen E. Ambrose. Copp Clark Publishing Co. 1966. 357 pp. $11.

Reviewed by Group Capt. D. B. Wurtele, Commandant, Canadian Services College, Royal Roads

Duty, Honour, Country is a history of West Point Military Academy which has been traced by the author, Stephen Ambrose, in a most interesting and fascinating way through the lives of the various superintendents who have led the Academy since its inception.

The problems and difficulties which each of these individuals had to face, the long and tedious process or correction, and the gradual development of this famous institutuion are particularly interesting and valuable to those who are faced with the guidance and leadership of military colleges today.

CONFLICT

The conflict between the emphasis placed upon the academic and military aspects in the life of a cadet is as valid now as it has always been.

The explanation of why there must be a greater emphasis on the academic side is extremely well handled in this book.

Again, the inevitable conflict between strict obedience in military affairs and the necessity of intellectual freedom is a problem which is unavoidably present at a military college.

Although this point is not resolved by the author, it is recognized, which in itself demonstrated the depth of research on which the book is based.

Because a military college is faced with an equivalent academic program to that of civilian universities, as well as the schedule of military training and physical development, there is always a premium on time with the consequent pressure upon the cadet.

THREE POINTS

Again, the treatment by the author of this aspect is excellent and is demonstrated in many ways throughout the book.

These are but three important points, the significance of which Mr. Ambrose has fully appreciated.

Here, they serve merely as examples to illustrate the completeness, the accuracy and understanding which the author has displayed in his treatment of the subject, which is climaxed by his summary of the purpose and value of West Point in producing leaders and men of broad and high character.

For this reason, it is much more than a well written, interesting history of an institution to be read chiefly by members of the alumni.

It is a book which all those involved in higher education and, particularly, those responsible for the leadership of military colleges throughout the world should read, and indeed study.

In Death . . . Dignity

Because death is a universal human experience with profound emotional and social impact on the survivors, the customs and practices associated with it are very important.

Today people are at last finding the courage to protest against the ostentation of high-cost funerals, as also against certain funeral practices which, in their opinion, conflict with human dignity. These people, all over North America, are banding together in non-sectarian, non-profit societies — of which the Memorial Society of British Columbia with its 10,000 registered members is typical — with the object of ensuring for their families low-cost funerals which combine simplicity with dignity.

MISSILE CRISIS

On the Brink of War

THE MISSILE CRISIS, by Elie Abel. J. B. Lippincott Co., 1966. 216 pages. Index. Illustrated.

Reviewed by Dr. R. H. Roy, Associate Professor of History, University of Victoria.

Late in 1962 President John F. Kennedy received word that missile sites were being established in Cuba. Alerted to the danger, he ordered immediate intensification of air reconnaissance over Cuba.

It soon became apparent that the Russians, with Cuban assistance, were making rapid progress in bringing a number of sites to rapid completion.

Never had the United States been confronted with such a grave crisis on its doorstep.

TIME BOMB

What is equally important, never had a crisis emerged in which the element of time for its solution can be compared only to a time bomb. Every day that passed meant that Russian ships bearing the missiles came closer to Cuba. Every hour of additional work on the sites meant that the batteries of sites capable of launching atomic bombs on American soil were being readied.

This was the background which Mr. Abel describes which lead to that well-remembered fortnight in October, 1962, when Kennedy decided to confront Khrushchev with the ultimatum of retreating from his plan to complete the sites or face the possibility of decisive American military action.

GREAT POWERS

The two great powers stood on the brink of war.

The author, a well-known and respected foreign correspondent, interviewed all the main principals who were involved in the missile crisis on the American side.

The president's brother, Robert Kennedy, Dean Rusk, Robert McNamara and others evidently gave him a sufficient amount of information so that he has been able to piece together an exciting story of how a small group of presidential advisers managed to avert tragedy.

Some of the information presented in this volume is new, and even if we shall have to wait many years before the full history is told, enough is written here to chill the blood of anyone.

The combination of massive destructive capability of atomic weapons, and the speed with which launching sites can be readied, has left little time for diplomatic niceties.

One cannot expect, in such circumstances, to be able to indulge in leisurely debate, time-consuming, inter-governmental consultation, or even at times in the niceties of giving one's friends and potential allies all the information which is streaming in over a vast communications network.

Mr. Abel judges President Kennedy's handling of the crisis was exceptionally well done, and presents sufficient evidence to support his views. On the face of it one must agree with him.

The Missile Crisis makes most interesting reading. It is well written in a journalistic style, and holds one's attention from the first page to the las.

No Happy Thoughts Anywhere

THE GREAT FLOOD, by Luise Collis. The Macmillan Company of Canada Ltd. 218 pages, $4.25.

Reviewed by M. Schierbeck

The author, Luise Collis, calls it a novel. It could more accurately be described as the biography of a demented man whose confused mind struggles between his illusions and the depressing facts of a miserable existence.

Accidentally stranded in a decrepit household consisting of a very old grandmother who is somewhat senile but with a brain quite sharp and clear in other ways; and an insane granddaughter he spends his time between the most necessary household chores and a steadily increasing urge to write.

Gradually the house fills up and overflows with his quite demented or incoherent articles which he writes in the firm belief that he is a highly respected author and that his next book, when finished, will place him among the top-rank writers.

In his increasing confusion he is unable to decide what actually has happened to the grandmother and granddaughter.

Has he murdered the old woman and driven the younger one mad?

The story reaches its climax when the river bursts its banks and floods the town disastrously.

The whole tale is deeply depressing and at no point does a happy event or a kind or good thought brighten this sombre description of abnormal and futile lives.

He had just finished our two-pound steak specialty. But we noticed he was looking toward the piano as he spoke, where Rosalie and George were warming up. (Their songs and music complement your dining hours at IMPERIAL Tuesday through Saturday.)

Rosalie of course, isn't on the menu. If she were, we'd list her as Nightingale Canadienne.

Even in a poolside dining room, such as ours, she captures all eyes. And when she sings, even our coffee gives off steam.

HOME GARDEN

Weekend Arrives For Sowing Lawn

By JACK BEASTALL

Next weekend will be the Labor Day holiday, the gardener's date for sowing new lawns in this part of the world.

Jack

Back in the spring this column suggested that areas to be made into a lawn should be well fertilized, regularly watered and all annual weeds controlled by hoeing and cultivation and the roots of perennial weeds completely removed.

Areas that have been treated this way throughout the summer will be ready for their last clean-up. This clean-up means the removal of any annual weeds that might be growing now and the digging out of any perennial weed roots that may have been missed. That can be done this weekend.

The main job for the evenings next week will be levelling the area. The more level the surface the better the lawn and a level surface comes from frequent raking.

A metal rake is used and only the top inch of soil moved. Work the soil up and down, back and forth, lengthwise, crosswise and diagonally.

TREADING

The constant treading will firm the surface and the raking will remove the high spots and fill in the hollows.

Don't try to work too long on this raking at one time. It is better to spend one hour an evening for six evenings than to tire after two hours and call quits.

For the first two evenings a lot of small stones will come to the surface. These should all be removed because we need about one-inch of stone-free surface soil into which the seed can be sown and covered.

The reason we choose the first week of September for sowing new lawns is because lawn seed, once it is moistened, must germinate within 12 days, otherwise it will rot. In early September we have a warm soil, which is equivalent to bottom heat, good day temperatures and not too cool at night.

These conditions are ideal for grass seed germination provided the right amount of moisture is maintained in the upper inch of soil. As the month progresses the soil becomes cooler, the day temperatures lower and the night temperatures too low for good germination and then we are more likely to end up with a patchy lawn because some of the seeds will rot.

Another job for next week is to obtain the seed. Lawn seed is always sold in mixtures and there is a mixture for every purpose.

Some grasses will only thrive in full sun, while others burn brown where strong sunshine reaches them. Some will make a green carpet, smooth and soft but will not stand rough scampering or continual walking.

So for a good and satisfactory lawn we have to start with the right grass mixture for the purpose we intend to use the lawn and for the type of soil and the exposure to sun.

It is better to depend on the advice of your local seedsman than on books or magazine articles when it comes to determining the mixture to use. Certain mixtures do well here in coastal British Columbia and these are carried by the local dealers

If you wish, these dealers can make you a mix to your own formula but be sure the grasses are suited to this climate or you will have troubles right from the start.

Also take the advice of your seed dealer on the amount of seed to sow. If you skimp, the turf will take years to close up and keep out the weeds. If you are too generous, the grass plants will not have enough room to spread and after the third year the grass will start to die for lack of food and air.

When buying the grass seed, include the fertilizer your seedsman recommends, also a garden hose (if you are short of this) and a sprinkler that will give a fine mist spray.

And finally — remember that most lawn troubles come from skimpy preparations. It only takes a few minutes to sow the seed and once that is done you are committed to the kind of lawn you have prepared.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Q. I would like to move plants of perennial rudbeckia and oenothera this fall to another area. Do they like a lime or an acid soil? M.E.B., Brentwood.

A. These perennials, as with the majority of herbaceous perennials, require only a humusy garden soil, not especially of lime or acid reaction.

Q. This spring I purchased a load of manure and the results have been disappointing. Would it have been wiser to have had it in the fall and dug into the garden? Mrs. L.M., Saanich.

A. You do not say what was done with the manure in spring, nor what kind. If it had been put in layers throughout the compost heap you could have had fine results from using the whole heap as mulching material during summer around vegetables, herbaceous perennials, fruit trees and bushes, and flowering shrubs. If you get more in the fall, compost it in layers with the fresh discarded refuse from the garden. Soak well each layer and by spring you will have good humus for use in spring planting or for spreading on surface of vegetable garden for planting and sowing.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

If growing own biennials, prepare the spaces early and have the Brompton stocks and wallflowers in place during early September. The better the plants are this fall, the better flowers in spring.

Azaleas for indoor winter bloom should be repotted into one size larger without disturbing rootball. Use peatty compost or leafmould, soak well, syringe foliage with water for few days before placing in sun to ripen and form buds. Leave outdoors until October.

Clean out greenhouse in preparation for returning plants next month. Wash, paint and repair glass or plastic.

Turn compost heap. Water each layer. This will be ready for use in fall plantings. Start a new heap as material becomes available — don't mix it with the half-decomposed.

Runner and bush beans need picking at least twice weekly, even though not sufficient for needs at one time. Production will increase only if pods are picked.

Figs need to be picked and eaten as soon as fully ripe — if there are any this year. Many of the first crop were killed in the late May frost.

Don't neglect watering of the vegetables still growing and the perennials still to bloom.

Sheep Replaced By Lawn Mowers

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Lawn mowers have changed a lot since the late 18th century when sheep were used to crop the spacious turf areas around Washington's Mount Vernon, Jefferson's Monticello and the stately homes of England.

Today's whirlwind rotary mowers do more than just mow the lawn: they also pick up and bag grass clippings, leaves, twigs and other debris and trim around walks and drives, reports Toro Manufacturing Corporation.

LIKE WORMS

The average robin requires about 70 earthworms or the equivalent for each day's food.

Can You Say That In Real Estate?

NEW YORK (UPI) — You don't have to be a legal expert, but if you're thinking about buying or selling a home it's a good idea to brush up on some of the basic legal language used in real estate transactions.

"Most of the legal terms used for real estate transactions are simple and almost self-explanatory," says Bill Herbert, building specialist for Allied Chemical's Barrett Division. "They have developed over the centuries and have become explicit in their meanings. Because they are so specific, once understood, they usually serve to clarify rather than obscure real estate transactions."

For the benefit of the potential homeowner, Herbert has compiled the following glossary of the more common real estate legal terms:

Assessed Value — The estimated worth of a piece of property as ascertained by an authorized appraising agency.

Certificate of Occupancy — A statement signed by a building authority certifying that a structure meets all the requirements set forth in existing building codes for the area.

Deed — A written document by means of which real property is transferred.

Easement — The right or privilege of a person, other than the owner or tenant, to use a piece of property.

Eminent Domain — The right of a governmental body to condemn and-or acquire property for public use.

Encumbrance — A claim against a piece of property that lessens its value but does not prevent it from being transferred, sold or deeded to someone by the owner. Typical encumbrances are taxes, mortgages, and judgements. These are known as liens. Easements are also encumbrances, but are not liens.

Equity — The value, usually expressed in terms of money, of a piece of property, over and above all liens.

Real Property — This term is synonymous and used interchangeably with real estate and includes not only the land, but buildings, fences, sidewalks and other improvements on the land. Real property also includes all water within the property boundaries and all minerals, ores and oils in natural deposit beneath the surface of the land.

Title — Evidence of ownership.

Warranty Deed — A guarantee that the title the property owner transfers to a buyer has not been given previously to someone else, and that the property being transferred is free of all previous claims and debts, except as noted in the bill of sale, mortage or deed.

Key Word Is Comfort

The influence is international, the key word comfort in furniture fashions that herald an era of elegance in seasons ahead.

Canadian furniture manufacturers are looking to the Mediterranean for warm colors and rich textures; to the Orient for crisp, slim lines; to the French countryside for a multiplicity of patterns—and to Canada for inspiration.

While variety is the spice of cessful decorating a tricky life, such a wide choice of furniture styles makes successful decorating a tricky business.

What goes with what, mixing and matching of patterns, wood tones, furniture styles, all present a problem to the average decorator who wants to re-do a room or her entire home.

To serve as a guide in successful decorating, several prominent Canadian firms have joined forces to create decorator-designed room settings for the average Canadian home.

Now you can have all the benefits of How "International Electric Hot-Water heat" works . . .

Electric heating element heats water which circulates up into finned tube to provide heat when and where needed at all times. Electrical limit control maintains absolutely safe water temperatures. Expansion air chamber allows for expansion of heated water. All copper tubing is used, permanently sealed so that additional water is never required.

You must see for yourself one of the most remarkable advances in home heating ever achieved by the heating industry. Bring measurements of rooms, plans of home, and let us discuss your heating problem with you. You will discover why International Hot Water Electric Heat can give you the healthful Winter living comfort you've always hoped for.

SEND FOR FREE BROCHURE NO. F344
Now you can have the full story of electric heating—why it has been so costly to use in the past—and why utilities throughout the nation are finding that International hot water electric heat without plumbing is so remarkable in holding its heat steady and uniform just where it's needed so that homes can now be heated at such surprisingly low cost. There is no cost or obligation, of course.

This is the way to build a house!

Dueck homes are built the way the automobile industry builds cars — with precision-manufactured factory components, instead of by old-fashioned cut-and-fit methods.

Wall sections, interior partitions, roof trusses, gable ends come to you factory pre-assembled. You close in your home quickly — sometimes in a single day!

Windows are pre-installed, doors pre-hung, kitchen cabinets pre-finished. The hard work is done for you at the factory.

And like today's automobile, your Dueck home is better built, too. It's the strongest timber frame house yet developed.

Send for exciting new Plan Book showing 45 homes in full color, complete with floor plans. There's a Dueck home to match your family's needs.

JOHNSON AND GUIDELINES

Once More with Feeling: 'Please Try Restraint'

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—President Johnson attempted this week to infuse new life into his badly mauled price and wage guides, shattered by the steel price increase and the airlines strike settlement.

Johnson appealed at his press conference to U.S. business and labor to exercise "self-restraint."

He said it "may be that the government will have to take other measures but we aren't ready to recommend them at this time."

Johnson noted that since 1960 wages have increased 17 per cent and profits 83 per cent, compared with a 10 per cent rise in prices.

"As long as we can keep wages and profits up that much," he said, "we realize there will be some increase in prices."

Johnson also said his administration wants "as low interest rates as it possibly can have."

GET MORE INCREASES

Meanwhile, some more prices were raised and the cost of some loans advanced.

Paperboard box makers boosted prices an average of five per cent—their third increase in a year.

Owens - Illinois, Inc., raised prices of 60 per cent of its glass containers by an average of three per cent, effective Oct. 1. Industry executives said they expected other producers to follow.

Several lending institutions, led by General Motors Acceptance Corp., increased the interest charged car dealers to finance automobile inventories.

GMA boosted its rate to 6¼ per cent from six per cent. Chase Manhattan Bank, New York City's largest bank, and First National City Bank, the second largest, raised their rates to 6½ per cent from 6 per cent.

LIVING COSTS UP

The cost of living continued to rise sharply in July, the labor department reported. The consumer price index climbed to 113.3 per cent of the 1957-59 average, up 0.4 from the previous record of 112.9 per cent reached in June.

Machine tool orders, a key economic indicator, slipped in July 15 per cent from the June level to their lowest total for any month this year.

REACTION TO RAIL TIE-UP

Strike Slugs Prices

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The countrywide railway strike Friday sent prices plunging on Canada's stock markets, depressing further already weak stock prices.

At Toronto, the industrial index, an indicator of key stocks movement, plummeted 3.19 to 146.87 on the week after touching 146.73, lowest since April 2, 1964.

Spokesmen for Canada's mining industry said the strike will cut out ore shipments to the United States.

Massey - Ferguson, major farm - machinery maker, said the strike will be a serious blow and could result in substantial losses due to the drop in export business to the U.S.

However, there wasn't any panic selling on the market as only 13,231,925 shares changed hands compared with 13,350,862 last week.

IN SIXTH MONTH

The slump is well into its sixth month and analysts cite lack of leadership from the New York exchange, uncertainty about the international situation and higher interest rates as causes—with the rail strike an added factor.

A market rally Wednesday was described as technical, resulting from an oversold position.

Analysts say there have been no recent developments to stimulate the market and many feel the situation could drag on for some time.

Trans - Canada Pipe Lines tumbled 4⅝ to 27⅛. It touched a low of 26¾ following federal government rejection of the company's bid to build an east-west pipe line with a section passing south of the Great Lakes through the U.S.

Massey-Ferguson lost 3⅞ to a low of 27½ despite a sharp increase in the company's nine-month earnings. CPR dropped 2½ to 55 and Ford of Canada 7¾ to 138¼.

HIT LOWS FOR YEAR

Issues that dropped to lows for the year included General Motors, off 4 to 77, Bank of Nova Scotia 3 to 63 and Toronto-Dominion Bank 1 to 56 after being down to 55½.

Golds suffered the largest drop on index, sliding 9.21 to 172.60. Dome declined 5⅛ to 46½, Campbell Red Lake 3 to 25 and Giant Yellowknife ⅝ to 11½.

Among base metals, Inco retreated 1¾ to a low of 85½, Rio-Algom 1⅝ to 22⅝, Noranda 1¼ to 48¾ and Hudson Bay 3½ to 71½. Most Mining companies rely on the railways to transport ore.

Scurry Rainbow paced the western oil group lower, diving 5⅝ to 21⅞. Home A was off 2 to 20, Banff 1¼ to 11⅛ and Dome ⅜ to 17½.

Car Insurance Probe Resumes On Sept. 19

The British Columbia Royal Commission on automobile insurance will hold public hearings in Vancouver commencing Sept. 19.

The hearings will be held in Courtroom No. 2 of the Small Debts Court, 914 Howe Street, and will likely last several weeks.

Mr. Justice R. A. B. Wootton, chairman of the commission, has invited representations on all respects of auto insurance covered by the wide terms of reference given to the commission.

Representations are expected from individuals, based on personal experipence; from representatives of the insurance industry; and from lawyers.

Sitting on the commission with Mr. Justice Wootton are Dr. Peter Lusztig of Vancouver and Charles E. S. Walls of Victoria.

WE CAN'T OFFER A 100% SAFE INVESTMENT

. . . and nor can anyone else!

"SAFE" infers a guarantee that there is no risk of loss. Well, when you really stop and think about it, there is nothing that secure. On the other hand, carefully chosen investments can reduce the risk to a very low point, and this is what the prudent investor should be interested in . . for company "guarantees" can only be as good as the company's assets.

The assurance of small risk can be better obtained by getting the facts behind the company with whom you are considering investing, a study of the company's assets should tell you whether or not the directors are handling funds in a manner you readily can recognize as sound. If you have any doubt, DON'T TAKE ON THE INVESTMENT!

Furthermore, size or age of the company does not always insure against loss. An exceptionally large company in the East went under recently—it was formed over 70 years ago! It is reported the shareholders, who had little knowledge of the company's business, were shocked to learn that one of the bad debts, alone over a half-million dollars, was made to an individual on a Promissory Note, WITH NO SECURITY!

Make the facts speak for themselves! There is little cash value in the words "safe," "guaranteed" or "secure," when a company liquidates.

Apple Orchard Tabbed As Truck Plant Site

KELOWNA (CP)—An apple orchard off a motel-lined highway will become the site of a $4,000,000 industrial development in this Okanagan Valley city.

White Trucks, a division of the White Motor Corp. of Cleveland, Ohio, will build a truck assembly plant designed to serve the western regions of both Canada and the U.S.

The arrival of White Trucks in this primarily agricultural district is the biggest industrial boost for the Okanagan since the federal government designated it one of the areas to benefit under the 1965 Area Development Incentives Act.

The legislation encourages industry to locate in designated areas by allowing a federal grant of one-fifth the cost of plant and equipment on capital investments between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000.

A one-third grant is allowed on investments of up to $250,000.

In addition, companies locating in one of the 65 areas are given a three-year tax holiday and accelerated depreciation allownaces on machinery, equipment and buildings.

SAW VANCOUVER

White Trucks studied potential plant sites in the Vancouver area before deciding to located here.

It cost the company—109th in the list of leading U.S. manufacturers last year—$27,000 to buy 13.6 acres of a 160-acre incustrial park from city council. Buildings covering more than 100,000 square feet are scheduled to be ready by the end of the year.

The first trucks are scheduled to roll from the assembly line by March 31, 1967. Close to 150 persons will be employed at the plant, which has a production aim of from eight to 10 trucks a day.

MAYOR LAUDS PROJECT

Mayor R. F. Parkinson says of the new plant:

"It is just the sort of industry we want here. . . . No smoke or pollution problems but a year-round industry. I think we are just seeing the start of industrial development here."

Norman H. Bell, president of White Motor Company of Canada Ltd., said that when the company had considered sites on the West Coast in both the U.S. and Canada.

"Canada was chosen because of the benefits of the U.S.-Canada auto agreement," he said. "Kelowna was chosen because it is a designated area."

Looks Like Big Year For Soviet Wheat

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet wheat crop this year looks like a near record, experienced observers said Friday.

The good crop is coming in after the Soviet Union took out insurance by buying 3,800,000 metric tons of wheat abroad for delivery during the next 12 months. It probably now will be used to bolster long-depleted reserves.

The observers predicted a harvest this year of 70,000,000 tons or more of wheat, according to Soviet methods of calculation. Western-wheat weighing leaves out a lot of trash and moisture, thus running 15 to 20 per cent below the Soviet calculations.

Last year the wheat harvest was 56,600,000 tons by official figures. The record was 74,200,000 in 1964.

CROP BAD IN 1965

The bad crop last year contributed to a total grain harvest officially reported at 120,000,000 tons. The observers say it might be 135,000,000 to 140,000,000 now.

The main factor in the improvement has been good weather. But a factor growing in importance over recent years is increased use of fertilizer. Higher government payments for bumper crops is also a factor.

The Soviet Union is estimated to need about 69,000,000 tons of wheat for its basic requirements. A 70,000,000 crop now would enable reserves to be built up a little from domestic production as well as imports.

The reserve is kept secret but observers estimate only about 10,000,000 tons of wheat in it now. This is one-seventh of a year's requirements, compared with U.S. policy of keeping a full year's needs in reserve.

Consolidated net income for the first half of 1966 was $1,063,287, equivalent to 46 cents a share. Net income for the first six months of 1965 was $847,160, or 37 cents a share.

Revenues for the six-month period rose to $11,588,563 for the first half of 1966, from $8,671,289 reported revenues for the same period last year.

The board of directors announced a quarterly dividend of 22½ cents a share Aug. 18, 1966, an increase of 2½ cents. The dividend is payable Oct. 1, 1966, to stockholders of record Sept. 6, 1966.

Split Widens

VANCOUVER (CP) — A split between the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and its Vancouver local widened this week when it was revealed that members have elected supporters of deposed business agent Art O'Keefe to executive positions. Local 213 rebelled several months ago when Mr. O'Keefe was suspended for 15 years by William Ladyman, Canadian president vice-president of the union.

"Scalp tension, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says trichologist M. D. Harrison to balding man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists, whose main office is in Vancouver. He is sending a specialist here to advise men how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by experts here Monday and Tuesday

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness — and growing thicker hair—will be demonstrated in Victoria this Monday and Tuesday, August 29 and 30.

This news was released here today by M. D. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In his announcement, Harrison named staff trichologist John Arthur to conduct the Victoria clinic. Arthur will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday at the Hotel Sussex.

Examine You Free

"I want to make it clear that you incur no charge or obligation by seeing Mr. Arthur," director Harrison said.

"Your only obligation is to yourself—to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home treatment, we will frankly tell you so. But less than five per cent of the people we examine are 'hopeless'."

Offers No Cure-All

Harrison emphasized that his new home treatment is neither "mail-order" nor "cure-all."

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no one cure-all that will correct every one of the 18 scalp disorders that cause most baldness."

Harrison said that sometimes your treatment must be changed after a few weeks to get best results. "For this reason, you mail regular reports of your hair progress to the Harrison headquarters in Vancouver.

"Also, your scalp condition is checked personally by a Harrison trichologist at regular intervals."

Who Can Be Helped?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No," said Harrison sincerely. "We cannot help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

The important thing is: Don't wait until it's too late!

Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth behind it. Harrison and his staff trichologists do extension work in more than 100 other cities.

Leonard A. Floyd before and after scalp treatment. Unretouched photographs made four months apart.

Satisfy 95%

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do," declared Harrison. "We satisfy more than 95 per cent of our clients, and have records to prove it."

"But to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is sometimes difficult. He's usually quite desperate—and baldish—by the time he nerves himself to see a Harrison trichologist. He's 'tried everything.' So he starts consoling himself with one of the old superstitions about hair:

That baldness is hereditary; that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years; that nothing can be done to stop hair loss—and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today."

Free Scalp Examination

See Mr. Arthur in person. Learn how baldness can be stopped, and new hair grown on your own scalp. The new Harrison method permits you to actually stop your baldness and regrow hair in the privacy of your own home.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk at the Hotel Sussex Monday or Tuesday between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. Arthur's suite number.

You don't need an appointment. You won't be embarrassed or obligated in any way. Examinations are given in private.

Friendly Rivals Keep Insisting On Swim Trade

VANCOUVER (CP) — Friendly rivalry, explains coach Alex Bulley, keeps two leading South African women swimmers performing so well.

Ann Fairlie, 17, and Karen Muir, 13, Friday traded the world 110-yard backstroke record for the third time this year. Miss Fairlie took possession.

The Johannesburg girl was timed at 1:07.9 in the final at the British Columbia centennial swim meet, a tenth of a second better than the standard held by Miss Muir, of Kimberley, since February. Miss Muir finished second Friday.

It was the fifth world record set at the four-day outdoor meet and the second Friday. Greg Charlton, 18, of Los Angeles, steamed to a mark of 4:12.2 in the men's 440-yard freestyle preliminaries.

Four Canadian open marks also fell Friday, two in 440-yard medley relay events.

KEEP CHANGING RECORD

The battle for the backstroke title has been going on for eight months. Miss Muir set a mark of 1:08.7 last year. Miss Fairlie had 1:08.6 in January. In February, Miss Muir cut it to 1:08.

Charlton clipped 2.8 seconds from the former world mark, established earlier this year by Robert Windle of Australia.

Sue Jones, 18, of Santa Clara, set a Canadian open record in the 220-yard breaststroke at 2:49.1, some 5.2 seconds better than the previous standard established by Cynthia Goyette of Detroit.

Ken Marten, 21, of Dallas, swimming for a Los Angeles club, set an open mark of 2:35.3 in the men's 220 breaststroke, 3.3 seconds better than the mark of Bill Mahoney of Vancouver, whose 2:38.6 stands as the Canadian native record.

The only Canadian to win a final Friday was Elaine Tanner, 15, of Vancouver. Her time of 2:32.8 in the 220-yard butterfly was 2.9 seconds behind her world and Canadian record.

CUT OPEN MARK

The Los Angeles Athletic Club entry cut the Canadian open mark in the 440-yard medley relay to 4:16 from 4:21.7. They defeated the Vancouver UMCA squad, which retired the 4:21.7 as a native record.

The Santa Clara women's team set an open mark of 4:54.1 in the 440 medley relay. They were beaten by South Africa but only a club, not a national team, takes the mark. The old standard was 4:57.7.

Dianne Ludorf of Johannesburg won the women's 440 freestyle in 4:49.2, some 2.4 seconds ahead of Jane Hughes of Vancouver, former holder of the world 880-yard freestyle record.

Brian Stewart of Pretoria, South Africa, won the men's 110-yard backstroke final, finishing in 1:04.4, a fifth of a second ahead of Canadian record holder Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, B.C.

Phil Houser of Los Angeles won the men's 220-yard butterfly in 2:12.1 and Luis de Rivera of Mexico the three-metre springboard diving final with 518.85 points.

The meet ends today.

Another Mind Change Says Smith Won Race

Remember that classic comedy sketch of Abbott and Costello's . . . "Who's on First . . . What's on Second . . . etc?"

Stock car racing officials in Edmonton tried to match it, but neither Al Smith of Victoria or Seattle's Norm Ellefson find any humor in it

Amid great lap-counting confusion, Smith was declared winner of Wednesday's 50-mile Gold Cup race. They placed Ellefson in second and Ron Porter of Boise, Idaho, third.

Somebody shifted minds Thursday. No, they said, Ellefson won it. Porter was second and that Smith boy was third.

Friday came, and so did another change. Percy Booth, manager of Edmonton's Speedway Park, said the original decision stands. To wit: 1. Smith; 2. Ellefson; 3. Porter.

The confusion all began when Ellefson appeared to overtake Smith with about four laps to go. It was first thought that Ellefson had lapped the Victoria driver, but an official count of laps proved Ellefson to be a lap behind.

Neill Hopes To See Esks Lick Stamps

By CANADIAN PRESS

Neill Armstrong of Edmonton Eskimos hasn't seen his players lick a Stamp since he took over as head coach in 1963.

He's tired of waiting, and hopes Calgary Stampeders will be thoroughly licked by the time a Western Fotball Conference game ends in Edmonton tonight.

Eskimos could use a victory to climb into a tie with Saskatchewan Roughriders for second place in the five-team conference. Riders meet B.C. Lions in Vancouver Sunday.

According to the networks concerned, the game in Edmonton will be televised on Channels 2 and 6 at 8 p.m. (PDT). The Saskatchewan-B.C. game Sunday afternoon will be telecast only by Cablevision to Victoria, but will be broadcast by CKNW (1280) on radio.

Koufax the Colossal After Another Record

Pirates Edge Into First As Giants Blanked 4-0

By United Press

Koufax the Colossal is well on his way to one of the greatest records of sustained excellence in baseball history.

The multi-award winning southpaw, who has done everything that can be asked of a pitcher, and then some, is spearheading Los Angeles Dodgers' drive to a National League pennant repeat and is enroute to another earned run average title for himself—a record fifth straight.

Sandy was sensational and nothing less Friday night as he shut out San Francisco 4-0 on four hits for his 21st victory, dropping the Giants to second place, a half game behind Pittsburgh, and boosting the third-place Dodgers to within 1½ games of the lead.

AVERAGE SHRINKS

The whitewash also reduced the stylish lefthander's ERA to a shrinking 1.62, far better than runnerup Juan Marichal's 2.16.

A pitcher's won-lost record can be deceiving, but the ERA crown is baseball's true barometer for effectiveness.

Koufax (21-7) has worn the matle each of the last four years — a National League standard — and can surpass Lefty Grove of the Philadelphia Athletics (1929-32), the only other four-in-a-row winner, to become the first man ever to dominate the award for half a decade by taking the 1966 title.

The Pirates took advantage of Los Angeles' fifth consecutive triumph to slip back into first place with a 7-4 win over St. Louis. Elsewhere, Cincinnati defeated Philadelphia 2-0, Atlanta stopped New York 6-3, and Houston topped Chicago 7-4 for a double header sweep after taking a 9-8 decision in the completion of a game suspended earlier this season.

In the American League, Baltimore beat Boston 3-2 in 12 innings, New York nipped Detroit 6-5, Washington edged Cleveland 1-0; Minnesota trimmed Chicago 7-4, and California defeated Knasas City 5-4.

HE WAS CAUTIOUS

There was no trace of any arm ailment in Koufax' performance but the majors' first 21-game winner claimed he was a little cautious.

"My elbow still hurts when I try throwing curves," he said, "so I depended mostly on my fast ball."

San Francisco starter Bob Bolin, who fanned the first five batters he faced, Matched Koufax' shutout pitching for seven innings before the Dodgers batted around in the eighth to score four runs.

A walk, a sacrifice and Ron Fairly's single broke the scoreless tie and, after another walk, John Roseboro singled across the second run. Lou Johnson's double drove in the third run and Koufax' sacrifice fly made it 4-0.

LARGEST CROWD

A crowd of 42,647, largest of the season at Candlestick Park, saw Sandy strike out seven men for a career total of 2,340 pushing him past Early Wynn into eighth place on the all-time list.

Pittsburgh roughed up four St. Louis pitchers for 17 hits, four by Roberto Clemente and three each from Gene Alley and Jim Pagliarone, including the latter's 11th home run. The Pirates gave winning pitcher Woody Fryman (10-8) a 6-0 lead in the first six innings but Pete Mikkelsen had to come out of the bullpen for the last two outs after Charlie Smith homered in the ninth.

CAMPBELL, TOE BLAKE ENTER HALL OF FAME

CLARENCE CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (UPI) — Clarence S. Campbell, president of the National Hockey League for the past 20 years, and Hector (Toe) Blake, who has coached the Montreal Canadiens to six Stanley Cup championships, are among 10 men who were inducted today into the Hockey Hall of Fame.

The group is the largest to be inducted into the Hall of Fame at one time since the original opening ceermony in August, 1961, and will bring to 158 the number of former players, referees and builders who have been named to hockey's highest honor.

Others inducted today included former players Max Bentley, Emile Bouchard, Frankie Brimsek, Ted Kennedy, Elmer Lach, Ted Lindsay, Walter Pratt and Ken Reardon.

Draft Formula Session Stalls on Tax Problem

TORONTO (CP) — A $1,000,000 tax problem stalled a special meeting Friday of the National Hockey League called to deal with a player draft formula for the NHL's projected expansion to 12 teams from six in the 1967-68 season.

That's the estimated amount of money each team stands to lose — or gain —in gearing their operation for maximum relief under United States and Canadian tax laws.

"There is no precedent for what we're trying to do," NHL president Clarence Campbell said after the meeting ended without a formula.

The problem was tossed back into the laps of the formula committee, headed by Sam Pollock, general manager of Montreal Canadiens, to provide recommendations for another meeting here Sept .21.

One problem is that the U.S. has a capital gains tax but Canada hasn't. Another is that five of the current six teams "expense" their players — put a lump-sum value on them — while the other team "capitalizes" its players so they have a tax depreciation value. The new teams can't decide which is best.

The six new entries are Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, St. Louis, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Minneapolis.

Involved in the expansion — for the new teams — is a total of $12,000,000 cash in franchises and $50,000,000 in capital expenditures.

Vancouver Club Finds Victory Is Impossible

TORONTO (CP)—A Vancouver team that paid $4,000 to get here for the Canadian women's softball championship can't possibly win the title and the right to represent Canada next year at the Pan-American Games.

The championship final has been scheduled for 7:30 Sunday night and the Starettes are booked on a plane that leaves at 7:05. The team tried to make later flight arrangements but cannot get seats on a plane because of the rail strike.

TURNED DOWN

The 22-member team asked tournament organizers if the championship game could be played Sunday afternoon, but was turned down.

The Starettes said an exhibition between two losing teams is due Sunday afternoon. The organizers said it will stay there because Sunday night is "our best gate."

Last-inning rallies Friday gave two Ontario teams victories—Fort Erie with seven runs in the 7th to beat Edmonton 7-1, Toronto with two to defeat Saskatoon 2-0. Vancouver and Winnipeg clashed today.

TRAINING CAMP IN PARK . . .

. . . MAY BE MOVED

'Sloppy' Skiers Attract Bears

NELSON (CP) — Provincial game department officers have recommended that Canada's national ski team take its summer training camp out of Kokanee Glacier Park because "sloppy housekeeping" was attracting grizzly bears and resulting in harm to wildlife.

The recommendation has been made to the provincial department of recreation, game officers disclosed Friday. They said the team's summer camp could be located on another glacier in the general area.

The provincial parks branch last year revoked the permit of the ski team for use of Kokanee for not living up to conditions of the permit. But the team camped there again this year despite the fact the permit was not renewed.

Now, department officers reported, garbage was being left lying around the camp. This had attracted grizzly bears and had resulted in the necessity of killing two prime trophy yearling silvertip bears by game officer Ted Rutherglen.

Said Mr. Rutherglen in an interview; "Our wildlife should not be sacrificed in a park where they are valued by the majority as a tremendous asset, because of the incompetence of a few who wish to run summer ski courses."

There was no immediate reaction from ski team officials.

Lewis Calls Halt To Great Career

LEO LEWIS
. . . 'had to come'

WINNIPEG (CP)—Leo Lewis retired from the Western Football Conference Friday, deciding his battered legs could no longer set the pace that made him a great halfback.

Bothered by a painful left knee, from which a cyst had been removed during the off-season, Lewis had been used sparingly in five 1966 games.

"It had to come to an end some time," he said Friday after more than 10 years with Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Lewis' record: 19,383 offensive yards—8,869 rushing, 4,251 with pass receptions, 5,323 on kickoff returns, 919 passing, 75 touchdowns and seven all-star selections.

'THE BEST YET'

Said coach Bud Grant: "He was the best running back that I've ever seen. He had speed, power, could catch, block and throw.

"Film highlights of our games are highlights of Leo Lewis. The other stuff is just filler."

Lewis, 33, plans to return to the United States. He has a bachelor of science degree, is studying towards a masters degree in education and plans to investigate a job opening in Columbia, Mo.

Born in Des Moines, Iowa, Lewis came to Winnipeg in 1955 from a small college in Lincoln, Mo. An ankle injury forced him to sit out the 1956 campaign, but he returned to stay in 1957.

He gained all-star recognition in 1955, 1958, 1960, 1961, 1962 and 1964.

MOUNTIES TRY AGAIN

This time the Mounties hope to snap shackles on the "Stealers".

Each year since 1961, the Stealers — softball-playing inmates of William Head minimum security prison — are allowed off the grounds by authorities to play a challenge game against the RCMP.

It's been fun for the Stealers. They have won every year.

Mounties hope to end the string Sunday when the two teams clash for the Maple Leaf Trophy at Central Park, starting at 2 p.m.

Tom Rolled Into Final When Chips Were Down

CITY STANDOUT in soccer, baseball and basketball, former Oak Bay High student, Brian MacKenzie, has been awarded basketball scholarship by Simon Fraser University. Most valuable player in B.C. high school basketball tournament, MacKenzie also received $100 scholarship from B.C. High School Boys' Basketball Association earlier this year.

BRANDON (CP) — A British Columbia rookie eliminated an Ontario veteran on the 19th hole Friday to move into the finals of the Canadian junior golf championship.

Tom Moryson, 16, of Port Hammond, B.C., in his first national championship, brought a 30-foot chip shot to within two inches of the pin to eliminate Peter Turner, 18, of Toronto. Turner was Ontario champion in 1964.

That sent Moryson to today's 36-hole final against Wayne McDonald of Oakville, Ont., a two-time loser in national match play, who crushed Miles Saunders of Pembroke, Ont., 5 and 3 in a semi-final which he highlighted with a hole-in-one.

The hole-in-one, McDonald's first in 10 years of golf, came on the par-three 155-yard sixth hole at the Brandon Golf and Country Club. His six-iron shot hit the green two feet to the right of the pin and spun in.

DEFEATED TROWBRIDGE

McDonald reached the semi-final with a 5 and 4 win over Ken Trowbridge of Brampton, Ont., in the morning's quarter-final round.

Turner made the semi-final by eliminating Don Missere of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., on the 20th hole when Missere three-putted from 20 feet.

Moryson's quarter-final opponent, Fred Schmidt of London, Ont., lost 3 and 1.

Saunders had to go to the 20th hole to eliminate Ron Laitar of Brantford, Ont., in the quarter-final.

SEMI-FINALS

Tom Moryson, Port Hammond, defeated Peter Turner, Toronto, on 19th hole.

Wayne McDonald, Oakville, Ont., defeated Miles Saunders, Pembroke, Ont., 5 and 3.

QUARTER-FINALS

Moryson defeated Fred Schmidt, London, Ont., 3 and 1.

McDonald defeated Ken Trowbridge, Brampton, Ont., 5 and 4.

Holford Sparks Indies

LEICESTER, England (Reuters)—A fine bowling display by legspinner David Holford paved the way for the West Indians to sweep to a seven-wicket victory over Leicestershire in a three-day match that ended Friday.

Leicestershire, 126 for one overnight, was out for 207 in its second innings, an hour before lunch, with Holford taking six wickets for 68.

AWFUL START

This left the visitors four hours and 20 minutes in which to score the 153 required for victory. After a disastrous start, in which they lost Captain Conrad Hunte without a run scored, they raced to victory with one hour and 25 minutes to spare.

Rohan Kanhai rolled up a score of 62, and when he was bowled by Jack Birkenshaw, Joey Carew took over the aggressive role, to finish with 42.

JUNIOR ROYALS TEST VICETTES

Victoria Molson's Vicettes senior women's softball team will play an exhibition game against Esquimalt Royals, Island junior women's champions, Sunday at 6:30 at Central Park.

This will be Vicettes' last game before taking part in the B.C. senior women's tournament at Vancouver during the Labor Day weekend.

The provincial tourney, which opens Saturday, Sept. 3 and winds up Monday, Sept. 5, includes teams from Nelson, Kamloops, Prince George and Vancouver North Shore.

AT GAME CLUB RANGE

Chance for Hunters To Sight in Rifles

Only thoughtless or cruel hunters start a deer-shooting season without making sure their rifles are properly adjusted. Every season many animals are cripples and clean kills missed because of failure to sight in rifles.

Hunters who wish to ensure weapons are sighted in for the coming season are again invited to attend "sight in for a buck" days at the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association range.

Expert riflemen from the game club will be available to help sportsmen adjust sights at the Esquimalt Lagoon range during the next two Sundays — Aug. 28 and Sept. 4.

The charge is $1 per rifle and range chairman Bob Kirk and his experts guarantee to sight in rifles with a minimum expenditure of ammunition.

Sportsmen must supply their own ammunition and are advised to shoot with the type they will be using in the field, since different types of shells produce different points of impact.

Shooting on both days will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Colts Rebound To Clip Browns

CLEVELAND (AP) — Baltimore Colts stormed from behind in the second half behind quarterback Gary Couzzo Friday night to beat Cleveland Browns 24-17 in the second half of a National Football League exhibition doubleheader before 83,418 fans.

The first game went to Minnesota Vikings 30-27 over Washington Redskins.

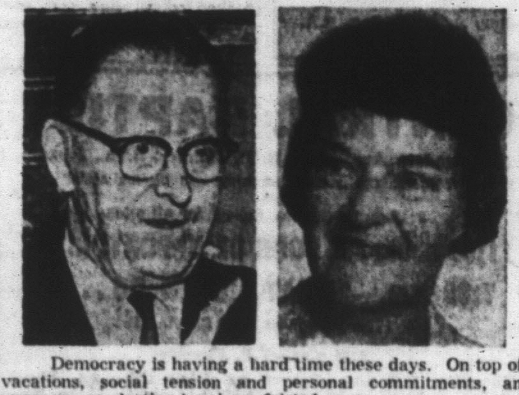
Our Candidates Say . . .



Democracy is having a hard time these days. On top of vacations, social tension and personal commitments, an unnecessary election has been foisted on us.

The New Democratic Party is ready for the election, but the timing is bad. The Premier's cheesesparing decision to allow the shortest time for the campaign and his disregard for the electorate, to whom the election should belong, are widely resented. If elections belong to the voters, their convenience should be consulted. But, as James Nesbitt, Legislative reporter for the Vancouver Sun, has put it, "The Premier has called a general election only for his own personal reasons." This indicates the arrogant position he has assumed.

Public confidence in the government is slipping. When visiting nearly 200 Victoria homes, in the last few days, we found increasing disappointment and disillusionment with government policies.

On the other hand, the consistently high level of N.D.P. policy has commended itself to serious-minded people in all walks of life. This recognition has been given by the press and by many who do not support our policy. By adopting some N.D.P. policies, even the Government has had to show that it recgnizes their worth. But it has not absorbed their spirit, for it handles socialistic public enterprises like capitalist ventures. Mr. Bennett has said, "B.C. does not want straight Socialism." We think most voters prefer N.D.P. "straight"-ness to the devious sinuosities and double talk associated with Socred smoke-screen tactics.

IF YOU WANT A GOVERNMENT WHICH PUTS YOUR NEEDS FIRST, WE COMMEND TO YOUR APPROVAL THE SOUND, SENSIBLE, DIRECT PROGRAM OF THE NEW DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

In Victoria vote for us . . .

HAROLD T. ALLEN,
DORCAS H. BLAIR

If you live in another constituency, vote for the N.D.P. candidate there.

Identical Twins Preach Gospel

Twin brothers, almost identical, are preaching the gospel for the Free Methodist Church of North America.

One, Rev. Everet Seymour, has charge of the church at Sedro-Wolley, Washington. The other, Rev. Ezra Seymour, has just taken over the Free Methodist church at 1610 Cook Street, Victoria.

They are so much alike that when Rev. Ezra Seymour preached at his brother's church a member of the congregation came up to him and said:

"Why don't you come and see me like you used to?"

"I've never been here before" Mr. Seymour replied. "You must be thinking of my brother."

COVERED WAGON

They were born in what Mr. Seymour calls a sod house in Nebraska and travelled to Wyoming with their parents and five brothers and sisters in a covered wagon.

"Later we settled at Snohomish, Washington," Mr. Seymour said, "and it was there that my twin brother and I became interested in preaching the gospel."

The brothers studied theology at Seattle Pacific College before entering the ministry. Ezra Seymour was pastor of Methodist churches at Day Creek and Bothell and preached extensively in the Skagit Valley.

FROM ANACORTES

For the past five years, he has been minister of the Free Methodist Church at Anacortes.

"This is my first appointment in Canada," Mr. Seymour said, "and my wife and I are looking forward to our ministry in Victoria."

He will conduct services in the Victoria church Sunday morning and evening. Preacher at the morning service will be Rev. Forest Bush, conference superintendent of the Free Methodist Church.

Mr. Seymour will preach at the evening worship on Greater Love Hath No Man.

"I try to get along with all Christian churches," he said. "We may have different ideas of church worship, but we should all be one in our propagation of the Gospel. It was never more needed than in the world of today."

MILESTONE FOR CHURCH

St. Paul's Garrison Church, Esquimalt, is celebrating its 100th birthday this weekend.

A garden party is being held in the Commodore's residence at HMC Dockyard this afternoon, with an art exhibit, a Punch and Judy show, home cooking, games of chance, stage entertainment, games and tea.

The rector, Rev. J. Anthony Roberts, will conduct an anniversary service in the church Sunday morning.

60 Hours of Rain

DACCA, East Pakistan (UPI) —A non-stop deluge of rain for 60 hours brought disastrous flooding Thursday to Chittagong district, affecting an estimated 1.5 million persons.

Contemptibles At Service

Victoria's Old Contemptibles will attend the 11 a.m. service in Christ Church Cathedral.

They belong to a select group of First World War soldiers who were serving in France as early as November, 1914.

The Old Contemptibles Association gets its title from the German Kaiser's reference to General French's "contemptible little army" in August, 1914.

Canon George Biddle, chaplain of the Victoria branch, will read the lesson.

Quartet Sings

Peggy Walton-Packard will sing The King of Love My Shepherd Is in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Sunday evening. A quartet consisting of Miss Packard, Eleanor Duff, John Bell and David Conrad will be heard at both services.

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

Restrictive Laws For Divorce Topic

What's wrong with Canada's divorce laws?

Rev. Albert E. King will tackle this much-vexed subject in the pulpit of Metropolitan United Church Sunday evening.

"I shall consider the spiritual aspects of divorce in general," he said, "and then I shall discuss the very restrictive divorce laws we have in Canada."

Mr. King's sermon will also be heard by the congregation of First United which will join the Sunday evening service in Metropolitan.

Choral evensong will be sung in Christ Church Cathedral at 4 p.m. Sunday by 38 boys from the Diocesan Choir School at Shawnigan Lake.

The music will include Stanford in C; Stone's setting of the Lord's Prayer and three anthems — If We Believe That Jesus Died: O Lord, Thou hast searched me out and the 23rd Psalm.

The closing hymn will be Vaughan Williams' famous setting of the Old 100th, All People that on Earth do Dwell.

The cathedral's usual 7:30 p.m. evensong has been cancelled.

Continuing his series on the theme How To Be Happy, Rev. Norman K. Archer will speak at Stevenson and Emmanuel Baptist churches Sunday morning.

"I shall discuss the various reasons why people lose the joy of living and why so many become depressed and disappinted," Mr. Archer says.

Florence Niedermann and Vera Pedlow will sing a duet.

At the evening service in Emmanuel church, Mr. Archer will give the 10th and concluding sermon on The Early Church.

"I shall explain some of the secrets of the phenomenal growth of the first Christian church, and apply those same principles to the 20th-century situation," he said.

The choir will sing Grant Us Thy Peace and Out of the Deep.

Returning from vacation, Rev. Harold Allen will speak on The Turning Point in James Bay United Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

"I shall consider the experience of man in his turning to the more hopeful ways God has purposed for humanity," Mr. Allen said.

During vacation he attended the Northwest Missions Conference at Willamette University, Salem Oregon, as a delegate of the Victoria presbytery, United Church of Canada.

"There was a record registration of 250 from B.C., Washington and Oregon," Mr. Allen reported.

Pastor Lloyd Mackey will speak on The Lukewarm Church at the 11:15 a.m. service in Parkdale Evangelical Free Church, 3280 Harriet Rd.

In the evening, the congregation will join the open-air service at the bandshell in Beacon Hill Park.

A farewell fellowship hour for Rev. and Mrs. Robin Salters at St. Andrew's Church Sunday evening has been cancelled due to the national rail strike.

Mr. and Mrs. Salters are by bus today for Montreal, where they will sail for Ireland aboard the liner Carinthia.

On leave of absence from the Irish Presbyterian Church in Belfast, Ireland, Mr. Salters has been assistant minister at St. Andrew's for the past year.

"We are very sorry to lose Mr. and Mrs. Salters," said Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean, DD, St. Andrew's minister, "and all our best wishes go with them."

Dr. McLean will conduct the morning and evening worship in St. Andrew's.

Hugh Robertson will share in the conduct of the 11 a.m. service in First United Church when Rev. Marvin Fowler will speak on Can You Love Yourself?

W. H. Gregory will sing The Holy City, with Mrs. Douglas L. Hunt as guest organist. The carillon will be played by Mrs. Henry Meyers.

In First Baptist Church Sunday morning, Rev. John A. Watson will speak on A Cloud of Witnesses.

At the evening worship, Rev. Dr. W. C. Smalley will take as his subject The Crowning of a Conqueror.

Soloist for the day is Doris Kroeger.

Dennis Oliver, a student for the ministry of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, will be guest preacher in Trinity Presbyterian Church Sunday morning.

A 1966 graduate of the University of Victoria, Mr. Oliver is leaving for Toronto next week to begin a three-year course of theological study at Knox College.

There will be a presentation to him after the morning service.

The final joint service of the summer season will be held Sunday in Wilkinson Road United Church beginning at 11 a.m.

Next week the congregations of Wilkinson and Garden City United churches will meet in their respective churches.

Rev. H. R. Whitmore Sunday will conclude his series of sermons on Lord, Teach Us How To Pray.

A Door of Opportunity will be the subject of Pastor Robert Holmes in Central Baptist Church Sunday at 11 a.m. There will be music by the Youth Choir, a ladies' trio and Margaret McKee, soloist.

Rev. and Mrs. Lester Laird, missionaries-elect to Japan, will speak at the prayer and praise meeting in the church next Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

LEAVING Victoria Sept. 11 is Rev. Robert D. Holmes, minister of Central Baptist Church since Jan. 1, 1960. He has been appointed minister of Temple Baptist Church, Sarnia, Ont. Mr. Holmes is a graduate of the Central Baptist Seminary in Toronto, and was pastor of Westboro Baptist Church, Ottawa, for eight years.

U.K. Youth 'Responsible'

British youth, with their long hair and beatnik dress, are just as responsive to the Gospel as American youth, writes evangelist Billy Graham in a circular letter to Victoria ministers and supporters.

Dr. Graham says his recent three-week London crusade became a youth crusade.

"On most nights more than 60 per cent of our audiences were under 25 years of age and on Youth Nights more than 70 per cent."

Dr. Graham said people he would consider in the beatnik class came forward at every service to pledge their acceptance of Christ.

"They came with their beards, their long, stringy hair, their mini-skirts and all the rest. Some thought the old Gospel of Christs' death of repentance, faith and conversation was irrelevant to the post-war affluent youth of modern Britain.

"How wrong they were!"

B.C. Deputy A-G Named President

MINAKI, Ont. (CP)—G. D. Kennedy of Victoria, deputy attorney-general for British Columbia, was elected president of the commissioners on uniformity of legislation in Canada at the annual conference which ended here Friday.

Next year's conference will be held in St. John's, Nfld.

There were 47 representatives of the federal and provincial governments attending the conference.

PAIR SUSPENDED FOR CONDEMNING ROLE OF STATE

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP)—New indications appear almost daily of an interesting struggle over religious freedom in the Soviet Union.

Step by step, as the drama unfolds, details are being brought out through an unusual intelligence operation of the National Council of Churches.

The latest disclosure is the text of a warning issued by Moscow's Patriarch Alexei, head of the Russian Orthodox Church, against public criticism of church authority in its relationship to the state.

Condemning "endeavors of some clergy and laity" to stir unrest about church and governmental policies, the patriarch said in an encyclical to all bishops:

"The distribution of all kinds of 'open letters' and articles must be definitely stopped. It is the duty of diocesan bishops to attend to this."

His directive came in response to a charge by two Moscow priests that the Russian church was becoming a tool of government. They have refused to withdraw their claims and have been suspended. Both have appealed to the church's synod of bishops. Patriarch Alexei said the synod will convene to hear their appeal.

Copies of their letter of protest, sent both to the patriarch and to Soviet President N. V. Podgorny, were made available in June by the national council's special unit. The unit keeps check on religious affairs by direct contacts and by combing through 100 Soviet, East European and Chinese periodicals.

Translations of documents and articles are issued in a twice-monthly bulletin, Religion in Communist Dominated Areas, edited by an expert on the subject, Dr. Paul Anderson.

"There is evidence of real dissent and ferment among clergy and lay people both in the Russian Orthodox Church and in the Russian Baptist Church," says Rev. Blahoslav Hruby, associate editor.

Although the bulletin, from its inception in 1962, was intended only for council use, Dr. Edwin Espy, council general secretary, recently announced it now is to be circulated more widely to supply information on "the struggle between religion and atheism" in Communist-governed areas.

The "open letters" of the two Moscow priests, Father Nikolas Eshliman and Father Gleb Yakunin, claimed that Russian Orthodox leadership—including the patriarch—had submitted to state infringements, and urged a vigorous reassertion of religious rights.

Subservience of church authorities, the priests wrote, is "aiding anti-religious agents in their efforts to destroy our holy church."

They particularly assailed the Soviet government's council on religious affairs, accusing it of overstepping its bounds, and using illegal pressures to violate constitutional religious rights.

They charged:

Government control over the naming of clergy; mass closing of churches and church schools; prevention of youth from participating in church services; requirements for state registration of all baptisms.

Registration papers are then "used by agents of anti-religious propaganda for coarse persecution of parents who baptized their children, and of those married in church," the priests said.

The patriarch promptly suspended the priests.

EX-B.C. MAN FEATURED

Leonard D. Crimp, a prominent member of the Canadian food industry, is featured speaker at the 25th biennial general conference of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada in Winnipeg today.

A long-time Pentecostal layman, Mr. Crimp began his business life as a salesman in Vancouver with the H. J. Heinz Co. of Canada and moved to Leamington, Ont., as vice-president of sales in 1957.

Open Air Services Ending

Last of the open-air gospel services in Beacon Hill Park will be conducted this Sunday at 7 p.m. by the Shantymen's Christian Association.

The Shantymen are famous for their missionary work around Vancouver Island and the Pacific west coast.

Percy Wills will give the gospel message and Pastor Lloyd Mackey of Parkdale Free Church will lead the singing, assisted by the Parkdale Youth Choir.

Jean Billister will be vocal soloist and Stewart Bell will give solos on the euphonium.

Witnesses to the faith will include a pathologist, a tourist, a housewife, a businessman, a wholesaler and a technician.

The open-air services have been sponsored for the past 24 years by the Victoria Committee, Christian Businessmen's Committee International.

"The response this year has been excellent," says George Inrig, chairman of the committee.

'Rejoice Evermore'

Christ Jesus is the subject of this week's Bible Lesson-Sermon to be read at Christian Science Church services on Sunday.

The Golden Text is a verse from I Thessalonians: "Rejoice evermore. Pray without ceasing. In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you."

Episodes from each of the four Gospels will be read, covering different aspecas of the life of Jesus, accompanied by selections from the denominational textbook.

THEY'VE HAD TROUBLES BEFORE

BUT THIS IS THE FIRST TIME THEY QUIT

Has the Proud Tory Party Tossed in the Towel?

By PETE LOUDON

Are the provincial Tories finished?

Is the grand old party of Sir Richard McBride that ruled the province from 1903 to 1916 and from 1928 to 1933, finally dead?

It's been on its knees before. But never in its history has the party come so close to abandoning the fight.

This week the Tories said they planned to field three, perhaps five candidates in B.C.'s 55 electoral seats.

It was the first time in years, since the debacle reached by the Tolmie government in 1933, that there were too few candidates to hope to form a government.

You don't remember the collapse of '33? It was a black time for the Tories, too, but after it was over they licked their wounds and came back to form an official opposition and later to share power in a coalition government.

The provincial history of the party began in 1903 when party politics first was introduced in B.C.

Early that year, Premier E. G. Prior was up to his elbows in trouble with bickering colleagues in the executive council.

He asked his attorney-general and his lands minister to retire. Then the president of the council quit.

Premier Prior said it was impossible "for the government to be carried on effectively with acute differences of opinion existing between its members." The lieutenant-governor dismissed the Prior ministry and called on Richard McBride to form a government.

He formed a government and assumed leadership of 16 Conservatives. The Parliamentary Guide of the day showed no party affiliations, except in the thumb-nail sketches of members where their federal party affiliations were indicated.

FINLAYSON
. . . ran here, ran there

But an election was held in November 1903 and for the first time in B.C. candidates were listed by party. McBride himself, was listed as a Liberal-Conservative prior to the election. Afterwards he dropped the Liberal tag.

The Tories contested every seat in 1907, 1909 and 1912. McBride turned over the reins to Premier Bowser in 1915 and the party retained power until 1916 when the Liberals took office for 12 years.

During this period the Tories fought for every riding. Finally in 1928 they won power again under Dr. Simon Fraser Tolmie.

Up to that point the Liberals and Conservatives were the dominating parties in B.C. politics. But with the depression the socialist movement, previously almost insignificant, began to be a factor.

The Tolmie government held office in dark days. And as hardships and poverty spread across the continent and the province, public dissatisfaction was funneled toward the Conservative administration and the party began to fall apart.

At dissolution in 1933 the house consisted of 33 Conservatives, 11 Liberals, one labor and one vacancy. But in the election most of the Tories, realizing the party name now had small appeal to the electorate, ran as Independents or Unionists.

The Unionists were those who believed that the economic emergency merited a union government, devoid of party squabbles, which would magically work out a salvation of the depression critics.

The electorate elected only one Unionist and two independents. There were 34 Liberals, seven CCF, two Independent Non-Partisans and one Labor member elected as well. Not one Tory was in the new House under a Conservative banner.

GIOVANDO
. . . last of the Tories

But the Tories did not quit. In the general election of 1937 the Tories ran 43 candidates in contests for 48 seats and managed to elect eight. Thus they edged out the CCF as official opposition.

Wracked by an internal dispute the CCF had split into two wings which permitted the Tories to stay in the official opposition benches until Premier Pattullo went to the country in 1941.

The result of the voting then was that no party had a majority although the Liberals cornered the most seats. It was wartime and the country was in no mood for another provincial election. So a coalition of Liberals and Conservatives came about, under Premier John Hart, Dec. 10, 1941.

The coalition carried on in 1945 when the Liberal and Conservative members went to the country as Coalitionists — but a good bloc of them still were dedicated Tories.

In 1947 John Hart retired and Byron I. "Boss" Johnson took over as premier. It was a case of a Liberal replacing a Liberal at the helm. And Tory leader Herbert Anscomb, then public works minister, let it be known he felt the should have fallen heir to the premiership.

The Liberals, claiming the most seats, refused his bid, straining an already uneasy partnership. The coalition won another election in 1949, but in the next three years came under severe criticism from the public and a decision was reached that it should be split once more and Liberals and Conservatives should fend for themselves.

FULTON
. . . Kamloops gambler

To assist the breakup the single alternative ballot was introduced with the idea that Tory supporters would give their second-choice votes to Liberals — and vice versa — and each would be safe from the growing power of the CCF.

But the plan did not work.

The emergence of Social Credit caused it to backfire. When the smoke cleared, the Social Credit party was in power, and the rebel Tory, W. A. C. Bennett became its leader.

The CCF was the official opposition, the Liberals were whittled down and only two Tories were elected; Ernest Carson, who died soon after the vote, and Dr. Larry Giovando of Nanaimo who served as the last of the Tories until 1956, when he too lost his seat.

Mr. Anscomb was the last Tory leader in the legislature (and he has been gone since Premier Johnson fired him from his cabinet in the Coalition breakup of 1952). The Conservatives have since failed in several attempts to win seats for leaders Deane Finlayson and E. Davie Fulton — or anyone else. But they kept on fighting.

In 1952 they ran 47 candidates; in 1956 they ran 23. In 1960 they ran 51 candidates. And in 1963 they ran 44.

On Sept. 12 most Conservatives in the province will have no opportunity to cast a vote for their own party.

After 63 years of fighting, it appears the provincial party has thrown in the towel. But anything can still happen in politics.

Canadian Tour Real Adventure For Archbishop

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP) — Most Rev. Michael Ramsey, Archbishop of Canterbury, will be on the lookout for the ecumenical and the outlandish during a month-long tour of Canada beginning Tuesday.

The spiritual head of the Church of England was in an adventurous mood about both the religious and sightseeing prospects of the trip during an interview.

"I want to see something of — and encourage — ecumenical developments in Canada," the archbishop said. "I have been interested in the progress towards unity between Anglicans and the United Church of Canada.

"I am very interested in signs of improved relations with Canadian Roman Catholics," said the prelate, who visited the Vatican last March for a discussion on Christian unity with Pope Paul. "I hope to meet Roman Catholic leaders in Canada and I think that will be arranged."

Of the travel schedule that will take archbishop and Mrs. Ramsey through every province but Prince Edward Island, he said: "I have always wanted to see Canadian life away from the cities — that is, the outlandish, the red Indians, the mountains, the prairies."

Lunch With RCMP

Ramsey visited Quebec City when he was Archbishop of York in 1959 and was in Toronto for the World Anglican Congress three years ago. This 33-day tour, starting with a stopover Tuesday in Montreal on his way to Fredericton, will include a Croatian barbecue at Timmins, Ont., lunch with the RCMP in Regina and a day at Paul Lke in the Kootenays of British Columbia.

His host in British Columbia will be Rt. Rev. Ralph S. Dean, Bishop of Cariboo and London-based executive officer of the World Anglican Communion, who returned to Canada this week ahead of the archbishop.

The 61-year-old prelate has displayed a flair for theological adventure, while rejecting the ecclesiastical outlandish, that has surprised some of his colleagues in a chruch with strong traditions of worship and a position as the state religion of England.

Made His Mark

He was renowned primarily among church scholars as a brilliant theologian before his election as 100th Archbishop of Canterbury five years ago. He had made his mark as a professor at Cambridge University, as a scholar-bishop at Durham and through such learned treatises as The Holy Bible: Its Authority and Message.

As archbishop he has been in the vanguard of worldwide moves towards Christian unity and national campaign to reform the structure of the Church of England.

Much Travelled

He has travelled in every continent but South America, meeting some of the 44,000,000 members of 19 national churches that make up the Anglican communion, often conferring with leaders of other denominations — the Old Catholic fathers in Holland; patriarchs of Eastern Orthodoxy in Moscow, Bucharest, Athens and Istanbul; Lutherans in Sweden; German Evangelicals in West Germany and Roman Catholic scholars at the University of Louvain in Belgium in 1963 for the first lecture by an archbishop of Canterbury to a Roman Catholic university.

He has stirred up controversy by pronouncing on a political issue. Two weeks before the white-minority regime in Rhodesia declared its independence of Britain last fall, Ramsey told the British Council of Churches that non-pacifist Christians should back the British government in preventing such action, even if force should be needed.

"Again and again, if we don't speak out on an important issue, the church is criticized for not giving a lead," the archbishop says in recalling the controversy over Rhodesia. "Then, when we offer a lead, we are criticized. Since I am criticized in either case, I just have to use my own judgment."

"In view of what has happened since I spoke about Rhodesia, I believe the things I said have proved to be soundly based."

Ramsey says the fact that the church is established in England and bishops sit in the House of Lords "encourages the church to think of the good of the nation and the community."

Has Disadvantages

But he believes the establishment of the Church of England as a state church has disadvantages in seeking Christian unity.

"Some modifications in the establishment are going to be absolutely necessary," he says. "Both Methodists and Anglicans who are discussing union in Britain agree on this. It is most unlikely that Methodists would accept bishops nominated by the state, for example."

Further, he says, the church must regain from Parliament the power to reform its own methods of worship.

Ramsey says he considers moves to reform Anglican methods of worship and his meeting with Pope Paul the most important developments in his first five years as archbishop.

"Both these developments must be pursued vigorously," he says. "The results for the church would be tremendous."

Car Crash Kills Six

REGINA (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kenneth Ulbrich of Calgary, three Ulbrich children and Mrs. Ulbrich's brother were killed Thursday when their car slammed into a gasoline tanker.

CIGARETTE PRICE HIKE BY IMPERIAL

MONTREAL (CP)—Imperial Tobacco Co. of Canada Ltd., Friday announced it has raised the price of its cigarettes to wholesalers by 43 cents a 1,000 for king-size and 31 cents a 1,000 for regular-size cigarettes. The increases take effect immediately.

The company announcement said it expected this would mean cigarettes would go up by one cent a pack to the consumer. Imperial blamed rising labor, machinery, tobacco, supplies, and packaging costs since the last manufacturer's increase in September, 1964.

The company said the one-cent increase in the cost to the consumer represented an increase of .055 in the cost of living index.

The figures of 43 and 31 cents included federal tax, the statement said.

CONFERENCE TOLD

China Needs Voice in UN

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin and Canadian diplomat Chester Ronning agreed Friday that Communist China should have a voice in the United Nations.

Speaking to the Banff conference on world affairs, Mr. Ronning said the United States seems to be moving toward accepting the eventual inevitability of China's admission to the UN.

Mr. Martin said: "No acceptable means of bringing Communist China into the United Nations has been offered or, indeed, has seemed possible."

He termed China's isolation dangerous and added the real test of the future will be the working out of a way of co-existence with Communist China.

Mr. Ronning, called out of retirement this year by Prime Prime Minister Pearson to visit Hanoi twice in search of a peaceful solution to the Viet Nam War, said the UN "cannot function effectively without the participation of the real government of China and the 700,000,000 citizens of the most populous nation on earth."

'WANT FORMOSA OUT'

Mr. Martin noted that resolutions in the UN concerning China's admission called not only for the seating of that country but also for denial of UN status for representatives of 12,000,000 Formosans.

Mr. Ronning said Canada's close ties with the U.S. have caused Communist China to look on Canada as a mere satellite of the U.S.

Canadian efforts to find a settlement for the Viet Nam war have been hampered by China's attitude toward this country, he said.

As a result, Canadian-Chinese relations may have slipped to a new low.

Canada had "cried wolf" too many times on the question of recognition of mainland China, he said.

RONNING
. . . cried wolf too often

Mr. Ronning said Canada should seek diplomatic relations with the Peking regime at the ambassadorial level. A show of Canadian initiative might not be opposed by Washington. The result might be "important in obtaining Chinese approval of Canada's Viet Nam peace moves."

Traffic Crackdown

REGINA (CP) — RCMP in Saskatchewan have been ordered to crack down on traffic infractions, and highway patrols are to be increased. The instructions came Friday from Attorney-General D. V. Heald. The highway death toll for August already is 47, a single-month record.

INLAND SEA

'Well-Trodden' Path to Beauty

The Tokyo-Kyoto path has become so well trodden that you might suspect it is the only route of real interest to the foreigner visiting Japan.

Yet, as any visitor who ventures beyond this well-established circuit can tell you, the country abounds in fascinating towns, villages and other islands, all making delightful excursions.

Such an area is the Inland Sea — a 300-mile-long waterway bounded on the north and east by Japan's major island, Honshu; on the west by Kyushu, and on the south by Shioku. Channels to the west and east of Shikoku connect the Inland Sea with the Pacific Ocean.

MANY INLETS

Considering the rich diversity of this waterway, with its many islets and inlets, dramatic white sand coastline edged by deep green pines, it is a mystery why so little has been written about it.

Guidebooks usually list the Inland Sea Excursion as a worthwhile trip—but specifics and detailed information are hard to come by.

Patricia K. Brooks, traveller-writer, in the current issue of Venture Magazine, gives a comprehensive view of this vacationer's paradise and makes suggestions on when and where to go.

Ideal seasons for the Inland Sea trip, the seasoned traveller tells us, are early spring and early fall.

POPULAR SHRINES

She recommends special spots: Osaka, Japan's second largest industrial city; Kobe, where steep and beautiful hills hug the port; Sumoto on Awajishima, thickly settled; Takamatsu, Shikoku, main port of the largest island on the Inland Sea; Kotohira, home of one of Japan's most popular shrines; and Matsuyama, home of a splendid sixteenth-century castle.

Also: Kotohira, Tokushima, Naruto, Megishima, Shodoshima, Beppu on Kyushu, Hiroshima on Honshu, Miya-jima, Miyajimaguchi, Kurashiki, Okayama, Himeji.

Best suggestions on where to stay are in the phrase "commit one'self to the luxury of Japanes inn life."

The joy of the Inland Sea trip is that you have so many choices open to you of where to go—and how—by train, steamer, ferry, bus, even plane.

UNUSUAL OBJECTS

Generally, in the Inland Sea area, your purchases will be limited to small, souvenir type objects. Of course, the fun of travel anywhere, especially to an area such as the Inland Sea, is to ferret out as many interesting and unusual objects as you can.

Japanese food deserves a guide unto itself. In the provinces you'll find more or less the same diet as in Tokyo, with some charming country additions.

The Inland Sea is rich in all sorts of succulent sea fruits; sea bream, prawns, lobster, cuttlefish, sole mullet, oysters, octopus and seaweed.

Tempura bars in each town are adroit at adapting the local harbor specialties or day's catch to the tempura batter.

MUSHROOMS

If you visit in the fall, look for the rough-textured wood flavored pine mushrooms. Also a fall specialty is maple leaves, sometimes served in tempura batter, sometimes in other dishes.

Some inns are able to turn out presentable steak dinners, complete with salad, hot rolls and other Western adornments. And Occidental breakfasts are fairly familiar now, throughout Japan.

Sweets are generally eaten between meals (!) and dessert specialties include gigantic succulent green grapes and nashi, an apple-like pear, crisp and juicy.

Holiday In Sun Tours Set

PORTLAND — A 32-day trip — every moment filled with exciting adventure through country offering a wide variety of unrivaled scenic, "big-city" and historic highlights — is in store for those participating in Trailways Travel Bureau's exclusive Green Carpet Florida "Holiday in the Sun" tours departing daily from Seattle, Oct. 16 through Oct. 22.

The seven de luxe escorted "holiday in the Sun" tours travel the entire route by day only, with overnight stops in first class accommodations. Cost of the trip includes transportation, hotel accommodations, guided sight-seeing tours and other "extras."

RUGGED ROCKIES

The route from Seattle to Florida goes through some of the United States' most spectacular country: the Columbia River Gorge, the rugged Colorado Rockies, the lake-studded Ozark country of Missouri and Arkansas, where autumn color is at its brightest this time of year.

After an 11-day visit in Florida, the Green Carpet Tour heads homeward via an entirely different route.

It visits historic and colorful New Orleans, including the French Quarter, Houston Manned Space Craft Centre, the famous Alamo in San Antonio, the Lone Star State's first capital and oldest centre of culture.

SHORT WALK

Next, New Mexico's world famous Carlsbad Caverns; El Paso — and a short walk across the International Bridge to the Mexican city of Cuidad Juarez, Hoover dam on the Colorado River, then Nevada's answer to Monte Carlo — neon-brilliant Las Vegas, whose nightclub shows rival anything offered anywhere in the world.

The last link takes the Green Carpet travelers to colorful Carson City and Lake Tahoe, then back to the point of departure.

Information and reservations about this or any other escorted Green Carpet Tour may be obtained from any travel agent or write to Trailways Travel Bureau, 1010 S. W. 6th Ave., Portland, Oregon.

'Park Avenue Hillbilly' Will Entertain on Ship

SAN FRANCISCO—Songstress Dorothy Shay, the "Park Avenue Hillbilly," will entertain passengers making the 15-day Makahiki Cruise to Hawaii's four major islands, sailing from San Francisco Oct. 28.

Miss Shay, veteran of night clubs, television and motion pictures, is famed for such songs as "Feudin', Fussin' and A-Fightin'," "Efficiency" and "Uncle Fud." In recent weeks she has appeared at the Palmer House in Chicago and at supper clubs in Denver, Colo., and St. Paul, Minn.

The versafivle singer, whose shows include popular ballads as well as old favorites, will perform during the Lurline's four-island cruise to Honolulu, Nawiliwili, Lahaina and Hilo. The 26,000-ton Lurline, which carries 765 passengers, will return to San Francisco Nov. 12.

Travelling with Miss Shay will be Anne Richardson, women's world golf champion in 1956 and member of the U.S. Curtis Cup team two years later. Miss Richardson will provide free golf clinics for passengers during the two-week voyage.

Glitter May Be Gold If It's Miami Beach

All that glitters is not gold. It could be Miami Beach.

This 10-mile strip of sand, washed on one side by the warm surf of the Atlantic and on the other by the gentle waters of lagoon-like Biscayne Bay, is a bustling belt of baubles glistening in the sun of daytime and the neon of night.

Miami Beach never closes. When the jazz joints such as Jazzville in the Seville Hotel close their doors at 5 a.m., there's always another playtime palace, with live entertainment, open just around the corner.

Collins Avenue, the "Strip" of Miami Beach, is lined on the ocean side with hotels of every size and description, and on the island side with eateries, bars, souvenir stands and more hotels.

At night and far into the morning, automobiles stream up and down the Strip, while restless vacationers pace the sidewalks, moving from one attraction to another under a panoply of glittering neon light, winking and blinking in beckoning garish splendor.

You can escape to the beaches from the turbulent turmoil of the street during the day, and relax with sun, sea, surf and sand; to swim, sail, sunbathe and ogle the bikinis.

When night falls, the solution is a "Trysting Place," with trysters and "all sorts and conditions of men"—and women—seeking respite in a quiet rendezvous.

There are about half-a-dozen of these trysting places spotted around Miami, all with similar decor—square bar, dim lights, excellent taped music and pretty trysters, girls dressed in gold lame slacks with white halters, serving beverages.

And an excellent recommendation, probably the major portion of their clientele are Miamians, in retreat from the restless conglobulation will which they are constantly surrounded.

A Certain Cure for Big-City Ills

A spell among the Plain People is good for what ails modern man! A certain cure for city-ills is the folk remedy of a leisurely ramble through that loveliest of Pennsylvania's counties, Lancaster.

Lancaster County should be done on little blacktop roads that meander through covered bridges, past stone mills, into neat villages, and through the country-side.

The county's fame does, in truth, rest upon her Pennsylvania Dutchmen — most notably on the Amish and on the Mennonites from who the Amish sprang.

If you're in search of peace and beauty and reassurance — try a Dutch treat — Pennsylvania-style. Jacob Hay, in the current issue of Venture magazine, offers some interesting information on how to travel in this fascinating part of our United States.

Lancaster County is laced with a fine network of good roads. If you write in advance of your trip, to the Pennsylvania Dutch Tourist Bureau, 33 West Orange Street, Lancaster, Pa., chances are the route you select will take you through at least one covered bridge.

Watch the horses and buggies — fashionable transportation! Encounter the country's Plain People. See how others live in the midst of a bountiful land. Nibble sausages and bolognas that would disgrace Munich during Oktoberfest and pause for a cold glass of fresh farm cider.

If the developments in Viet Nam, the latest pronouncements from Moscow, and the most recent South American coup have depressed your spirits, try a soothing draft of Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. It'll do wonders for you!

Ship to Return As a Museum

The last surviving example of the more than 1,700 square-rigged sailing ships built in the United States, the Kaiulani, has recently been discovered floating around in Manila Harbor in the Phillipines as a derelict barge.

It has been bought by a group of nautical enthusiasts and will be restored and sailed back across the Pacific.

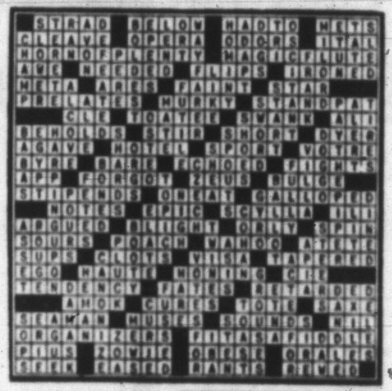
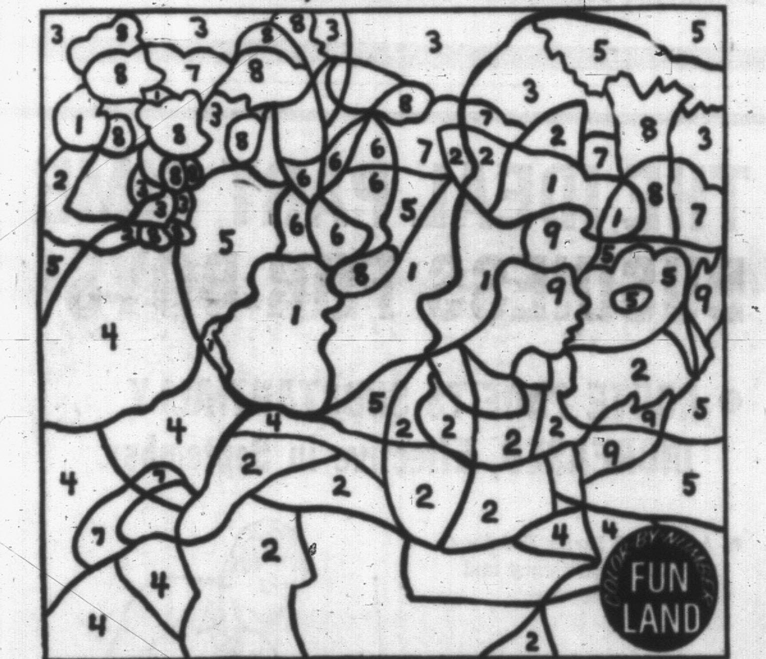
Answers to Previous Puzzle



Color-By-Number Fun Poser



Study the jumbled lines of the diagram above carefully and you'll find two persons talking—possibly discussing the bad manners of a certain young lady who mistreated a family of bears and then hot-footed it away. To see this young lady in action, simply apply colored pencils or crayons according to these number indicators: 1—Yellow. 2—Red. 3—Blue. 4—Orange. 5—Green. 6—Purple. 7—Black. 8—Brown. 9—Pink. If pink is not handy, use red lightly instead.

Apply colors as neatly as possible, of course; avoid running over into adjacent segments. When you have finished, paste scene to a piece of colored construction paper and tack or tape paper to wall. Or, if you prefer, divide scene into 10 or 12 pieces for use as a jigsaw puzzle

BRAINS GO TO SEED?

You're supposed to work this out in your head in one minute or less: Mr. Brown grows seedling plants. He now sells two more seedlings for 15 cents than he formerly did. This has diminished his price $2 per hundred. How much does he now get per plant?

Solution: He gets three cents per seedling now. A cut of $2 a hundred is two cents per seedling. So he formerly got five cents.

MINI-TEST

Thumbnail sketch of Washington, D.C.'s oldest federal building: James Hoban won a $500 prize for designing it in 1792. Eight years later, still unfinished, first tennants arrived. Destroyed by fire in 1814. Rebuilt in 1817, painted white. 'Nuff said?

Answer: It's the White House of course.

THE RIDDLE READER

ON WHAT SIDE OF A HOUSE DOES A YEW TREE GROW?

On The Outside

BELIEVE IT, OR WHAT?

True or false: If I can see the eyes of a luscious blonde in a mirror, she can also see mine. Think about this for a few seconds.

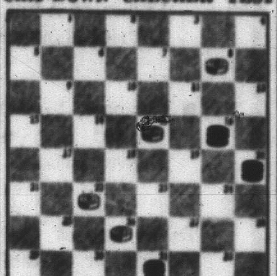
Answer: The answer is true. Try it with a luscious blonde.

SINK TEETH INTO THIS ONE?

This item of produce, of which there are more than 10,000 varieties, is the most valuable of all fruits that grow on trees. It grows everywhere in the world except for the very hottest and coldest regions. It consists of approximately 84 per cent water; provides its greatest food value in its fruit sugar. It is a member of the rose family of plants. Can you identify it?

Answer: It is the apple.

CHIP-DOWN CHECKER TEST



White's strategy in winning this checker encounter is highly intriguing. White side, moving up the board, to move and win in four moves, is the challenge. Can you cope with it?

Long-time star player Millard Hopper gives his solution below.

Solution: White 22-18, Black 31-22, White 15-11, and no matter which way Black jumps, White's next move is 8-3 etc.

DO YOU HAVE X-RAY EYES?

This little trick suggests thought reading or a demonstration of x-ray eyes, and although it looks quite intricate it is very simple — once you have mastered the secret of how it is done.

Hand somebody one dime and one nickel with instructions to conceal them behind his back, one coin in each fist, and then to hold his closed fists out in front. You are going to tell him whether the dime is concealed in his right fist or in his left fist.

But before you proceed to tell him, ask him to reckon four for the dime and three for the nickel and to triple the right hand number and double the left hand number, also to add the two totals together and give you the product.

If the number he gives you is even the dime is in his right fist. If it is uneven, it is in his left.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

All the new annual catalogues seem to be coming out earlier this year. Scotts Vol. I, covering the British Commonwealth, U.S.A. and possessions, along with the South American countries, should arrive in town about the time this article appears.

It will be the 99th edition, which is quite a milestone in the philatelic world.

It presents nearly 40,000 new prices, and adds 1934 new-issue listings, as well as many additional listings among the older stamps.

Col. Green, who in 1918 bought the unique sheet of 100 24c air mail stamps showing the plane upside-down for $15,000 would no doubt be astonished, if he were alive, to see today's valuation, for they would add up to $1,850,000 according to the new catalogue.

Another inverted centre, the 5c revenue of 1871, goes from $15,000 to $18,500. Most of the commorative issues up to 1925 show substantial advances.

Even some of the cheaper used stamps are up in price, as wholesale stocks are beginning to run low in the older issues.

The 2c black Harding, perforated 11, and printed on the rotary press, jumps from $2,250.00 to $3,250.00. This is a stamp that could just conceivably be found in a schoolboy's collection, as it looks almost exactly like a very common stamp which you can buy for a penny.

In 1926 an international stamp exhibition was held in New York, and the U.S. post office, to mark the occasion, issued the then current 2c "White Plains" stamp in miniature panes of 25 stamps.

These could of course have been bought at the time for 50c each. The new catalogue now lists them at $100 apiece!

Another lost opportunity is to be noted in the special air-mail set of three stamps which were issued to pay postage on the Zeppelin flights of 1930. The set cost $4.55 at the time.

Most collectors looked on the issue as a racket, and few were sold. The government got tired of holding them, and burned up the remainders. The 1967 price for these is $575 — more than 100 times the original cots.

In last week's column, owing to a typographical slip, I failed to mention that the African country which was changing its name to Lesotho was Basutoland.

WINNING WAGER?

Suppose at a party or elsewhere, a friend stepped up to you with the following sporting proposition: "I'll bet you a quarter that if you'll give me a dollar, I'll give you three dollars in return."

Sounds like a generous offer, but to serve your own interests best should you accept or decline? Think it over, before answering.

Answer: Friend or not, you should decline, for your opponent can lose the bet and still be ahead $.75. If he doesn't hand over the $3, he has your dollar, out of which he can pay you the quarter and keep the change.

SUNSHINE SKETCHES FOR MEMORIAL HOME

Leacock Manuscript Kept in Canada for $20,000

ORILLIA (CP)—The original handwritten manuscript of Sunshine Sketches of a Little Town by Canadian humorist Stephen Leacock has been purchased by the Stephen Leacock Memorial Home.

The manuscript was bought for $20,000, believed one of the largest sums ever paid in Canada for an original manuscript.

It was bought from Leacock's niece, Mrs. Barbara Nimmo, of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., through a gift to the Stephen Leacock Memorial Home from the Montreal Standard Publishing Co., publishers of Weekend Magazine.

Mrs. Nimmo had been negotiating the sale of the manuscript to the University of Chicago where Leacock received his PhD.

A Weekend Magazine writer, Stephen Franklin, learned of the proposed sale to the University of Chicago and confirmed it with Dr. Ralph Curry, director of the Stephen Leacock Memorial Home.

Dr. Curry said a modest budget made purchase by the home impossible.

A week later negotiations for the gift of the Leacock home and purchase of the manuscript had been completed.

Sunshine Sketches, written in 1912, is a collection of 11 humorous stories about Orillia, which Leacock transformed into the fictional town of Mariposa.

The stories were commissioned by Lord Atholstan, publisher of the Montreal Star and the Montreal Standard, who asked Leacock to "write something about Canadian life."

Sunshine Sketches of a Little Town, which has been described as "the most Canadian book ever written" was first published in the Saturday edition of the Montreal Standard between Feb. 17 and June 22, 1912.

Cuba Still Has 'Chains' For Many

By ISAAC M. FLORES

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro has proclaimed an "open-door policy" for Cuban refugees, but the door is still shut for many who want to leave.

Tens of thousands of Castro dissidents are leaving to start life anew in the United States. A great number who want to go find many obstacles, some intentional, others not. They all have the same result.

Mariano X and his 65-year-old wife who is in poor health want to join their oldest son in the United States — "to get away from this increasingly depressing life . . . with its total control over the individual." But they say they won't abandon their other son, a prisoner on the Isle of Pines.

A similar situation confronts many relatives of the estimated 75,000 political prisoners in the country.

Forty-year-old Raymundo, his wife and three children want "to escape from this madness." But their oldest son is 16 — military age. Young men 16 to 27 are prohibited from leaving.

Gregorio and his wife have wanted to leave for a number of years, but both are doctors with a draft-age son. It is virtually impossible for a doctor to obtain permission to leave.

Cubans discuss with increasing frankness their reasons wanting to abandon their homeland. There is not as much fear of being overheard as in the past. They apparently find safety in numbers.

In the main, they want more freedom to live and work, to criticize and act, to come and go. To many an average Cuban, communism is a dream world of promises in the bitter reality of want.

Foreign observers and diplomats here note the so-called average Cuban is little interested in the political theories of his leaders. He wants more and better food, housing, clothes and personal comforts than he is getting.

Many of these reasons form the basis for his desire to leave.

But he's discovered many reasons why he cannot.

Juan, a former bank teller, sold his 1958 model car and put the money in the bank. He later drew out the money to help rebuild his house.

"Now, when I want to go, they want my car and they want the money I had in the bank," Juan complains.

"I explained that I fixed up my house with the money I drew from the bank; I got the money by selling my car. The house is there for them to take, but they say, 'No, that makes no difference, you have to turn in your car and the money you had in the bank. What can I do? Nothing. I'm trapped.' "

Bank accounts, cars, houses, property of all kinds in possession of would-be refugees after Sept. 28, 1965, have to be replaced or turned in to the state upon leaving the country.

Salisbury: Artificial Prosperity

Pleasure Traffic High Despite Oil Sanctions

By JAMES BROWN

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Salisbury, bustling, prosperous capital of Rhodesia, is trying to promote the image of a country which has successfully shrugged off nine months of severe economic sanctions.

But like all images, there is something artificial about it. The veneer of prosperity and free-spending confidence for the white-ruled country is beginning to show cracks.

After Prime Minister Ian Smith's government made a unilateral declaration of independence from Britain last November, the British government imposed economic sanctions on the breakaway regime.

But, ostensibly, life goes on much the same each day for the majority of Rhodesia's 230,000 whites, among whom unemployment has been kept at a low level. A few thousand urban Negroes have been laid off due to the effects of sanctions but most of the country's 4,000,000 indigenous population living in rural areas have not been affected.

Business and pleasure traffic is back to a high level, despite the British government's oil embargo on Rhodesia.

NIGHT SPOTS THROB

Nightclubs in the capital throb to the beat of jazz groups and shows from neighboring Mozambique and South Africa. Expensive restaurants are packed with well-dressed whites. Bars in the city remain well-filled morning and evening, despite two heavy increases in liquor prices.

Sunday nights the nightclubs are taken over by hundreds of white teen-agers who can still find the coupons and cash for rationed and expensive gasoline to drive to their "Hollywood a gogo" sessions in sports cars.

The government's recent budget, which did not increase the income tax as was expected, was a morale-booster. Informal financial observers here described it as an efficient "holding operation" based on the gamble that sanctions will end before the end of the year.

As is the case with most peppills, the after-effects are likely to be bad—if current Anglo-Rhodesian exploratory talks break down and sanctions continue.

To a certain extent the budget reflected the healthy economy which Rhodesia enjoyed before self-proclaimed independence.

IMPACT MAY SNOWBALL

But in some circles here it is believed this margin has been stretched to its limit and the real impact of sanctions will snowball within a few months.

They would not be surprised to see the introduction of an interim budget containing drastic financial measures about Christmas time if there is no settlement of the independence crisis within a month or two.

In the absence of any statistics, no one, apart from Smith and his top cabinet and economic advisers, knows just how healthy or hard-hit the economy is at present.

Much will depend on the outcome of tobacco auctions which are due to end next month, after months of security-screened sales.

Stores and supermarkets generally remain well-stocked with a wide range of essential and luxury foodstuffs. Most imported items, which became scarce earlier this year, have either reappeared on the shelves or been replaced with brands made locally or in South Africa.

China Tightens Surveillance Of Foreigners

PEKING (Reuters) — The Chinese government has considerably and conspicuously tightened security surveillance of foreigners here this summer.

Under new measures introduced gradually since the knifing of an East German woman and a journalist from Mali at the end of April, the homes of foreigners have been guarded and their excursions and shopping curtailed and supervised.

Chinese officials have told foreign embassies here the measures are for the safety of foreigners and there is no intention of limiting their movements or activities.

Scarlet-painted sentry boxes, equipped with telephones, have been put up outside the houses of all foreigners. They are occupied by armed policemen in white jackets and helmets who keep a 24-hour watch.

Houses with a back entrance have a policeman there, too.

Embassies and the official residences of ambassadors here have always had uniformed police at their gates. But until recently there had been no obvious surveillance of the houses of other diplomats and newspaper correspondents scattered around the capital's central district.

GUARD APARTMENTS

Big apartment buildings in the eastern suburbs, in which many embassy officials live, now are also guarded by uniformed police instead of civilian officials.

Unofficial contact between foreigners and Chinese citizens has always been strongly discouraged, presumably because it is thought the foreigners might spread "imperialist" or "revisionist" ideas.

The presence of policemen at foreigners' doors has added a further deterrent.

Even garbage collectors, on their daily rounds, wait in the street for the bins full of rubbish to be brought out to them from the foreigners' houses.

ASSESSMENT EQUALIZATION ACT
(B.C.S. 1964, chapter 2)

Notice re 1967 Municipal and local school assessed values on residential property with up to three suites, or, housekeeping or sleeping rooms.

Resident-Owners of the property described above where zoned for other than residential dwellings or where actual property values are influenced by commercial or industrial uses of adjoining land may have the 1967 assessed values of their land adjusted by the assessor to exclude non-residential value factors.

If you consider that there are these non-residential factors influencing the value of your land you must contact your assessor and complete an application before November 1st, 1966, so that he may give consideration thereto for the 1967 assessment roll.

To be eligible:

1. You must have lived continuously in the residence since January 1, 1959.
2. Your home may contain not more than three self-contained suites, or, housekeeping or sleeping rooms.
3. A non-residential land value factor must be present and the parcel 5 acres or less.

If your residential property meets all these conditions you are urged to make PROMPT application to your Municipal or Provincial Assessor for a copy of the application form and complete and deposit it with him PROMPTLY if you are to receive the consideration made possible under the legislation.

Vancouver Island's First Water System Was Built in the 1700s

When the Spaniards had a small settlement at Nootka, led by Captain Don Pedro Alberni, they were served by an excellent system of aqueducts.

No trace of that system remains today, which is a great pity.

But it was there in the late 1700s, built under the supervision of Alberni, who by the way, was banished to Nootka under arrest, the arresting officer being Bodega y Quadra.

There is little doubt that Nootka's aqueduct, built by Don Pedro Alberni, gave Vancouver Island its first domestic water system.

Iron, concrete and copper have long since replaced the open aqueduct as a means of supplying a community, large or small, with water.

But two things remain: the need for water to keep a community alive; and the need for skilled craftsmen to bring that water to the community.

The plumbers' methods may have changed, but the demands on him remain unaltered. He's a key man in modern society as he was hundreds of years ago.

Canada and Pacific Banff Conference TV Debate Topic

Canada's role regarding vital problems in the Pacific area and the Far East will be the subject under discussion when CBC-TV brings Banff Conference, Sunday, at 10 p.m., on Channels 2 and 6.

Authorities conferred at the fourth annual Banff Conference on World Affairs, which was held this week at the Banff School of Fine Arts, under the sponsorship of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, the United Nations Association, and the University of Alberta.

CBC television reports on these significant discussions in a special program entitled Banff Conference: Canada and the Pacific. Host and interviewer will be Donald Gordon, formerly on the faculty of the University of Alberta and now with the political science department of the University of Waterloo.

Topics discussed at the conference include: Asia in Perspective; China and Asia; China and the West; the Viet Nam Crisis; Japan; and Canada, Asia and the West.

The CBC television program will include filmed highlights of the conference itself but will mainly consist of interviews with some of the participating speakers, including: Charles Taylor, Far East correspondent for the Globe and Mail, and Denis Warner, Southeast Asia correspondent for The Reporter magazine.

Speakers

Among those scheduled to speak are: the Hon. Paul Martin, Canada's secretary of state for external affairs; the Hon. Alvin Hamilton, former minister of agriculture; John W. Holmes, director-general, Canadian Institute of International Affairs; Chester Ronning, former Canadian High Commissioner to India and Canadian representative in China; Blair Seaborn, former Canadian representative on the International Control Commission in Viet Nam; J. King Gordon, Banff Conference director and professor of international relations, University of Alberta; James Barrington, former ambassador from Burma to Canada; Paul Lin, professor of Chinese history, McGill University; Ambassador L. N. Palar, Indonesia's ambassador to the United States; Brigadier-General J. H. Rothschild, U.S. Army (retired), author of Tomorrow's Weapons, Chemical and Biological; Siejiro Yoshizawa, former ambassador from Japan to Canada.

Meet the Press

George Meany, president of AFL-CIO, will be the guest on "Meet the Press" Sunday at 1 p.m. on Channel 5.

Mr. Meany has played a major role in uniting the AFL with the CIO, and has headed the organization since the merger in 1955.

He has twice served as a delegate to the United Nations General Assembly and is now a special adviser to the United States ambassador to the United Nations, Arhtur J. Goldberg.

Newsmen who will interview Mr. Meany will be John Grimes, of the Wall Street Journal; Hobart Rowen, of the Washington Post NBC News correspondent Richard Harkness, and Lawrence E. Spivak, permanent panel member and producer of "Meet the Press."

Face the Nation

Edwin O. Reischauer, retiring United States ambassador to Japan, will be interviewed on "Face the Nation" Sunday at 12:30 p.m. on Channel 7.

Reischauer, expected to leave Japan for the United States this week, has resigned to return to teaching at Harvard University.

In an interview in Tokyo last week, he expressed criticism of U.S. policy in Viet Nam, stating that the United States must find a better way to handle the Vietnamese problem, based on local nationalism and "very much broader international support than we are able to muster today."

CBS News Correspondent Martin Agronsky will lead the questioning, with two other newsmen to be selected.

Sports Spectacular

The Hall of Fame swimming and diving championships at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and highlights of the Cleveland Browns' 1965 National Football League season will be presented on the "CBS Sports Spectacular" Sunday at 2:30 p.m. on Channels 7 and 12.

Jack Whitaker is the host of the series. Frank Gifford and marathon swimmer Marty Sinn are the commentators for the rebroadcast of the swimming meet. Ken Doleman is commentator for the football highlights, which will be in color.

DESERT RAIDERS are these members of "The Rat Patrol" who use speed and surprise to thwart the Nazi Desert Korps, in ABC-TV's new action series which premieres in color on Monday, Sept. 12. Stars of the series are Justin Tarr as Pte. Tully Pettigrew, Chris George as Sgt. Sam Troy and Lawrence Casey as Pte. Mark Hitchcock.

Nine men's and seven women's swimming events and two men's and two women's diving events are covered.

Among the top men swimmers competing is Don Schollander, winner of four gold medals at the 1964 Olympics.

Other features of the swimming segment include baseball great Ted Williams demonstrating his ability with a fishing rod by reeling in three swimmers and interviews with swimming Hall of Famers Johnny Weissmuller and Buster Crabbe.

Continental Show

Entertainers from Belgium, Denmark, Israel, France, Germany, Italy and Sweden are spotlighted on "Continental Showcase" tonight at 7:30 p.m. on Channels 7 and 12.

Jim Backus of "Gilligan's Island" is host.

Representing Belgium are singer-drummer Sadi and the Henry Segers Orchestra, who join Danish singer Birthe Wilke and the Continental Showcase Dancers in "That's Entertainment."

Esther and Abi Ofarim, Israeli folk singers, display their multilingual talents in a Spanish number, "Guafira." Also from Israel is Rika Zarai, exciting new star, who does a French song "Les Temps."

France is represented by a quartet of pretty girls, Les Parisiennes, who sing "On Raiment Plus Rien a Semettri."

From Germany come Udo Juergens, young singing star who offers "Es Ist Noch Nicht Zu Spat" "It's Not Yet Too Late"); recording stars Rex Gildo and Gitte, who sing "Impressions"; the Kessler Twins, who sing "Ladies in the Shade of a Banan Tree," and singer Klaus Lowitsch, with "Sit Down, You're Rockin' the Boat."

Bonanza

The Cartwrights become involved in a land squabble when wine-maker Giorgio Rossi (guest-star Jack Krushchen) and his family decide to set up vineyards on the Ponderosa in "Big Shadows on the Land" on "Bonanza" color series Sunday at 9 p.m. on Channels 2, 5 and 6.

Hoss and Little Joe (Dan Blocker and Michael Landon), in the absence of Ben (Lorne Greene) try to explain to Giorgio that he is trespassing. But Rossi is convinced the land belongs to him. His son Lorenzo (Michael Stephani) echoes his father's convictions by fighting Hoss. Ben returns and tries to explain the situation to Rossi, who vows he will never leave the land.

WAYNE NEWTON

Be True Self Disc Star's Success Tip

HOLLYWOOD — Wayne Newton believes in being true to yourself. He has paid the price, but he has also reaped the rewards.

The highly successful and critically acclaimed 23-year-old singer had cause to consider this matter in connection with a role he had on Bonanza.

"The drama was called 'The Unwritten Commandment,'" said Newton. "It deals with a father-son relationship. The youth wants to be a singer. The father, a farmer, finds the idea frivolous. He believes in hard, honest labor — he wants his son to work the land like a man."

Newton knows something about this struggle — the struggle to do what you feel compelled to do.

"I've always wanted to be an entertainer, it's the only thing that ever excited me," said Newton. "My brother (Jerry, who is part of the act and who also appeared in the 'Bonanza' segment) and I used to pick up a couple of brooms and pretend they were guitars. The main thing in our favor was that we had parents who loved us and sacrificed for us and encouraged us."

Still, Newton didn't find it easy to be true to himself.

He had entertained since he was six years old and had his own daily TV show in Phoenix, Arizona while still in high school, when he was offered a five-year contract by the Fremont Hotel in Las Vegas.

GET EDUCATION

"The teachers told me it was more important to first get an education — they had all the arguments," said Newton. "It's hard to do the unusual. It's hard to trust your own fellings at such a time."

But Newton did. He quit school and eventually played the lounges doing six shows a night, six days a week, seven months a year.

"We could have kept going indefinitely," said Newton. "But that's as far as we would have gone in our career."

Newton and his brother, Jerry, once more gambled on themselves.

"We drove to New York to get on the Jackie Gleason show," said Newton. "We ate 15-cent hamburgers along the way. In New York we existed on bologna sandwiches once a day. We walked to save subway fare. We even had all our instruments stolen out of the car — on Jerry's birthday. But we had a purpose — and we stuck it out."

That purpose paid off. Newton (who, incidentally, earned his high school diploma through correspondence courses) was given his TV break by Gleason and eventually did 12 shows for him. Jack Benny invited him to play Lake Tahoe with him.

Singer Bobby Darin signed Newton as a recording artist and launched him with "Danke Schoen," which hit big. He has appeared on "The Ed Sullivan Show," "The Danny Kaye Show" and "The Lucy Show." His night club appearances have been acclaimed by the public and by his peers.

Newton took stock of the road he has traveled.

"We've never lost our self-respect and compromised," he said thoughtfully. "We feel that if you compromise to accomplish what you set out to do, what you achieve isn't worth achieving."

Canada Doctor Honored

Colorful Story Of Missionary On TV Thursday

On Thursday, CBC-TV will present a program on Dr. Robert McClure and the work of the mission hospital the Canadian missionary surgeon has been running at Ratlam, India, for the past 12 years. The telecast will be seen at 10 p.m. on Channel 2.

The first things you hear about Dr. McClure are the stories — first foreigner to drive a truck over the notorious Burma Road; performs operation during bombing attack; donates his own blood to patient just before surgery.

As heroic and colorful as these stories are, they do not present the complete picture of the Canadian missionary surgeon who has spent 42 years of his life helping lepers become useful human beings, X-raying the chest of countless people, administering insulin to impoverished diabetics, helping mothers who couldn't read to plan their families, mending bones, patching cuts or anything else that alleviates human suffering.

Raised in China

The program consists of interviews with Dr. McClure and members of his staff — Dr. Jerry Shime, a young medical school graduate from Toronto; Dr. Moir Budden, a young Indian doctor; and Steven Hydrali, business manager at the hospital. Also seen will be a color film showing Dr. McClure at work at the hospital, treating patients in outlying villages and discussing his philosophy of life.

Dr. McClure, who was raised in China where his father was a medical missionary, studied medicine in Toronto. After graduation he went to Edinburgh for post-graduate work. He had just signed on for two years of public health study at Harvard when the minister of his church told him that a missionary in China had been killed by bandits. He was asked to take the job and quickly accepted.

After several years in Asia, where he worked during the Second World War, he went to Gaza to administer to Arab refugees for four years under the auspices of the United Nations. In 1953 he asked to be assigned to India and has been working there ever since under the United Church's Board of World Missions.

Dr. McClure was recently nominated for the office of Moderator of the United Church of Canada, an honor which touched him but which he declined saying, ". . . I'm not very hot stuff behind a desk. I'm a pretty good man on a bicycle and the chances of using a bicycle as moderator would be very low, I understand."

Dr. McClure is due for retirement next year, but true to character he plans to shun the rocking chair. He hopes to go elsewhere, perhaps the South Sea islands, to work without pay in a leprosorium.

Drama on CTV

Royal Bay, a suspense drama starring Joan Crawford, will be shown as a special program Monday at 9:30 p.m. on Channel 8. Paul Burke, Charles Bickford, Richard Carlson and Diane Baker co-star.

This drama, and another special program on Sept. 5, entitled Hell-cats, will replace The Big Valley which will return to the CTV network Sept. 12 with a new season's programming.

Royal Bay is the story of a wealthy woman who appears to keep her beautiful teen-age daughter a prisoner in their mansion, permitting her to emerge only at night. A young lawyer, visiting the home on business, meets the girl and attempts to solve the household's strange secret.

Making one of her rare appearances in a TV drama, Miss Crawford appears as the mother, Della Chappel, with Miss Baker as the daughter, Jenny.

Paul Burke, who plays the colonel in the Second World War Air Force series 12 O'Clock High, and also starred in the successful series Naked City, plays the lawyer Barney Stafford, whose attempts to solve the mystery of Mrs. Chappel and her daughter end in tragedy.

Exploration NW

The story of the early day loggers and the role of the steam locomotive in developing the great timberlands of the Pacific Northwest is told in "End of the Steam Age" on "Exploration Northwest" Monday, at 7 p.m., over Channel 4.

In "End of the Steam Age," the Exploration cameras travel the route of the old engine number 90, which served the logging areas of Grays Harbor, Aberdeen and Hoquiam in the 1920's until its retirement several years ago. The old number 90 puffed through these logging towns thousands of times, hauling the necessary men, provisions and logging equipment.

The history of early Northwest lumbering is vividly told by the old loggers themselves. They help describe a typical day in the old lumber camps — up at 4 a.m., out in the woods by 6 a.m. and home again by 6 that evening with lights out at 9.

For contrast, "End of the Steam Age" includes a look at the modern method of lumbering. Intricate machinery such as the automatic loader, power equipment to cut the trees and giant trucks to haul the fallen timber make the job go faster and easier than the old pioneer ever dreamed.

Chrysler Theatre

Robert Young and David Wayne star as a father-and-son team of private detectives in "Holloway's Daughters," a comedy on "Bob Hope Presents the Chrysler Theatre" Wednesday, at 8:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6. Co-stars are Brooke Bunday and Barbara Hershey.

Nick Holloway (Young) reluctantly retires as head of the private detective agency his grandfather founded. When son George (Wayne) takes over, in family tradition, his first case requires him to recover the stolen jewels of wealthy Mrs. Ramsworth (Meg. Wyllie), an assignment his teen-age daughters, Casey (Miss Hershey) and Fleming (Miss Bundy), are sure he will bungle. The pair decide to solve the case themselves (with a little help from Grandpa) to insure their father's self-confidence.

OCCASIONAL WIFE will be Patricia Harty who will play the title role in NBC's upcoming situation comedy color series of the same name which will be seen on Tuesday nights beginning Sept. 13.

One-Use Square Shunned

City council will take steps to prevent domination of Bastion Square by tourist-type activities.

Mayor A. W. Toone said Friday council rializes the square must be busy the year 'round to properly fulfil its function.

With a predominance of tourist-oriented activities Bastion Square could be a dull, quiet place in the winter.

"It won't be simply tourist-oriented," the mayor said.

SERVE AS CORE

"We would hope the Bastion Square area will serve as a core for the improvement of activity in our 'lower town' area."

The urban renewal project resulting in restoration of the square was intended to focus pedestrian interest in the former fort district and thereby to stimulate private redevelopment of adjacent buildings.

B.C. Maritime Museum and the actual "furnishing" of the square are the public projects involved, and the museum is primarily a tourist attraction although it is open 12 months of the year.

The only other undertaking on the square having popular appeal is a restaurant, also open all year.

TOURIST TRAFFIC

But it also is a fact that much of its custom results from tourist traffic.

The next undertaking in sight — a dual restaurant and other projects in Burnes House — is liable to have great tourist appeal also.

But proprietor William Exman said he and his advisors are trying to avoid any heavy tourist accent to ensure an active 12-month operation.

First stage of building restoration is being carried on as details of the development are worked out.

Mayor Toone said Bastion Square activity will come in conjunction with the pedestrian mall system, "of which the entrance to Bastion Square serves as western anchor.

"This indicates the city in its program is aiming for encouragement of private development and urban renewal in the best sense of the words, encompassing both desire and demand," the mayor said.

PLUNGING down a 120-foot embankment near Santa Maria, Calif., when her car went out of control Friday, actress Kim Novak, 33, suffered cuts, bruises and possible back injury. She was alone in her car at the time of the accident.

POLICEMAN'S SON TIED, HIT, KILLED

CHICAGO (UPI)—The bruised body of three-year-old John Jensen was found early today in a park lagoon in suburban Skokie.

His hands were tied in front of him with heavy cord.

The body was pulled from the lagooon after an intensive, seven-hour search by police, firemen, civil defence workers and approximately 50 of the boy's neighbors.

Police said there were bruises on the boy's head and face, indicating he had been beaten.

Police Chief Ken Chamberlain said his investigation into the death would wait until the results of an autopsy were obtained.

"We don't know whether we're dealing with the prank of other children that went wrong, or with the twisted mind of an older person," Chamberlain said.

The boy's father, Charles Jensen, 28, has been a patrolman on the Skokie police force for 30 months. He said the boy was playing in the back yard of his family's Skokie apartment Friday afternoon.

The boy's mother, Nancy, 24, discovered he was missing and notified police, Jensen said.

The search was launched and led to the park, a half mile through brush and trees from the Jensen home. Firemen were ordered to search the lagoon and found the body seven hours later.

A Special Message From B.C. Tel About the Use of Long Distance During the National Rail Strike

During the rail strike it may be difficult even impossible to maintain all lines of communications within Canada, particularly those involving telegraph and some forms of teletype.

HOWEVER, LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE WILL NOT BE AFFECTED. NOR WILL TWX FACILITIES WHICH ARE OPERATED BY TELEPHONE COMPANIES ACROSS CANADA.

WE ARE TAKING SPECIAL STEPS TO HELP YOU

The lack of usual facilities will inevitably mean a sharp increase in the use of long distance calling. Our main concern, as always, is to see that any use you make of telephone facilities is speedy, efficient and pleasant. Therefore, from the day the strike was scheduled to begin, we planned for additional staff to handle the increased volume, and others on stand-by to come in on a moment's notice should circumstance warrant.

YOU CAN HELP

There are ways in which you can help:

Call in off-hours if possible. Residence calls "peak" between 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. Business long distance calls "peak" in mid-morning and mid-afternoon. Please avoid these periods if you can.

Arthur Mayse

So far this week, I have given you some traveller's impressions of the big show, also of the big town and the big bird. To wind up the file, let's take a look at the big country that harbors all three.

By car, or by train when the railways are not strikebound, the crossing makes an experience to remember. In autumn the lake-country woods blaze with fantastic color for mile after endless-seeming mile. There are the mountains and high passes, the prairie roads laid out with a ruler, the final triumph of one ocean or the other achieved.

Even though the great traverse is easy today — no rivers to run and the tribes mostly peaceable — it still brings a sense of personal satisfaction. You have travelled a long way, over and through a varied and always dramatic topography.

At least once in his lifetime, though, I think every Canadian should cross his land from coast to coast by air. I have never done this myself, and can only imagine how, at high altitude, the St. Lawrence opens out to its gulf, and Newfoundland rises from the Atlantic.

But about two-thirds of Canada drifts under the wing as you fly west from Montreal; and this I have seen like a map unrolled.

The colors of Canada are green, black and brown, tawny, and a blue that shades from dark to palest azure. The blue is water: it is startling to note how much of Canada is occupied by water.

In sunlight and cloud shadow, Canada's fields lie all orderly in their various stages of cultivation.

The fields that run down to the St. Lawrence are narrow and small-seeming, carved as they are from the siegnory strips of an earlier era. Southern Ontario's look small too, and very orderly, and their rectangles are wider.

Then you arrive at the edge of the lake complex on this enormous map of ours, and the fields begin to wink out.

The Great Lakes appear first — Huron, a glimpse of Michigan, then Superior wide and empty except where ships creep, each in its separate loneliness, between lakehead and the locks of Sault Ste. Marie.

For a while it is all lakes in a wild tangle. They are of every conceivable shape and size, and plentiful beyond counting. With a camp here and a portage there, a man could canoe them for many summers without doubling on his course. The country's a sponge indeed! Here is an asset more vital than gold, to be guarded jealously and used wisely.

Viewed from a few feet above ground level, the change from lakelands to prairie is a gradual merging of one into the other. Not so from the air; the lakes diminish, the woods tongue out, and here are the fields again.

Only they have grown larger, and they stretch in a dead-level patch work. Most of our mid-continent bread basket is covered by cloud on this day. The overcast lies solid below us in a plain of its own, its landmarks grey-tinged humps and hillocks charged with hail for the reaped stubble.

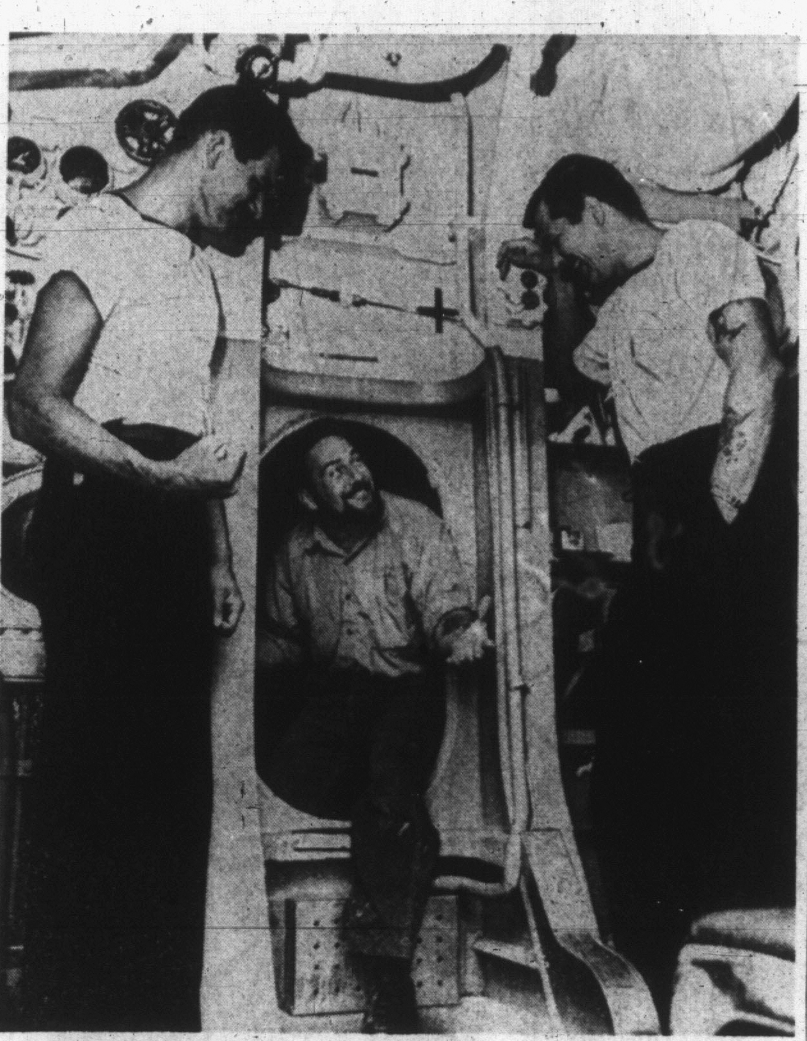
Presently the cloud floor breaks to the westward in one long, serpentine eruption that can be no mere local weather disturbance. Bring the new horizon close, peer down through the tatters, and you see that our map has thrust up mountains.

These are the Rockies. Their old snow catches the sunlight briefly; then they too are behind, and the land slopes with spur range and lake and cupped valley toward the Pacific.

Under us now is the silt-laden Columbia. Almost the breadth of a wild, seamed, mountainy province away, the Coast Range gleams.

I have not mentioned the towns and cities on our map. They are for the most part widely scattered, and even the few large ones are lost in the immensity of the land that supports them.

Any way you look at it, ours is a big country. Possessing it, we are this world's most fortunate people.



'NOTHING TO IT,' says LS Steve Vadeboncoeur as he slides through a hatchway of the submarine Grilse. But Wallace (Doc) Patton (left) and Clyde Rose — both six-foot plus — know differently.

They Have to Buckle Down Or Learn by Cuts 'n' Bruises

By TERRY IZZARD

Clyde Rose lives in a small world.

So small that the crew-cut matelot seldom manages to tower to his full height of 6' 2½".

A stoker aboard the West Coast submarine Grilse, Leading Seaman Rose has to buckle down to the job slightly more than most of the 80-man crew.

If he doesn't, he spends half his time in sick bay patching up cuts and bruises.

A submariner for the past three years, the 30-year-old seaman is something of a legend among the men of the deep.

The story goes that while he started out at six-foot plus, he now stands only 5 feet 8 inches.

If it were only true, Leading Seaman Rose would have far less problems.

Not least of which is going to bed at night.

It's a real pain in the neck. For like all bunks in a submarine, his is only six-foot long.

"It's a matter of knees bend and don't stretch," said the youthful looking Victorian.

While he can laugh off his own problems, ship's medical assistant Wallace Patton isn't quite so lucky.

After only five months in submarines, the 6 foot 4 inch leading seaman is still learning, painfully, that he has to get down to the job.

"It's rough on the head and shoulders for a while," said the well-built 27-year-old. "I still manage to get the odd knock squeezing through hatchways."

Despite the natural hazards, neither man would dream of transferring to a conventional vessel with conventional headroom.

Like every other man aboard, he is convinced this is the only real ship in the navy — despite longer than average hours and less than average time ashore.

Even for the men under six feet, life aboard a submarine is no joke.

The crew's mess is half the size of an average family dining room, while the so-called recreation area would be overcrowded if four men sat down to a game of cards.

However, the latter problem seldom arises since recreation time is limited and invariably spent in the horizontal position.

On a short trip to Vancouver this week, the Grilse' crew twice experienced their one big fear — FIRE.

On each occasion the alarm was sounded as result of an exhaust valve backfiring smoke into the engine room.

But as one long-time submariner put it: "No one takes any chances when the alarm bell sounds.

"When a submarine goes down, it usually stays down."

Despite the ever-present danger, it's a case of "once a submariner, always a submariner."

'WILLING TO PAY DIFFERENCE'

Chairman Can't Fathom Why School Work Halted

The chairman of Sooke School Board said today "it isn't clear" why the $250,000 Dunsmuir Road Junior Secondary School in Colwood cannot be completed by the new term Sept. 6.

"Both sides say that they would like to get the children into school by Sept. 6 even if the strike and lockout remain unsettled," said chairman John Bartanus.

JOHN BARTANUS
. . . new proposals

"But we cannot get a clear explanation why we cannot be permitted to use even one carpenter at the moment, expecially if we are prepared to pay the difference in cost."

He also said two new proposals have been made by the board to both sides in an attempt to complete the school but he preferred not to make the proposals public until both sides have considered them.

200 STUDENTS

The 200-student school was struck by the United Brotherhood of Carpenters Aug. 1 but pickets were withdrawn a few days later allowing other tradesmen to work. Later, lockout notice against carpenters was posted by the contractor.

Earlier this week, the union offered to allow carpenters to resume work if the contractor took down lockout notice and paid the men $3.69 an hour instead of the previous $3.64.

Mr. Bartanus said he was prepared to recommend the school board pick up the extra $30 involved between the two wage figures for 600 hours carpentry work.

The contractor, Luney Brothers and Hamilton, turned down the offer without comment.

MASTER COME TO GRIEF?

Dog Keeping Lonely Vigil Sparks Search In Harbor

A dog keeping a lonely vigil beside an abandoned bicycle on the Causeway early today, touched off a police search of the harbor area.

Officers patrolling the foot of Government Street came upon the dog and bicycle about 5 this morning.

The dog, white with a collar but no licence, sat beside the bicycle and refused to leave, they reported.

Fearing the dog's young master may have come to grief, police combed the wharf area below the Causway but found nothing.

Police later took the bicycle to the Fisgard Street station and arranged for the SPCA to pick up the dog.

Island Can Weather Strike; Finishing Mills Hardest Hit

The rail strike will have almost no effect on the local economy unless it lasts more than a month, a survey of industry spokesmen revealed today.

The Island's main lifeline is truck transport by B.C. Ferries and so is unaffected by the rail shutdown. Only those sectors heavily dependent on rail transport will be hit by the strike.

This will change, however, if the planned mass resignation of 250 officers aboard B.C. Ferries takes effect Thursday, Sept. 8.

Hardest hit will be plywood, finished lumber and shingle manufacturers relying on railways to carry their products to inland markets. These industries employ more than 1,600 persons locally.

34 Laid Off

Smith Cedar Products of Victoria has already announced the temporary lay-off of one-quarter of its 135 workers. No decisions have been announced by other major companies including B.C. Forest Products and Victoria Plywood.

The area's two major shipyards, Yarrows and Victoria Machinery Depot, employing close to 1,000 men, will not be affected unless the strike lasts for a month.

Even then, superintendent William Houston of VMD commented, "it will affect our customers more than it will affect us."

Enough Parts

"We've got enough parts stockpiled to last us for quite some time. If the strike lasts a month we may be hampered by the lack of some ordered parts but we will still be able to operate near full capacity."

A spokesman for Yarrows agreed: "There is bound to be some effect but we won't know how much until later. We don't know how much of our products can be handled by truck until we have tried it."

Lumber companies also have a three-to-four-week cushion against the strike. Jack Stothers, general manager of Western Forest Industries, explained "practically all our lumber is trucked out for export and the strike would have to last at least two weeks before affecting us."

Hector Stone, president of Hillcrest Lumber feels "It will be only a little bit of a nuisance unless it is a prolonged strike."

Hard Hit

Hardest hit up-Island is Crown Zellerbach which ships 40 carloads a day by the E & N Railroad from its Nitnat Lake operation to Ladysmith.

The main form the squeeze is expected to take is intensified competition for truck transport — as such industries as the grain feed companies are obliged to switch from the railways.

Jack Prasloski, manager of Buckerfield's, a Duncan grain feed company, said today, "storage facilities are limited and we hope to start trucking in feed ingredients from Vancouver starting Monday."

B.C. Telephone announced it is staffing long-distance offices "to the fullest extent" while the strike lasts.

Vancouver Island division manager G. F. Auchinleck anticipated "heavier than usual traffic" causing some delay during peak periods — mid-morning, mid-afternoon and between 6 and 8 p.m. for mainly residence calling.

"Our customers can help overcome some of the delay by placing calls during off-busy periods," he said. "B.C. Telephone will do everything possible to handle traffic with the minimum of delay."

Newspaper reporters on out-of-town assignments were also affected by the strike. They have to telephone reports to their papers because telegraph service has ended.

On the mainland, air lines told prospective passengers to put their names on a standby list and wait for cancellations. But companies put on extra vehicles but had to stop selling tickets for many runs.

Through U.S.

Transportation companies reported heavy bookings by air, bus and rail through the Pacific Northwest states to bypass the rail strike.

Air Canada, in its peak season, said flights beyond Winnipeg are fully booked until Sept. 10. But a spokesman added that "we are having up to 20 per cent no-shows so the situation is not as bad as it seems."

One extra flight started Friday on the Vancouver-Toronto run and a second is planned for Sunday.

The Great Northern Railway, an American company not hit by the strike, told passengers trying to go east through the U.S. it will offer cancellations-only service until Sept. 5.

"We are having between 800 and 900 inquiries a day from people hoping to get to eastern Canada via the U.S.," said an official.

Greyhound and Pacific Stage bus lines said they will press every available vehicle into service. "We're not selling tickets unless there's a bus to cover them," said a spokesman.

With mass transportation either ended or booked to capacity, the best bet seemed to be to go by car — if possible.

Ask The Times

Q. Why is the Salvation Army called the "Sally Ann"? When did the organization first come to Canada? C.D.

A. A spokesman for the Salvation Army says the term "Sally Ann" is really no more than an affectionate diminutive for the proper name. Two English immigrants, Jack Addie and Joe Ludgate, brought the Salvation Army to this country in 1882 and set up its first office-chapel in London, Ontario.

Q. Has anyone discovered any comets this year? T.L.

A. The first comet of the year was discovered Aug. 7 last at the San Jose, California, observatory by a young Harvard graduate, Stephen Kilston. The Kilston comet can be seen with a telescope in the Hercules constellation towards midnight. It has no tail.

NO MORE SHORT CUTS FOR CLERIC

Rev. Victor Cowell discovered Friday there's no short cut to paradise.

He tried it and ended up struggling through deep undergrowth for more than 24 hours.

The paradise in question was China Beach, five miles west of Jordan River, a haven which the 33-year-old Alberta minister visits each year.

Thursday afternoon he drove to the beach with 15-year-old Jimmy French, an underprivileged child with whom the Good Samaritan minister is sharing his holiday.

But instead of taking the one-mile path down to the beach, he tried a short cut through the woods.

Night time found the two fighting their way through dense thicket, cold, hungry and lost.

When the sun finally rose, Mr. Cowell and Jimmy continued their trek to the beach, unaware than an intensive search on land and by helicopter was under way.

Said Mr. Cowell today: "We saw the helicopter a couple of times in the morning and waved to them. But they didn't see us."

It was 5 p.m. when they were eventually spotted and picked up by a local fisherman in his boat. They were still a couple of hours walking distance away from China Beach.

Said the bachelor minister: "That's the last time I try taking a short cut anyplace."

CANDIDATE CAN'T FIND 50 SOCIALISTS

Larry Tickner, Socialist Party of Canada candidate in the Sept. 12 election, indicated today he will be unable to run.

"It seems unlikely we shall be able to get the necessary 50 Socialist nominating signatures by nomination day," he said.

Nominations close Monday at 1 p.m.

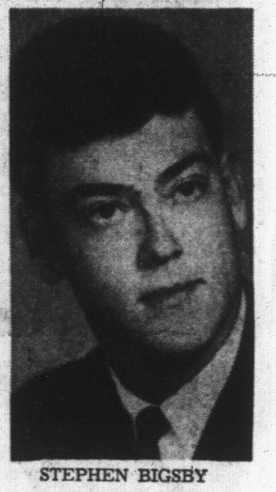
"I believe we could get about 20 Socialist nominees," Mr. Tickner said, "and we could get 30 more non-Socialist nominees. But that would be contrary to our principles."

'GETTING IMPATIENT'

Students Demand Equality

By DESMOND BILL
Education Reporter

A student leader at the University of Victoria demanded today the provincial government immediately make it clear whether it intends to make equalization grants to students from out of town.



STEPHEN BIGSBY
. . . grant system needed

Stephen Bigsby, president of the Students' Council, said, "We have no more time for wheezy generalities. We're getting impatient.

"It is clear there is obvious discrimination against out-of-town students. Why should students be penalized simply because they do not live in a university centre?"

SURVEY RESULTS

Mr. Bigsby was commenting on results of a survey he released this morning. It showed that only one out of every four up-Island high school students intend to go to university this fall compared with one out of two in Greater Victoria.

The survey also indicated that family income has a lot to do with whether a student goes on to higher education.

In Greater Victoria, one out of three students whose family income is $5,000 a year or less indicated an intention to enroll at university. But two out of three whose parental income is $8,000 and up indicated probable attendance at university.

Income is only one factor, however. It appears that environment is just as important. Even up-Island students whose family income is $8,000 and up only indicate a 36.4 per cent attendance estimate, compared with 67.8 per cent in the same income bracket in Greater Victoria.

'TEACHING DISPARITIES'

Mr. Bigsby speculated that "environmental factors and teaching disparities" account for the low up-Island attendance rate, compared with the rate in Greater Victoria.

Slightly more than 55 per cent of Greater Victoria students who said their parents encouraged them to attend university indicated they will do so. But only 35 per cent of up-Island students with similar encouragement indicated they will attend.

Mr. Bigsby commented, "The survey is very much a preliminary study . . . but there is little doubt the existing educational system grossly discriminates among certain elements of the population.

"Abolition of fees will help but will not fundamentally affect the particular difficulties of the out-of-town student. There seems little doubt that a system of equalization grants is urgently needed in British Columbia to deal effectively with this problem."

NO MORE TALKING

Mr. Bigsby said any further "academic debate by the politicians is unnecessary. We demand that the minister of education announce immediately his party's policy on student aid, and whether the policy includes some form of equalization grant."

Mr. Bigsby said students will "blitz every political meeting" during the provincial election campaign to find how each candidate stands on educational issues.

The survey was prepared by Steven Horn, a University of Victoria political science graduate.

He made the survey among Grade 12 students enrolled in the technical academic program. His study took in students in the five senior secondary schools in Greater Victoria and the senior secondary schools at Lake Cowichan, Chemainus, Nanaimo, Qualicum, Alberni and Campbell River.

Up-Island They Wave And Duck

Bush pilot A. L. Van Humbeck from Campbell River, was fined $250 in magistrate's court in Vancouver Friday for reckless flying.

"I was in the bush for a month and a half and I spotted some good-looking women waving at me and I waved back at them," Van Humbeck told the court.

He admitted he was flying at the time—at apartment-top level and lower in Vancouver's apartment-dotted west end.

"If I would have done this where I come from they would just have smiled and ducked," he told Magistrate Lorne Jackson.

FLAMES ENGULF LITTLE CAR

'Whole Front End Blew Up'

Bob Budd turned the key in his docile, usually well-behaved English car just after breakfast this morning and all hell broke loose.

"The whole front end just blew up," said Mr. Budd, of 1082 Jenkins in Langford.

A Langford volunteer fireman—he called his own department.

They were in time to save the house—the car had been in the carport—but the car itself went up in a whoosh of flame.

"I was only going to move it into the driveway," he said of the uninsured 1955 machine.

"I don't figure it.

"I know it wouldn't have been a bomb—but that's what it acted like."

Ferry Pact 'Not Difficult To Achieve'

A spokesman for the Canadian Merchant Service Guild said today a collective agreement for officers on B.C. Ferries "would not be difficult to achieve."

And such bargaining rights and signed contract would avoid a mass resignation of 250 masters, mates and engineers to become effective Thursday Sept. 8.

There has been no comment from either B.C. Ferries or Premier Bennett on the planned move, which would sever Vancouver Island's principal transportation link with the mainland.

Capt. Cecil Rhodes, secretary of the western branch of the guild, said the union represents about 3,400 masters, mates, pilots and engineers in Canada including those on B.C. Ferries.

"Since the provincial government took over the ferry system from Black Ball Ferries, the Canadian Merchant Service Guild has been trying to gain legal recognition for these officers but with no success," he said.

METHODS EXHAUSTED

"The Canadian Merchant Service Guild has informed these officers that we feel we have exhausted all methods of acquiring the recognition they desire which is:

"1. Right to have representation by the organization of their choice.

"2. A collective agreement.

"This type of recognition is granted to workers in essential industries such as hospitals, firemen and B.C. Hydro employees. We also understand that the provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario have granted bargaining rights to provincial civil servants.

"The officers of the B.C. Ferries fully recognize their responsibilities to the public to maintain a safe, efficient and continuous service and are willing to forego the right to strike in the interest of the people and economy of this province.

"With this in mind, a collective agreement would not be difficult to achieve, thus bringing about a harmonious relationship between the ferry authority, the officers and the public."

Capt. Rohodes re-affirmed that officers have indicated to the guild they will resign effective Sept. 8 if they "are not granted the rights of other workers."

First public disclosure of the mass resignation plan was made Wednesday in the Victoria Daily Times.

SERIOUS PROBLEM

Capt. Rhodes said the officers "sinerely hope" the provincial government "will recognize the seriousness of this problem and assist the officers of B.C. Government Ferries to resolve their differences before Sept. 8."

Under a legislative amendment in March, 1965, ferry workers — both licensed and unlicensed personnel — were formally brought under the Civil Service Act.

The move was supported by 33 Social Credit and Liberal MLAs and opposed by 12 New Democrats and one rebel Socred — Don Robinson, an official of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

Grease-Paint Can Be Heady Perfume

Members of the Victoria Theatre Guild work with a will on the outside of the theatre and the grounds as the beginning of a new season draws close. Doug Blagrave tries his hand at a little sign painting and James Cotton (second from left) shows himself as being no mean hand with pruning clippers. Members of the shovel parade are Roger Dewell, left, and Bud Bishop, extreme right.

While every production relies on 'backroom boys' for all the intricate details of a successful performance, the 'sewing room sisters' are just as important with their ability to create haute couture with a little ingenuity, a trusty sewing machine and skilled fingers. Seen making a beginning on this year's stage wardrobes are, left to right, Miss Joan Pinckney, Mrs. Lorraine Bowman and Mrs. Thomas Kowalchuk.

One of the busiest places in Victoria at this time of year is tucked away, just off Rockland Avenue. The Langham Court Theatre, owned and operated by the Victoria Theatre Guild, resounds with activity as many of its 140 members turn out to sweep, paint, trim garden beds, make props and give a turn at the numerous jobs that are necessary before a single actor and actress can strut the boards. The actor is but the outward symbol of a highly-versatile company that has two things in mind, to participate in amateur theatre and to offer our city plays and productions of the highest calibre.

Few of us have not spent part of our childhood dreaming of the days we'd don grease-paint and present to the world our own version of an Olivier or Bernhardt. Most of us, as maturity arrives, realize that the acting profession demands talent and devotion of an uncommon strength. Amateur groups like the guild provide us all with an opportunity to savor the heady perfume that once permeated our childhood day-dreams.

Next Wednesday evening the Victoria Theatre Guild will open its theatre doors for a new season with a program that's designed mainly to meet old friends after the summer recess and welcome new members into its ranks. Beginning at 8:15 p.m., the program will feature "Vintage Victoria," a showing of antique gowns, arranged by Avis Walton. There will be songs and music by Mimi and Al Robertson and Peggy Walton Packard will add the polish of her fine soprano voice. As on all production evenings, refreshments will be served.

The program will be repeated at the same time on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening.

If childhood dreams have faded, take heart. You can still savor the intoxication of the stage by helping with the many behind-the-scene chores. There might even be some latent Bernhardt genius within your soul. You'll never know until you try. Next week's get-togethers offer you a path to discovery.

The art of applying makeup is not one to be learned overnight. Here, Miss Doreen Renton receives some friendly tips from Mrs. N. J. W. Smith.

Dave Foster, left, and John Britt take measurements from a scale model, all set to start on the scenery for the guild's first production of the season, "The Marriage Go-Round."

With so many back-stage jobs that need to be done, there are no idle hands in the guild. Seen titivating props are Mrs. Vera Rawlings, left, and Miss Renee Larkin.

Steering the affairs of the guild is a very active and dedicated board of directors. In the front row, left to right, are T. W. Mayne, vice-president; Mrs. D. W. Jacobs, publicity chairman, and Percy George, president. In the next row, left to right, are Mr. Jacobs, membership chairman; Mrs. Rawlings, secretary, and Mrs. Smith, production chairman. Maintenance chairman, Doug Blagrave, stands in the background. Not seen in this picture is treasurer Floyd Hall.

Apart from the excellence of the plays they see, theatre-goers are always delighted with the friendliness of the coffee-break that comes with each intermission. Season ticket holders, left to right, Mrs. A. J. Nightingale, Mr. Nightingale, Mr. Jorgen Baess and Mrs. Baess relax after being served by Mrs. Sonia Basanta and Miss Myrna Hackett.

The ensemble look for fall . . .

Some more real tempting goodies at Wilson's this week . . . in the shape of coat and dress ensembles . . . some of which are identical in color and meant to be bought together . . . others which you assemble to suit yourself on a sort of mix-and-match basis since the different colors are co-ordinated . . . In the former category is a deep turquoise wool crepe dress . . . simply styled with ¾ sleeves and tie belt . . . the ⅞-length classic coat is tweed dyed to match . . . There's an identical ensemble in that gorgeous plum shade so new this fall . . . yet curiously enough, it looks completely different from the other! . . . Another ensemble consists of blue wool dress and full-length loosely-woven tweed coat in a blue-plum-gold mixture . . . The wool dresses are elegantly simple . . . mostly with either long sleeves, or none at all . . . There are a couple of long mohair tweed capes which could team up with almost any of the dresses . . . one a red, copper and wistaria blend . . . the other curry and charcoal mix . . . both have little collars, and button right down the front . . . Epitome of casual chic: a bone-colored long-hair llama coat with lynx collar, tie belt . . . a coat meant to travel the world! . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Your 1967 Springtime Adventure . . .

We all know . . . at least from hearsay . . . about Paris in the springtime . . . but if our fairy granted us one wish, we'd welcome the vernol equinox aboard the good ship Chusan . . . taking P & O Orient's "Springtime Around the World Adventure" . . . Talk about a marvelous cruise! You embark at Vancouver on March 6 (1967, natch!) . . . travel through the Panama Canal to the Caribbean en route to Europe . . . Then transfer at Southampton to the Oronsay to continue on through the Mediterranean, Suez, India and Ceylon to Australia, Hong Kong, Japan, and across the Pacific Ocean home . . . (back in Vancouver June 23) . . . This is a package cruise, which includes shore excursions at major ports of call . . . You have the choice of a 16-day tour of the British Isles and Ireland, or a 17-day tour of Europe seeing England, Belgium, Germany, Austria, Italy, France and Holland . . . A 4-day tour of Japan . . . And if you'd like to see the famed "Outback" of Australia, there's a 2½-day optional tour at quite moderate additional cost . . Paulin's have just received a fascinating brochure about this springtime cruise . . . and they're ready to book you on it right now . . . Back-to-school hair stylings . . .

In all the flurry of getting your girl-child (or children) ready for school . . . don't forget what may well be . . . to her . . . one of the most important things of all, i.e. having her hair attractively cut and styled . . . Those clever hair stylists at the House of Glamour seem to take special pains with the young . . . We know, because we've seen them in action! . . . They take the child's age into account . . . study her features, and design a nice, simple individual style that's easy to care for, and will make her look her prettiest . . . And as for teen-agers, well, you know how fussy they are about their hair . . . H of G has a special knack with them too . . . know how to give them the styles they want without being far-out . . . We gather, from observation, that straight hair is the "in" look at the moment . . . which makes clever cutting more important than ever . . . Usually some sort of body-wave is needed too . . . even for small girls' hair . . . So we bring you the pleasant news that from now until Sept. 15th . . . House of Glamour will give a special and substantial reduction on body waves to all back-to-schoolers! . . . Phone soon for an appointment . . . House of Glamour, 658 View St., 386-6188.

Italy's high fashion designers have added a new dimension to the short-skirted look—opulence, in the shape of furs, jewels, rich lames.

Good dancers have more fun . . .

This is the time of year when some of us are thinking about "projects" for fall and winter . . . Well, one project we like, and highly recommend . . . is signing up for a course of dancing lessons at Arthur Murray's . . . No matter what your age . . . however spectacular your dancing skill . . . or lack of it . . . you'll find this a happy and exhilarating experience . . . You'll feel younger and gayer and more alive . . . you'll make new friends . . . you'll have more fun than you thought possible! . . . And even if you fancy your terpsichorean skill right now . . . you'll quickly discover there are many new dance steps to learn . . . exciting new ways of doing the old standbys . . . And those Arthur Murray teachers certainly know their job . . . They all seem to have a happy knack of making you feel relaxed and at your ease . . . So even if you've two left feet . . . and are bashful in the bargain . . . You'll soon be gliding around easily and confidently . . . Believe us, good dancers (like blondes) . . . do have more fun! . . . Why not enquire about lessons at . . . Arthur Murray School of Dancing, 715 Yates St., EV 5-1476.

If you're on the move . . .

When it comes time to move to a new home or apartment . . . or maybe clear across the continent . . . the question of which mover to employ becomes a matter of some importance . . . We've been through it a number of times, so we know whereof we speak . . . You'll talk with friends . . . get estimates . . . and in the end make your choice and hope to goodness you were right . . . We can tell you this in all honesty: you simply can't make a mistake if you let Cantin's do the job . . . To begin with, their estimates are so close that if they err at all, it's almost sure to be in your favor! . . . Their men are highly trained, efficient, and so outstandingly pleasant and helpful that many satisfied clients have made a point of writing in to Cantin's to comment on this very thing . . . Cantin's have expert packers (one of them does all the packing and crating for a leading antique store here) . . . so you'll never need worry about your beautiful and fragile things being damaged . . . You could even, if you felt so inclined . . . walk right out of your house . . . hand the keys over to Cantin's, and let them move everything, lock, stock and barrel! . . . In any case, you can rely on them absolutely to give you a trouble-free move . . . Cantin's Moving & Storage Limited, 742 Pembroke St., 385-3476.

We so much enjoy telling you about Christie Point that we're almost sorry it's nearly all full up . . . because when that day comes, there'll be no point in whetting your appetite for this delightful city-country mode of apartment living, will there? . . . Christie Point, as probably all of Victoria knows by now, is a unique apartment development consisting of various types of suites . . . built amongst trees and flowers and gardens . . . on a narrow peninsula jutting into Portage Inlet . . . The whole place is perfectly beautiful . . . But as we said . . . is now almost completely filled up . . . with the exception of just a few apartments called "Maxwell Suites" . . . which are on the second floor of two buildings for adults only . . . They're really nice suites, too . . . occupy 940 sq. feet of floor space, which means the rooms are all a good size (two bedrooms, living-dining room, kitchen and bathroom) . . . Plus recessed patio-type balconies . . . Plus enormous storage closets . . . Each of these suites has a lovely view of water and landscaped grounds . . . All the amenities including cablevision . . . and only $127 a month! . . . Two lovely young ladies of Japan, who are spending the summer months in Victoria, share with us the beauty of their traditional kimono. Masako Endo of Tokyo wears the Yukata, which is an unlined cotton summer kimono. Masako's is white, splashed with deep blue bamboo leaves and girdled in sunflower yellow. The wooden shoes, called Geta, are worn on bare feet. Etsuko Nakai is from the industrial city of Osaka and models the formal winter kimono of pure silk, complete with the spectacular obi. The ivory-toned silk is patterned with flowers of every shade. The wide obi is of rich golden brocade. Over her white Tabi socks Etsuko wears pink leather thong slip-ons which the Japanese call Zori.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Alice's Caterpillar Has Nothing on This

By Penny Saver

I found the epitome of pipe smoking in one shop that I visited recently. The caterpillar in Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland" restricted his pipe-smoking pleasures to smoking while on top of a mushroom. There are no limitations with the table pipe in this shop. Try it for fun, or while sitting down reading. (I imagine it's a boon to the far-sighted man who can't smoke a pipe while reading without burning the book.)

The long, flexible tube of this pipe facilitates smoking in the bath without getting the pipe wet and soapy.

These are exceptionally good conversation pieces. They come in black with red trim, and a colorful pipe tube. Price is $2.95.

Novelty pipes of briar are real eye-catchers. The bowls are hand-carved Indian chiefs, elephant heads with tusks and owls. These sell for $1.98.

For a healthier, tastier, economical pipe, use the hygienic pipe filters that sell in this shop at three for 25 cents. These have little wire mesh plugs that fit into the bottom of the bowl. They're convenient, easy to use and leave no waste at the bottom.

Pipe racks are featured items in this store. Wooden racks to hold two pipes, with ornaments of horses, lions or elephants, are priced at $4.95. The figures are black with a gold trim. These make wonderful gift items.

Table lighters in the same black with gold trimming are animal figures. Choose from camels, donkeys or elephants. They're made of metal and are wonderful complements to the pipe racks. They sell for $1.95.

Cigarette holders have not been forgotten. You can choose from many different colors and sizes, with a price range to suit you. One spring-ejecter holder comes with 10 crystal filters. It's neat and filters can be changed with a snap. This complete set is $3.50.

Remember Penny's number is 382-3131. Give her a call if you want to know where she found these items.

Visitors Explain Their Kimonos

During the past few years Japan has been making a tremendous effort to keep the lovely kimonos of their country in the spotlight. The young girls of Japan who lead a much busier and more active life than their sheltered mothers and grandmothers have adopted western dress which certainly allows them a great deal more freedom of movement than the confining kimono.

The "Obi" is unpopular among Japanese girls who say it is too hot and too tight. It is the obi, however, that makes the kimono so very beautiful. It serves the purpose of cinching the bustline and contributing to the warmth. The obi, inseparable from the formal kimono—is always of a rich fabric which serves to set off the kimono which may be of much less costly material.

Dressing in the formal fashion is a long and intricate process. Etsuko first donned a batiste shirt-like garment with sleeves to the elbow. This is tied securely at the waist with one of the six stringlike ties that are worn to keep everything in place. Remember there are no buttons, zippers or hooks and eyes used on Japanese clothing.

Next a lovely light silk undergarment callled a Juban—this garment is cut exactly on the same lines as the kimono with the long drop sleeves which fit into the outer kimono sleeves to give body. Two ties, one under the bustline, and one at the waist are pulled tightly to anchor the slippery silk. The heavier silk outer kimono is now put on and tied securely at the waist.

Adjusting the obi is the most difficult part of all. A small pillow-like object with ties at each end, fits a little above the waist at the back. A metal clasp, much like a hair clip, six or seven inches long, is hooked at the back for the obi to pass between and to hold the puffed-out loop straight up and down. Two more narrow ties are pulled tightly over the obi so that it cannot ever slip out of place. The serenely composed Japanese woman never allows herself to adjust any item of her costume when she is in public.

HAS DRAWBACKS

I could see the beads of perspiration on Etsuko's brow and I recalled how on a hot day three years ago I had donned my first formal kimono. At the beautiful Kowaki-En Hotel at Hakone in the shadow of Mount Fuji-Yama a shy 14-year-old Japanese girl had, with much giggling, helped me to dress for dinner in a borrowed formal kimono.

Masako looked calm and cool in her summer garment and bare feet. The gay cotton Yukata is a favorite purchase of visitors to the Orient. This unlined, simple to wash and iron, wraparound is a wearable and useful addition to any woman's wardrobe. Many hotels in Japan place a freshly washed, very slightly starched, cotton kimono in your room every day.

The style of the kimono has remained the same for centuries and that is why Japanese designers strive so assiduously for new and unusual fabric designs. Sometimes a kimono fabric will depict the time of year. Snow scenes for winter; cherry blossoms for spring; waterfalls or cool rippling waves for summer; and chrysanthemums or leafy patterns for autumn.

Masako, who will return in a few weeks to Tokyo, via a P and O liner, will resume her position as bookkeeper in the office of a watch company. Etsuko is going to remain a few more months to improve her English which she hopes to be able to use on her return to her family in Osaka.

Both girls wear our Western-style clothes at home but for the New Year celebration, any festival, the tea ceremony or a wedding, they take pleasure in wearing the beautiful traditional kimono.

A striking example of Sandra's ability to create and sew is seen in this striking black and white gown which she "whipped up" the evening before her visit to our office. Made from a print brought back from Hawaii by her mother, it has a perfect foil in the earrings and bracelets Sandra made to complete her outfit.

Fur Trims Blue Suit Worn by Bride Today

White fox fur trimmed the suit of powder blue wool worn by Elizabeth Harriet Bunting, this afternoon, when she became the bride of Ronald James Zabok. She complemented her outfit with white accessories and carried a nosegay of pink roses.

Rev. Murray Henderson officiated at the ceremony in Belmont Avenue United Church, uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bunting, 2208 Lydia Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Franck Zabok of Calgary. Arrangements of gladioli in pink and white tones decorated the church. Mr. Bunting gave his daughter in marriage.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Jack Pilatzke. Her suit was in deep blue tones. Bridesmaid Miss Margaret Bunting wore a turquoise and navy print dress. Both wore corsages of pink and white carnations.

Jack Pilatzke was best man and guests were ushered by Bruce Bunting.

A three-tier wedding cake centred the bride's table at the reception which followed in Holyrood House. Floral arrangements were of pink roses and pink and white gladioli.

For travelling on honeymoon to the mainland, the new Mrs. Zabok chose a shocking pink three-piece suit of linen with white accessories.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. W. S. MacGregor, Mr. and Mrs. J. Benton and Mr. and Mrs. J. Johnson of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. G. Rhodes and Bea of New Westminster; Mr. and Mrs. T. Alexander of Campbell River; Mr. R. J. Morice, Kinnaird, B.C.; Mr. J. G. Rhodes, Swift Current, Sask., and Mr. Allan Bunting, Kingston, Ont.

Local Girl Could Be a Schiaparelli

By PAT DUFOUR

If inventiveness and a natural flair for the dramatic are any indications, Victoria is rearing itself a budding Schiaparelli.

The city's most promising candidate for haute couture's hierarchy is a soft-spoken 17-year-old, Sandra Yuen.

Her friends at Oak Bay Senior Secondary School (she enters Grade 12 next month) are already aware of her creative talent. Elsa Schiaparelli made her first toe-hold in the fashion theatre after knitting and designing sweaters which she sold to her friends. Sandra has been helping her school-chums with their wardrobes by using her imagination and sewing machine . . . but for love, not dollars.

Her first venture into the commercial field was even more accidental than the famous designer's debut.

"I was walking along Douglas Street, wearing a pair of earrings I'd made the night before. Suddenly, a tourist stopped me and told me she had never seen anything so striking. She wanted to buy them!

"I was shocked . . . I'd never imagined that anyone would be interested. She was from New York and wouldn't be content until I'd sold them to her for $5."

The earrings are delightfully simple yet striking enough for the most modish of the mod set. Huge great hoops of wire are crocheted over and then attached by braid or crochet to an earring base. Teamed with bracelets and rings to match, they're stylish enough for any Madison Avenue pundit.

Sandra 'invented' them in bed. "I woke up very early one morning, about 3 a.m. I started thinking about earrings and how to make them. Once I had the idea, I had to get up and start work right away."

Sandra's parents, Albert and Rosabelle Yuen, were as dubious about her cash-earning encounter as she was but now they find it more acceptable, especially since Sandra has found a market for her jewelry in two downtown stores.

Naturally, her latest jewelry creations have made a hit with her teen-age friends. They're kooky and striking . . . not the type of accessory to go unnoticed. One of her friends reports, "When I wore my pair one of the boys wanted to know how old I was, suggesting that I was wearing my rattles on my ears."

I have a sneaking feeling that she had enjoyed the ribbing . . . she was still wearing a pair!

Sandra's parents shouldn't be surprised at their daughter's talent. Albert Yuen designed the Carlton Club complex that forms a distinctive and decorative setting on Esquimalt Road. The Yuens' 13-year-old son gave his name to the project. Rosabelle Yuen has had many a Victoria woman's eyes shining with pleasure when she's acted as model in city fashion shows.

Many Westerners, like myself, are impressed with the way in which Chinese families enjoy and respect each other, each member contributing to make the unit one to endure.

Albert and Rosabelle Yuen obviously are richly endowed with this fine sense of family. It shows in the poised but politely quiet way in which Sandra describes life at home for her, Carlton and her 15-year-old sister, Gail.

"Mom and Dad aren't too concerned about our earning money but they insist that we work at least four hours each day, whether it's in the home or outside. Our chores can be anything from laying tiles (the Yuens moved into a large, new house on Queenswood Drive earlier this summer), preparing meals, waxing, painting or making beds."

I asked if there ever were times when the Yuen children felt tempted to go on strike, especially on warm, sunny days. "Why should we?" asked Sandra. "A certain amount of work is good for everyone."

Like most young artists, Sandra isn't too sure of her future. "I'd like to go to college and study for a career in clothing or interior designing, or maybe, textiles."

I'm sure that she will. That is, unless, just like Schiaparelli, Sandra finds herself prematurely rocketed into the royal family of fashion by more 'happenstances' like the one on Douglas Street.

Bride's 'Something Old' Token

A dainty lace handkerchief which belonged to her great-grandmother fulfilled the tradition of "something old" for Janice Margaret Laidlaw, this afternoon, when she became the bride of Edward Alan Sarkissian, Nanaimo.

The talisman accented the bride's floor-length gown of white corded silk styled en train. Lace trimmed the waistline of the gown and the bodice was fashioned with a jewel neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. Her four-tier scallop-edged veil misted to her waist from a coronet of three organza roses and forget-me-nots. She wore a string of pearls as her only jewelry. White gardenias were in her crescent bouquet.

Baskets of white gladioli were at the altar of St. Mary's Anglican Church, Oak Bay, and arrangements of similar flowers in pink and white tones were at the chancel steps for the service at which Rev. C. D. Blencoe officiated.

The bride is the daughter of R. H. Laidlaw and the late Mrs. Laidlaw and niece of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Benton, 1199 Victoria Avenue. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Sarkissian of Nanaimo.

Organist Dr. John V. Bateman played Purcell's "Trumpet Air" as the bride entered the church on the arm of her uncle. The church choir sang "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

Matching floor-length gowns of pale aqua batiste were worn by the bride's attendants; her cousin Miss Frances Benton and the Misses Victoria Nordal and Mary McNeill. Their headbands were in a deeper aqua tone and they carried crescent bouquets of white glamellias with aqua carnations.

Robert Wilson, Nanaimo, was best man. Guests were ushered to pews marked with white satin rosettes by Brian Eror and William Kitchen of Nanaimo.

Pink and white rosebuds topped the three-tier wedding cake which centred the lace-covered head table at the reception following in the church hall. Edward J. Symons proposed the toast to the bride.

A beige and brown couturier suit, trimmed with suede, was worn by the new Mrs. Sarkissian for travelling on honeymoon to San Francisco, Calif. She complemented the outfit with pale yellow accessories and corsage of gardenias.

When they return, the couple will be making their home in the Rosewood Apartments, Quadra St.

TODAY'S RECIPE

LAZY-DAY LASAGNE.

Four ounces lasagne or wide noodles, ¼ teaspoon oregano, one 15½-ounce can spaghetti sauce with meat, 1 cup cream-style cottage cheese, one 6-ounce package sliced Mozzarella cheese.

Cook noodles using package directions. Drain. Combine oregano with spaghetti sauce.

In a greased 10-by-6-by-1½-inch baking dish, alternate layers of noodles, cottage cheese, spaghetti sauce and Mozzarella cheese slices.

Bake at 375 degrees about 30 minutes. Serves four.

Follows Bradbury-Baker Vows

HONEYMOON IN THE SOUTH

Following their wedding this afternoon in the Church of St. George the Martyr, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Tom Bradbury left on a honeymoon trip to San Francisco, Calif.

The bride, the former Lynda Gail Baker, is the daughter of Mrs. John W. Baker of Ganges, Salt Spring Island, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bradbury of Vancouver.

The church was decorated with arrangements of yellow gladioli for the service at which Rev. N. S. Noel officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. Neil Fletcher, and Jim Furmston was organist.

The bride's gown of ivory corded silk was starred with dainty lace flowers on the bodice and sheath skirt. The empire-line bodice was fashioned with a bateau neckline and sleeves to the elbow. Tiny bridal bows held a detachable court train which swept back from the shoulder. Seed pearls highlighted the cluster of organza flowers which held her full cathedral veil of silk illusion net. She carried a cascade bouquet of a white catalaya orchid, stephanotis and ivy.

Floor-length A-line gowns of chiffon over green floral taffeta were worn by matron of honor, Mrs. Harry White and bridesmaids, the Misses Kathy and Janet Baker, the bride's sisters. Completing the outfits were matching floral cluster headpieces and cascade bouquets of yellow crystal chrysanthemums and ivy.

Junior bridesmaid Lisa Baker, the bride's niece, and flower girl Bonnie Keil were in A-line frocks of pink chiffon over floral taffeta. They wore matching floral headpieces and carried colonial bouquets of white crystal chrysanthemums and pink velvet streamers.

Best man was George Guernsey and ushering the guests were Harry White and Ronald McMicking.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. J. D. Fletcher made and decorated the three-tier wedding cake which centred the head table at the reception following in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel. The cake was topped with a silver vase of yellow rosebuds. Dr. Ivor Williams proposed the toast to the bride, and her brother, Bruce Baker, was in charge of the guest book.

For travelling on honeymoon, the new Mrs. Bradbury donned a turquoise Italian-knit suit which she complemented with navy accessories and a white orchid corsage. The couple will be making their home at 934 Collinson Street.

Lillie Kyler Married In Peau de Soie Gown

An heirloom pearl necklace fulfilled the "something old" tradition for Lillie Diane Kyler, this afternoon, when she became the bride of Ronald Gary Coutts. The necklace was the bride's only jewelry accent to her floor-length gown of white crystal peau de soie, which she made herself. The gown, styled en train, featured a sleeveless bodice with an overjacket of lace. A rhinestone tiara, "something borrowed" for the wedding, held her four-tier veil of scalloped nylon net. Yellow rosebuds and blue ribbons were in her bouquet.

Dr. R. B. Horsefield officiated at the ceremony in St. Mary's Anglican Church, Fulford Harbor, uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Kyler of Fulford Harbor and the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Coutts of St. Mary Lake.

As the bride entered the church on the arm of her father, the congregation sang "Love Divine," and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register. Organist was Mrs. V. C. Best.

Maid of honor Miss Karen East and bridesmaids the Misses Melody Dyer, Galiano Island, and Dawn Kyler, the bride's sister, wore identical gowns of crystal peau de soie. The maid of honor wore tangerine tones, and the bridesmaids were in gold. They had matching halo hats and carried toning bouquets of gladioli and chrysanthemums.

Little Denise Kyler was flower girl for her sister. Her floor-length frock was of gold silk, with a matching lace jacket and hair bandeau. She carried a nosegay of feathered coral carnations and white chrysanthemums.

FLORAL MARKERS

Cameron Cartwright was best man and guests were ushered to pews marked with miniature bouquets of garden flowers and yellow and white ribbon bows by Terence Slingsby and Kenneth Kyler, the bride's brother.

At the reception which followed in Fulford Community Hall, the bride and groom cut a three-tier wedding cake which was made by the bride and decorated by Mrs. D. L. Slingsby. Franklin Byron proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon in the provincial interior, the bride chose a turquoise linen dress with toning blue and pink duster, a pink hat and white accessories. A corsage of white carnations completed her outfit.

When they return, the couple will live in Duncan.

Guests travelling to Fulford Harbor for the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. W. Senft and Mrs. Inez Coopsie of Victoria; Mr. and Mrs. W. Pieper, Eston, Sask.; Mr. and Mrs. David Stupich, Cassidy, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. W. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Parratt, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Courser, and Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Reimer of Sidney; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Omdahl, Cowichan; Mr. and Mrs. Pat Kereluk, Hope, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. W. Coutts and Mr. and Mrs. R. Coutts of Vancouver.

IS NINTH DUE?

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (Reuters) — "Every marriage has been a challenge," said wealthy Margaret St. Claire Happe, who has had eight husbands.

The 40-year-old divorcee, South Africa's most-married woman, added: "I am tempermental and spoiled. Every time my intentions have been good. . . I have always wanted to do better than the previous time, but I get bored."

Mrs. Happe would neither confirm nor deny reports that she plans to marry for the ninth time later this year. "Just wait and see," she said.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Oh Well! Another Egg in the Face

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You certainly don't know much about eggs. A woman wrote to say that her husband came home with some eggs he had bought from a farmer, and they tasted horrible. They later found that the farmer had sold him duck eggs. And you let it pass as though they should have expected duck eggs to taste horrible.

Abby, fresh duck eggs are every bit as delicious as chicken eggs. We raise geese and ducks especially for the eggs. The eggs are wonderful, and the only difference is in the size.

MRS. E.

DEAR MRS. E.: Twenty lashes with a duck feather for this Iowa-born writer who should have known better. Of one thing I am certain, duck egg on the face is every bit as embarrassing as chicken egg.

DEAR ABBY: Let me start out by saying that I love animals. I have had pet dogs, cats, birds, skunks, and even two king snakes. I recently read in the newspaper where someone left nearly $200,000 to a pair of cats! And it was stipulated that in 20 years, or after the cats died, the remaining money should go to a hospital and church. Now if that isn't the most ridiculous thing you have ever heard of, what is!

I can see leaving enough money to feed and care for pets, but for a hospital and a church to have to wait 20 years for a donation because a couple of animals have inherited it, is downright disgusting. There ought to be a law against leaving money to animals. Will you see what you can do about it, Abby?

DISGUSTED.

DEAR DISGUSTED: I think any law attempting to limit the individual's right to dispose of what is lawfully his would be unconstitutional. If not, it should be. So we'll just have to suffer such extravagant sentimentality and be glad it doesn't happen every day.

DEAR ABBY: For eight years now I have had this neighborhood gang of boys (ages from 10 to 15) who show up daily to play with my son. During the summer they go home only to sleep and eat. One day I counted 19 boys spread over our property. You wouldn't believe the noise!

My problem is they never congregate anywhere but here. Of course I'd rather have them here than on the streets, but I would like to know how to get some of the other mothers to take in this mob occasionally.

SAN MATEO MOM.

DEAR MOM: Every mother should have your problems. There must be something about your yard, your son, or your "hospitality" that draws these boys. If you don't say anything to spoil it, I won't.

DEAR ABBY: Tell the 11-year-old who couldn't stand the noise her father made when he ate carrots, celery and other crunchy food that I would be glad to trade places with her. My father can eat only foods which have been liquified which he takes through a tube.

He has cancer of the stomach, but we are thankful for every good day he has. So next time that girl complains about the noise her father makes "crunching," will you please remind her of me?

DADDY'S GIRL.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to the many friends who gave their kindness, sympathy and beautiful floral offerings, in the sudden passing of a beloved husband, father and son, John Wayne Hamilton—Mrs. Dede Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Start.

9 IN MEMORIAM

HESSON—In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Alexander Roger Hesson, who passed away August 24th, 1953, and a dear mother and grandmother, Amanda Jean Hesson, who passed away November 3, 1944.

In our hearts they live beloved and dear,
Through each moment of time forever near.

—Ever remembered by Hazel, Gladys, John, Margaret and Alan.

HUNTER — In loving memory of Dorothy Constance Hunter, who passed on to her rest August 27th, 1965.

One year has passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away.
God took her home—it was His will;
Within our hearts, she liveth still.

—Fondly loved and remembered by her friend, Nancy and her sister, Gwen.

LINN—In loving memory of Joseph, Wm. Linn, who passed away August 27, 1965.

One year has passed since that
sad day,
The one we loved was called away.
'Tis sad but true, we wonder why
The best are always first to die.
In silence he suffered; in patience
he bore,
'Til God called him home to suffer no more.

—Dearly loved and remembered by his wife, Dorie and sons, Andy and Bobby.

MOORE—In loving memory of mother, Annie Maud, who fell asleep August 27, 1962.

The depths of sorrow we cannot tell
Of the loss of one we loved so well.
Tonight the silent stars look down
On a grave not far from here,
Where sleeps the one we can't forget,
And always loved so dear.
Without a word you left us,
Your last thoughts were unknown,
And without farewell upspoken,
You calmly entered Home.

—Ever remembered by her loving daughter and son-in-law, Vera and Cecil Holt.

MOORE—Treasured memories of our dear mother and grandmother, Annie Maud.

Four years have passed since that sad day,
When the one we loved so,
was called away.
Softly the leaves of memory fall
Gently we gather them all.
Loving her deeply, her memory
we keep.
While she lies in peaceful sleep.

—Missed so deeply by Margaret, Fred and Ross.

BRIDGE LESSON

By JACOBY and SON

The name Helen Smith does not strike much response among bridge players. However when you refer to her as Helen Sobel Smith you find yourself talking about one of the really great bridge players of all time.

Opening lead—♥ 6

The greatest facet of Helen's style was and is simplicity. She bids simply and plays effortlessly but no one picks up more tricks than Helen.

Here is one of her hands from 30 years back. Her partner opened with one club. Even in those days pepole did not like to open four card majors when they held a four card club suit. East might have overcalled with one diamond but East was vulnerable and saw no future in that suit.

The game was match point duplicate and after West opened the six of hearts Helen saw that everyone would be in four spades and that five odd was a cinch. Helen decided to go after six and a top score.

Do you see how she went about this? It wasn't too difficult. She played the deuce of hearts from dummy. East might well have returned a diamond but East was looking at those little clubs in dummy and East led back the jack of clubs. Helen won that trick with the ace and now was ready for operation top score.

She drew trumps with two leads and cashed her king of clubs. Then she played a heart to dummy and discarded her four of clubs on the other high heart. Her next play was to ruff a club in her hand.

After that is was a simple matter to return to dummy with the last trump and discard her deuce of diamonds on the 13th club.

Lucky, of course, but luck made possible by good play.

POST AND BEAM CONTEMPORARY IMMEDIATE OCCUPANCY

3-BDR.—2 BATHROOMS
ASKING $33,900—SPARKLING

Do you appreciate the highest quality workmanship and materials? Then do see this 1½-yr.-old home close to Cadboro Bay. The owners bought it about seven months ago, spent nearly $7,000, and have now gone to a post in Chicago. The kitchen is magnificent with GE wall freezer-frig unit in pastel yellow (about $1,500). Kitchen-Aid dishwasher (about $600). Tappan double-oven range with rotisserie and roast control (the most costly model). More than ample cupboards, and most expensive Corlion flooring. Nice size D.R. adjacent to sliding doors to patio, and living room plus wonderful fireplace with hammered-copper hood. The flooring is oak planking and the windows are floor to ceiling. Lovely new Acrilan in hallway and steps, W.W. in master bedroom with 2-piece vanity off, and house completely redecorated. Good size rumpus room and bar, high clean basement with stack for third bathroom, combine to make it ideal fourth bedroom. Double carport, garden tool shed, towering trees and secluded patio all add to this restful setting. Phone W. DAVIS and F. WILLS 388-4271.

155 PROPERTY WANTED

NOT DESPERATE
BUT OUR 20 MEN
(AND SALES GALS)
ARE ENTHUSIASTIC AND SELL PLENTY
SO THE LISTINGS
ARE IMPORTANT

We have them all! The retired farmer with cash, the California millionaire (with $2500 down), the little old couple that wants a cute cottage, the prolific gentleman who needs a 6-bedroom home. People living in the country who want to go back to the city, the city folks who want a secluded home out of the city (nearly always with a Tudor home), and not for over $18,000 (on the waterfront, too. Ha, ha!). In fact, if you have a home to sell, you couldn't do yourself a greater favor than to call HAGAR & SWAYNE, LTD., an old-established firm with a PRESTIGE REPUTATION. We will be happy to valuate your home, suggest a good MARKETING PLAN and give you MORE SERVICE than you could ever expect, advertising, Open Houses (if you wish), photographs in our windows at our BUSY LOCATION, (you name it). CALL TODAY, 384-0531 (we have 30 lines), and ask for the DUTY SALESMAN, and he or any of the HIGHLY EXPERIENCED Sales Personnel will arrange for an immediate interview and discussion. We sell HOMES, BUSINESSES, BUILDINGS, LAND, SUBDIVISIONS, LOTS, ETC.

Chief Can't Understand Attitude

View Royal fire chief Al Beasley said this week he can't understand Esquimalt's attitude in the dispute over sewage connections for the planned Christie Point School.

Esquimalt has refused to allow a hookup between the school, to be built in View Royal district, and the Esquimalt sewage line.

When amalgamation between View Royal panhandle and Esquimalt was being discussed earlier this year, Esquimalt "told us they could take over (sewage) with no problem," said Mr. Beasley, a member of the regional board.

If the school board fails to obtain a sewage hookup for the $1 million school, "we either can't build the school, or will hav to install septic tanks," said a school board official.

Mr. Beasley said the sewage problem will be discussed at the next regional board meeting Sept. 14.

The topic so far has been treated as "a political football," he added.

The elementary-junior secondary school, to be built next to Christie Point Apartments, is slated to open in September, 1967, and take 750 students.

Pair Acquitted In Contempt Case

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two of 28 persons charged with contempt of court as a result of labor demonstrations last May at the Lenkurt electric plant in Burnaby have been acquitted.

Mr. Justice Macdonald will rule Sept. 19 as to the guilt or the innocence of the remaining 26 persons accused of contempt by ignoring two injunctions issued against picketing at Lenkurt.

The demonstrations followed a wildcat strike resulting from the firing of 257 employees.

TENDERS FOR MEALS

Sealed tenders will be received by the undersigned up until Noon on Thursday, September 8th, 1966 for supplying meals to the inmates of the lock-up in the City Police Station.
Form of tender, specification and general conditions may be obtained from this office.
The lowest or any tender will not necesarily be accepted.

Victoria West Golden Age Club, Thursday, 2 p.m., Victoria West Lawn Bowling clubhouse.

Stagecoach Crosses In Truck

The Barkerville-to-Victoria centennial stagecoach arrived in Nanaimo at 1 p.m. today after being refused permission Friday to drive the horses on the ferry.

B.C. Ferries officials reversed a previous decision Friday and ruled it would compromise safety regulations if the horse walked on to the ferry.

A disappointed stagecoach manager, Art Perrey, theis morning agreed to put the horses in a van to make the crossing from Horseshow Bay to Nanaimo at 11 a.m.

He said the drive on and off the ferry was to be the climax of the 600-mile trip.

Vagrant Again Before Courts, Report Asked

A man convicted as a vagrant in Victoria Thursday pleaded guilty to the same offence in Oak Bay when he appeared in court again Friday.

Magistrate Ostler will sentence Francis Holden, no fixed address, Monday after studying a psychiatric report.

Constable Harold McNeil testified he came upon Holden at Willows Beach near Cattle Point shortly after midnight.

Holden, who had $1.04 in his pockets, said he was going to spend the night on the beach.

He had been placed on a $250 good behavior bond for six months after his vagrancy conviction Thursday.

Come One, Come All Hootenanny

The Sunday night hootenanny at Jon York's Music Hall this weekend will likely feature some of the outstanding figures on the folk circuit.

No one knows the program exactly: Half the attraction of the hoot is that the entertainment depends on who turns up and feels like performing.

But Gipp Forster, manager of the club said he expects Wanda Mundy and Pat Paulson, among others, to do a set.

Paulson, from San Francisco, has just finished a run in Vancouver where he appeared at the Bunkhouse and the Marco Polo. Miss Mundy, a 17-year-old folk singer, recently completed a U.S. tour during which she made appearances with Joan Baez. She will appear on the regular bill at the Music Hall next week.

The hootenanny will begin at 9 but the doors will open at 8. Last week the place was packed when the show started and young adults were outnumbered by older persons.

CARELESS DRIVERS

Fined in traffic court Friday for careless driving:

William Eldred, 1037 Craigdarroch, after a acr accident on Cook Street, Aug. 10, $35.

Samuel Snobelen, 4695 Blenkinsop, after his car ran down an embankment off Rose Street Aug. 13, $40.

William Wharf, 2294 Cranmore, after a traffic accident on Hampshire, Aug. 13, fined $40.

Dentist Break-in Admitted

A 16-year-old boy admitted in central court Friday to joining two other boys in breaking into a Courtney Street dentist's office July 31.

The youth will be sentenced next Friday after Magistrate Ostler has studied a pre-sentence report.

The boys forced open a rear door to the office of Dr. Stanley Miles, rumaged through drawers and took a microphone, a camera and a pair of opera glasses.

The 16-year-old was caught by police after a three-block chase at 3:30 a.m.

One of the other youngsters had previously been given a suspended sentence while the third had his case dealt with in juvenile court.

Only the microphone has been recovered.

'Cries of Pollution' Unheeded As Workers Blast Out a Mine

By AB KENT

MYRA FALLS — Hard rock miners are blasting a crater-size hole in a mountainside here in B.C.'s most controversial mineral development.

To cries of "desecration," "pollution" and "exploitation" Western Mines Ltd. is successfully setting up a modern mining operation wholly within Strathcona provincial park. million.

Both open pit and underground mining will be carried on when full production commences in October on at least 250,000 tons of copper, silver, gold, lead, zinc and cadmium ore valued at more than $12.5

The mine has a further potential of 1,750,000 tons of ore for a total valuation of $100 million.

General manager Charles M Campbell Jr. describes the Buttle Lake development as "one of the most complex" mining projects ever undertaken in B.C., even though there are many larger ones.

The political complexities themselves have been formidable, revolving on the principles of commercial development of parkland, use of majestic Buttle Lake to dump mine tailings into, and construction of a townsite within the park boundaries.

Strathcona Park, with Buttle Lake a narrow ribbon of wilderness water nestled between two mountain ranges, is divided into two parts.

Class "A" is inviolate and must never be developed. It covers more than 300,000 of the total 530,000 park acres.

Class "B" portion applies to some 200,000 acres and is open to joint development by resource and recreational interests.

22-MILE ROAD

But a permit was issued and the provincial government is building a 22-mile access road along the east shore of Buttle Lake to the Myra Creek minesite, with the help of $2 million from Western Mines.

A legislative committee also approved construction of a townsite to house about 1,000 persons on the east shore of the lake within six miles of the mine.

And pending pollution control board approval, the mine will empty fine tailings onto the floor of the lake in order to dispose of them permanently rather than leaving unsightly waste piles near the mine portal.

POOR IMAGE

Mine manager Campbell admits the industry has a poor image because of past mineral development without regard for conservation of other resources.

Western Mines, he says, is trying to build the most acceptable operation it can and is spending far more than what is needed basically for opening the earth and refining the ores obtained.

The mine buildings themselves are carefully designed, mostly using native wood finishes from trees logged off the land they sit on.

And they are painted from top to bottom.

The extra cost here will be about $1 million.

Another $1 million will be spent to build a 4,500 horsepower hydro-electric plant on Tennent Creek near the mine to supply it and the mill with power now being generated by diesel engine.

150-FEET DEEP

Western Mines ore body is in two blocks, both belonging to the same shear zone. The first open pit development called "A" pit will eventually be more than 150 feet deep, gradually pushing back the forest around the top as the bottom deepens.

Underground works tunnel into the mountain below pit levels to reach the deeper limits of the ore body.

There are 10 underground stopes and more underground exploration is planned along with more surface diamond drilling.

A second pit is likely to be started to the east of the existing surface works, necessitating additional harvest of timber.

As "A" pit is depleted it may become a dumping place for waste material from continuing works as a kind of landfill, a mine official said.

Traditionally miners have taken instruction from their immediate supervisors, spent a minimum of time in the dry (house) with its "command post" and have known little about operations in other parts of the mine.

They usually file past their bosses at a wicket or counter alongside a narrow passageway leading to the mine portal.

Western Mines has changed all that.

ROOMY ROTUNDA

A roomy rotunda replaces the passageway, although the bosses remain behind a counter.

Mine manager Campbell explained the idea is to permit miners to discuss any phase of the whole operation as they mingle in the instruction area.

By casual communication with each other, miners will keep up to date on work in parts of the mine adjoining their own stopes and be able to corelate the knowledge to the whole operation.

In areas immediately adjoining, the men will be able to see safety films, learn mine rescue techniques and first aid.

The whole section was referred to by Mr. Campbell as the "communications centre," the principle being there are no secrets in this organization."

Harmac Mill Investigator Appointed

NANAIMO — A routine investigation by a labor department official is expected next week in a row between rival union over bargaining rights for 1,000 workers at the pulp mill near here.

Gordon Wickham, president of Harmac Local 8 of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, said today Jack Sherlock of the labor department has been appointed to investigate the situation.

The Canadian union has applied to the Labour Relations Board to decertify the rival International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers as bargaining agent for the mill workers.

If such a move is successful, the Canadian union would then apply itself for the bargaining rights.

Mr. Wickham said the board has advised that the decertification application will be dealt with "immediately." A 10-day period for submissions to the board following the decertification application ends Monday.

He said "we're not pleased because this has been dragging on for months now." The Canadian union applied for certification last May but this was rejected at the beginning of August. Ten days ago the decertification application of the international union was filed.

20-Ton Grader Hits House

A runaway road grader smashed into the side of a Sooke house Friday narrowly missing an occupant.

Mrs. Dougald de Rochie, 6435 Sooke Road, was knocked to the floor when the impact of the 20-ton machine moved the entire house 32 inches off its foundation.

Mr. de Rochie estimated damage at $13,000 to the four-year-old home.

The machine, owned by Webb and Trace Ltd., had been parked on the roadway about 140 feet from the house when it took off.

Mr. de Rochie, who was painting outside steps at the time, was warned of the grader's approach by two shouting men who were running after it.

COWICHAN STATION—Fire gutted the main barn on the Bench Road farm of Gerry Wikkerink this morning.

Cause of the blaze is unknown.

Mr. Wikkerink discovered the outbreak about 6 a.m. and called Cowichan Bay Volunteer Fire Department.

Before the firemen could attack the flames the section of barn filled with hay was destroyed.

Firemen fought to save milking equipment housed in the other half of the barn.

Damage is estimated at several thousand dollars.

Going to London? Here's a good idea!

Bring back some tax-free French Perfume, Swiss Watches and Jamaican Rum from Amsterdam.

Fly Canadian Pacific Airlines to London and we'll throw Amsterdam into the bargain.

And what a bargain! Amsterdam has more canals than Venice, over 500 bridges, quaint 16th Century gabled houses and modern architecture. It has excellent hotels, first class entertainment and good restaurants.

The duty-free shopping center at Amsterdam's airport is the largest in the world – selling everything from tulip bulbs to diamonds. You'll be amazed at the low price of liquor, cameras, watches – and even French perfume.

Best of all – it's convenient to jet to London by way of Amsterdam. CPA will fly you non-stop to Amsterdam from Vancouver – and London is less than an hour away by connection. Only $539* round trip from Victoria.

For not one guilder more, you can visit two great cities. Arrange it with your travel agent or call any Canadian Pacific office.

*14-21 day economy round trip including connecting carrier – in effect most months of the year.

'Hoping To Clear My Name'

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court, reported to be criticized by a federal commission report for his behavior in a natural gas pipeline stock deal, said Friday, he hopes to clear his name in an appearance before a multi-party committee of the Commons and Senate.

The report of Ivan Rand, a retired Supreme Court of Canada justice, is in the hands of Justice Minister Lucien Cardin.

Nothing official has been said about its contents, but the report is believed to be harshly critical of Mr. Landreville.

The commission inquiry dealt with Mr. Landreville's acceptance of free stock in Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co. shortly after he left the mayoralty of Sudbury and went to the Ontario bench.

"It is my hope that I will be given the opportunity of appearing before a committee of Parliament and the Senate to give a defence of my conduct before my countrymen," he said in an interview at his home here.

"I would expect that this would be granted. I don't think Parliament would act on the basis of a single report without giving me full opportunity to say what I have to say."

PLAY TAKES A LOOK INTO HISTORY

A gala fantasmagoria that will include folk singing, classical ballads and a lot of nostalgia is behind the title, Vintage Victoria, which the Theatre Guild is presenting at Langham Court Theatre as its contribution to Centennial Week.

Tickets are now on sale for the event which begins Wednesday and runs trhough Sept. 3.

Centres for picking up tickets are McPherson Restuarant, Theatrical Costume Studio, Coach and Four, Dogwood Gift Shoppe and the Pet Corner.

They may also be purchased at the door.

Singers taking part in the show will be Al and Mimi Robertson, Jennifer Macdonald, Peggy Walton Packard, Cliff Clarke, Nora Kellie and Virginia Maggs.

Behing the singers will appear 50 models showing authentic historic gowns of 1836 to 1926.

Showtime nightly is 8:15.

The Guild at this time is organizing its membership drive. Its slogan, as always, is You Don't Have to Act to be Active.

It is pointed out that you can buy seats for four plays for $5 and by adding one more dollar you can qualify for twenty-one backstage jobs without ever needing to wear makeup.

This Is Where I Stand

History has shown that no investment by the state has ever guaranteed a surer return than the education of its people.

Educational opportunity is a matter of the highest priority, as is the provision of adequate health services in the province.

Every effort must be made to increase the percentage of High School graduates desiring to continue their education beyond the post-secondary level. This must include not only University, but nursing school, technical, and vocational training.

There should be a system of equalization and travel grants for out-of-town students attending Institutions of Learning not available to them in their own community.

I believe that Post-Secondary Educational Institutions should be given operating grants by the government, sufficient to hold tuition fees at a fair level. We must have skilled hands and skilled minds to keep B.C. prosperous. The government has admitted that our development is being held back because of a lack of trained people.

Workers displaced by automation have to be retrained in new skills if we are going to keep our people employed in the years ahead.

DESPITE DISARMAMENT TALK MARATHON

World Gun Laws Still Pretty Lax

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

GENEVA (AP)—The world's off-again, on-again effort to negotiate lasting disarmament has gone into another recess.

As the 286th meeting of the current session closed, the problems of war and peace seemed basically unchanged.

Mildly optimistic statements—customary in most Geneva negotiations—have not dispelled the grim reality: East and West continue to pile up arms, the war clouds over Southeast Asia are as dark as ever, the smaller powers of the "third world" go on flexing their muscles.

Yet it may not be all grim as long as the principal opponents are expressing the desire to meet again and talk about their differences.

Defenders of the conference point out that despite its failure to obtain large-scale, concrete, achievements, it is perhaps the only hope in the tense world of atomic menace.

Conference participants note that two international pacts originated in recent years in this Swiss city: The 1963 Moscow treaty limiting atomic tests and the subsequent U.S.-Soviet agreement to cut the production of fissionable materials.

Seventeen nations — ranging from the Soviet Union, Britain, the United States and Canada to Ethiopia and Burma—have thrown a considerable amount of effort and prestige behind the talks.

This session ended Thursday in more promises to meet again next year, as usual with routine statements of "guarded optimism" and "sincere hope for success."

The session began in January on an optimistic note, with fervent wishes by President Johnson and Pope Paul for peace. Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin echoed these wishes afterward.

But the main issues soon became obscured in technical proposals disputing individual paragraphs, and the round of cocktail parties at which diplomats earnestly discussed amendments that perhaps would make their own amendments more acceptable to others.

Hurricane Escapes Bop in the Eye

MIAMI (AP) — A history-making attempt to tame the fury of hurricane Faith was cancelled today as the storm lumbered toward the south-eastern Bahamas.

The storm churned toward the west-northwest on a path parallel — but 150 miles south — of a whale-shaped area where scientists had hoped to bomb her eye with silver iodide to prove that man can conquer one of nature's mightiest forces.

The seeding plans were called off because the storm was too close to land.

However, officials of Project Stormfury said the plans would be reactivated if Faith were to make a dramatic turn to the northeast. But this, a forecaster, said, "was only the slightest of possibilities."

Hundreds of scientists and technicians and a fleet of planes had stood by all week waiting for their first chance in three years to test their theory that heat and moisture can be artificially drawn from hurricanes, wrecking their structure.

Hurricane Faith, not as strong as once feared, spun north of Puerto Rico, leaving little more than high tides and occasional gales in her wake.

BANDITS HOLD FAMILY AT GUNPOINT

'He Was a Very Nice Man'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three robbers used a San Francisco family's home as a hideout Friday and held six persons at gunpoint for 21 hours, police said.

The trio left all their captives unharmed when the three slipped away from the home late Friday night.

The gunmen permitted the Dennis Clements family to come and go individually but warned that those left behind would be "wiped out" if police were called.

Three of the Clements children, ranging in ages from nine to 18, were even allowed to attend Bible school and go shopping. Clements, 50, joined a neighbor for a beer in a nearby tavern in the afternoon.

"He was a very nice man," said 17-year-old Lily Clements of the leader. Clements said that as the last of the gunmen disappeared, "we shook hands, and he said to me: 'You're a good man.'" Clements then called police.

As patrol cars cruised by the house, unaware it had been invaded, the men divided up — before the family's eyes — some $500 taken in a drug store robbery.

Police said one gunman entered through a bathroom window, then let his two companions in the front door.

Solid SC Wall Cracking?

By JOHN MIKA

DAWSON CREEK—Cracks have begun showing in the "solid Socred" Peace River country.

And despite the massive patching-up job here Friday night, they could widen into a serious split of the Social Credit vote on election day.

The internal conflicts may not prove enough to strip the north and south Peace River constituencies from the Socred slate Sept. 12 but the irony of the threat added to wisps of tenseness that floated periodically through Premier Bennett's campaign train.

He was to cut the ribbon later today opening the Prince George Pulp and Paper's $84 million mill at Prince George and undoubtedly would find the gala ceremony a boost to his campaign.

BAD LUCK

But for the past two days bad luck has hung over the premier's entourage like the heavy overcast that wiped out his sunny start of the tour with drizzle ever since he entered the party's stronghold in the north:

Rain splattered the streets and dampened the parade preceeding both meetings here and in Fort St. John;

A widely-publicized half-hour interview on the local television station was almost incomprehensible due to transmission difficulties and finally had to be cut off as the station went off the air.

Premier Bennett delivered a lacklustre speech here to a friendly crowd, then sent some shocks through the audience in the final moments with testy answers to troublesome questions.

And even an emergency stop for half-an-hour marred his departure southward when two

STRACHAN CHARGES:

'East Businesses Call Tune in B.C.'

By AB KENT

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan Friday said he had to go to Britain to see democracy in action and now is ready to fight to throw Social Credit out of office.

Speaking to a crowd of 160 persons at Victoria High School the New Democratic Party leader rejected an accusation by Attorney-General Robert Bonner that his summer trip to the U.K. was "to learn how to freeze wages."

"I went to Britain to see how democracy should work and I came back to British Columbia to fight to make it work," Mr. Strachan said.

He was "fed to the teeth with the ruthless, arrogant undemocratic" manner of the B.C. government, he said.

BIG BUSINESS

The government's election call for Sept. 12 was at the behest of "eastern big business," Mr. Strachan charged.

"Any time big business in the east calls an election in B.C. it's time the government which heels to the request was tossed out."

The request was because business "wants a bigger slice of the pie," the opposition leader said.

Premier Bennett's "smooth, slippery government hopes to slip quietly into office Sept. 12 merely for the sake of slipping into office and perpetuationg the regime," Mr. Strachan told the audience.

REDISTRIBUTION BIGGER

The premier had already "rigged the redistribution of seats in the legislature" and then succeeded in having the old voters" list adopted due to shortness of time offered for registration, the NDP leader said.

Mr. Bennett also "as usual didn't understand" eastern concern for provincial stability.

Mr. Strachan said it wasn't

Rails, Unions Await Action By Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — All eyes are on Parliament today as 118,000 railway workers entered the second day of their far-reaching national strike.

Last-ditch negotiations collapsed in Ottawa as the walkout began Friday. Both the railways and the unions are waiting to see government legislation on transportation before resuming hard bargaining.

Parliament opens emergency sittings at 2:30 p.m. EDT (11:30 a.m. PDT) Monday to deal with the crisis. The government plans to introduce two major transportation bills Monday.

The first measure would order the strikers back to work and grant them an 18-per-cent wage increase over the next two years, informants say.

The 17 rail unions involved in the massive tieup are seeking wage boosts averaging 30 per cent. Some labor leaders warn privately that the strikers would ignore return-to-work legislation embodying an 18-per-cent increase.

REVAMP RAIL ACT

The second bill would revamp the Railway Act and relate statutes along the lines recommended in 1961 by a royal commission on transportation.

The commission recommended that railways be freed to set freight rates at competitive levels, drop money-losing branch lines and passenger services and generally operate without close federal regulation.

Prime Minister Pearson has said that this second bill is comprehensive, running to 150 pages, and that it will improve the railways' earnings position.

This led Opposition Leader Diefenbaker to comment Friday that a removal of freight rate regulation would hurt shippers, especially in the Maritime and Prairie provinces.

He told a press conference that if the new transportation bill is similar to one introduced in 1964, it will lead to higher shipping costs in the Maritimes and Prairies.

WOULD FIGHT MOVE

He warned that any attempt to abolish the low Crowsnest Pass freight rates on wheat exports would be fought all the way by the Conservative opposition. These rates were set in the 1920s to protect wheat farmers and have remained unchanged ever since.

All freight rates have been frozen since 1959 when the Diefenbaker government blocked a transport board decision to increase them by 17 per cent. The railways have been compensated by special federal subsidies, which total about $100,000,000 in the current fiscal year.

Union and railway negotiators met for 4½ hours here Friday, then adjourned their talks until after the transportation bills are introduced Monday.

Labor Minister Nicholson told reporters he still hopes the negotiators can reach an agreement before Parliament has to impose one, but the outlook was gloomy. Some union leaders talked about a strike lasting at least 10 days.

Mr. Pearson, Mr. Diefenbaker and railway executives all have predicted that the strike will have disastrous effects on the economy.

In Toronto, The Telegram quotes NDP member Arnold Peters as warning he will refuse unanimous consent for the government to bring in strike-ending legislation Monday unless it also initiates a war on inflation and the cost of living.

The story quotes Mr. Peters as saying: "I'm not interested in telling the men to go back to work unless we have guarantees that the wage increase is going to suffice in this period of inflation."

TIEUP AFFECTS ALREADY FELT

By UPI

Fifty thousand miles of railway track lay rusting and unused across Canada today as a nationwide strike began to choke off the country's economic lifeline.

With the walkout of 118,000 railroaders in only its second day, effects of the strike were already beginning to seep through the economy and to touch remote areas.

The Alberta government may have to airlift supplies into remote communities 250-to-400 air miles north of Edmonton, where some 500 persons face food shortages if the strike lasts more than five to seven days.

The communities, strung along a north-bound railway that angles toward The Northwest Territories, have no telegraph communication, few telephones, and no medical facilities.

A scheduled food delivery missed the last train out of Lac Labiche, Alta., before the strike began at noon Friday.

In the Maritimes, the province of Prince Edward Island was linked to the mainland by two tiny provately-owned ferries, but a proposal to have the federal coast guard take over ferry service was temporarily shelved.

"The Prince Edward Island government is reluctant to act as a strike breaker," Premier Alex Campbell said.

Pickets Barricade Nfld. Ferry Terminal

HALIFAX (CP) — An estimated 500 strikers lifted their roadblock at the CNR ferry terminal in Port auz Basques, Nfld., at 11:15 a.m. ADT today and permitted more than 200 passengers in 71 vehicles to leave the wharf where they had been confined since the William Carson docked at 6:30 a.m.

John Ford, assistant port superintendent at the western Newfoundland terminal, said the strikers immediately reformed their picket lines and reconstructed a barrier of railway ties to prevent more than 50 cars from entering the terminal area.

There was no indication why the union members decided to lift the barricade. A spokesman said earlier no passengers, except those on foot, would be permittted to leave the wharf until the strikers received a guarantee the 8,200-ton William Carson would discontinue her service between Port aux Basques and North Sydney, N.S., for the duration of the country-wide rail strike.

'30% Wage Boost Is Sacred Figure'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Spokesmen for the two largest unions involved in Canada's country-wide railway strike say their members are in no mood to accept an 18-per-cent wage increase expected to be imposed by Parliament.

John McNicol, British Columbia strike committee secretary for the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, said the strikers view their demand for a 30-per-cent wage increase as a "sacred figure" that they will not go below.

William Apps, provincial strike leader for the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers, said in a Friday night interview:

"I am very concerned with the feeling of our membership. The members are aroused and frustrated. They are in no mood to accept an 18 per cent increase — even if it is imposed by what amounts to compulsory arbitration."

"If a settlement is considerably less than our members expect, then they parliament are going to have problems," Mr. Apps said.

SOLO SAILOR, 65, STARTS WORLD TRIP

PLYMOUTH, England (AP)—Francis Chichester, 65 next month and three times solo conqueror of the Atlantic, sailed today on his greatest adventure—to circle the world in 200 days.

Cheering crowds waved him goodbye from Plymouth Hoe—the green headland where Sir Francis Drake is reputed to have played a last game of bowls before defeating the Spanish Armada.

Chichester hoisted full sail in his gleaming white 53-foot ketch Gypsy Moth IV and headed out to sea.

This time Chichester has set himself the formidable task of navigating non-stop to Australia, then back again via Cape Horn — by far the longest voyage of its type ever attempted by one man.

Socreds to Increase Funds for Hospitals

SKILLINGS

More money for education, hospitals and social welfare were promised Friday night by Works Minister W. N. Chant and Waldo Skillings, the Social Credit candidates for Victoria.

Opening their campaign in the Spt. 12 election, Mr. Chant and Mr. Skillings said British Columbia would continue to grow and prosper under Premier Bennett's government.

The were addressing a meeting of 160 in Social Credit headquarters at 722 Yates Street, organized by ex-MLA J. Donald Smith, and chaired by Hugh Ramsay, president.

Mr. Chant said British Columbia's spectacular progress in recent years was due to the wiping out of the net provincial debt in 1960.

"When we came to power in 1952, the provincial debt was in excess of $220,000,000," Mr. Chant said. "When we said we would wipe out that debt, it was called a dream — a gag.

"But by 1960 we didn't owe a nickel on the net debt — and that is the basis of our expansion in so many fields. If we hadn't wiped out the debt, this province would be $200,000,000 short on its current provincial budget today."

He spoke of "the dead hand of Socialism" in Great Britain and other countries, and said the New Democratic Party would "chase investment out of this province."

Answering criticisms that the Social Credit party did not spend enough on education and social welfare, Mr. Chant said the government is spending 31 per cent of its total budget on education and 33 per cent on social services.

HYDRO POTENTIAL

Pointing to the Peace and Columbia River power developments, Mr. Chant said B.C. now has a hydro potential of 120,000,000 horsepower.

He predicted the industrial dollar value of the province would exceed that of Ontario in the years ahead, and said the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway would eventually carry more tons per mile than the trans-continental railways.

Mr. Skillings said the government would do all possible to improve hospital facilities throughout the province.

"Everyone is concerned because there are not enough beds. We shall go all out to solve this problem and to provide for chronic care patients."

Mr. Skillings said the government's new home-purchase grant should not be confused with the home-owner tax rebate.

Under the home-purchase grant, couples or single persons of 19 years of age and over would receive $500 towards a down-payment on a house, and this grant would be increased $25 every year.

A student in the audience asked Mr. Skillings what the government planned to encourage higher education.

"We believe in rewarding ability and industry," Mr. Skillings said, "but you (the students) must play your part as well. The world does not owe you a living and you have no right to demand a college education unless you are willing to work for it."

NDP HOPEFULS SPEAK OUT

Auto Insurance 'Issue of Day'

Greater Victoria New Democratic candidates made their first united appearance in a public rally Friday at Victoria High School.

. . . people first.

With support from provincial NDP leader Robert Strachan, candidates for Victoria, Saanich and the Islands, Oak Bay and Esquimalt gave the principle planks in the Sept. 12 election platforms.

In their order of appearance:

Edwin Haw, Saanich the Islands — Auto insurance is the "burning issure of the day. Everyone knows they are paying through the nose for insurance for the protection of his car."

Farmers need agricultural support in marketting and improvement of livestock herds, he said.

And action is needed to improve Patricia Bay Highway. "Only by the grace of God are there not more serious accidents on that cattle trail leading to Victoria," he said.

Mira Yarwood, Oak Bay — "People first" must be the slogan of the NDP because the mood of the people cannot be postponed to suit the government.

Motherhood, widowhood and student needs cannot be postponed, nor can mental health care, child day care and vocational school needs, she said.

The Social Credit government is lacking "any sincerity of commitment or any real will to come to grips with these problems," on which the NDP would place priority.

John Bartanus, Esquimalt — Cited previous Social Credit election theme, to save the free enterprise system from socialism.

But Premier Bennett had socialized ferries, hydro and medicare, he said. "His reason for calling the election is that he's looking for direction from the NDP.

"Even the financiers from New York say they can't trust him."

The candidate referred to Socred incumbent for Esquimalt Herbert Bruch, who has asked for a vote of confidence for another seven years. "He wants another seven years of doing nothing," Bartanus said.

He complained that Bruch spends only a few months a year at home, the rest of the time organizing for the party in western Canada.

Dorcas Blair, Victoria — Careful husbanding of provincial resources is needed, not give-aways to "those who make the fast buck."

Resources belong to all the people and B.C. needs people who plan intelligently and not spend frivolously.

"The NDP is the planning party," she said.

Harry Allen, Victoria — It is time for the "straight socialism of the NDP" rather than the "twisted socialism of Socail Credit."

He referred to assurances by Premier Bennett in 1961 that he would not take over B.C. Electric, who did just that a few months later.

The candidate cited a similar statement by the premier this week that B.C. Telephone Co. is free from government expropriation.

"One begins to wonder if he is preparing us for another piece of doubletalk."

NDP would introduce a 15-year development program on B.C. aimed at protection of agricultural lands from "being overrun by suburban spread," measures against pollution, and much more reforestation, he said.

'Throwing Liberal To Wolves'

PORT ALBERNI — A prominent Liberal told a nominating convention this week that it would be wise for his party to forget a candidate here because "Liberals in the Albernis have no hope in hell of ever being elected here."

Loran Jordan, former Port Alberni mayor and a Liberal condidate in the last federal election, said they should make the Port Alberni election battle a two-way fight between Socred Dr. H. R. McDairmid and MLA of the last house, the NDP's John Squire.

Despite Jordan's stand, the party convention nominated George McLean as candidate for the Alberni constituency.

"It's a damn shame," said Jordan, "to throw this man to the wolves."

Liberals, S.C. Plan Full Sate Of Area Meets

A full slate of meetings in the provincial election campaign has been lined up by Victoria Liberals, the last one just two days before voting day Sept. 12.

Candidates Frank Preston and John Porteous will speak jointly at three meetings — Sept. 2, 3 and 10 — but individually at the others.

Mr. Preston attends meetings at the Optimist hall Monday night, the Art Gallery Wednesday, Tillieum School Friday, Quadra School Sept. 7 and Burnside School Sept. 9.

Mr. Porteous will be at George Jay School Tuesday, Oaklands School hall Thursday, Sir James Douglas School Sept. 6 and Tolmie School Sept. 8.

Both men will be at 2022 Douglas Street headquarters Saturday, and on Sept. 10, and both will be at an all-candidates meeting at University of Victoria Friday.

AT FALL FAIR

Socred incumbent John Tisdalle running in the new constituency of Saanich and the Islands spends part of next week on the Gulf Islands following a visit to Pender Island fall fair today.

Monday he will be at Galiano Island, returning to Vancouver Island Tuesday.

Wednesday night the candidate will appear with Trade Minister Ralph Loffmark at a meeting in Royal Oak Womens' Institute hall at 8 p.m.

TO MAYNE ISLAND

Thursday Mr. Tisdalle returns to the Gulf to address constituents on Mayne Island.

Saturday and Sunday he will campaign at Saanichton fair, where Socreds will have a tent.

Sept. 7 he will be speaking at Brentwood Women's Institute hall and next day goes to Salt Spring Island.

Mr. Tisdalle will conclude his campaign at Sanscha hall, Sidney, on Sept. 9.

Grits Would Boost Education Support

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Liberal Leader Ray Perrault said Friday his party aims to provide high-level education in every community in British Columbia.

Speaking at a luncheon in support of Kamloops Liberal candidate Nick Kalyk, Mr. Perrault said the Social Credit government repeatedly refused to pay travel and living expenses for students travelling to institutes of higher learning.

He said his party would provide an educational television network throughout the province, emphasize post-high school education, enlarge the student bursary program, and establish a hold-the-line policy on fees.

He likened Premier Bennett to "an old miser with gold coins clinking through his fingers while we can't find enough to care for the chronically ill."

Arthur Mayse

So far this week, I have given you some traveller's impressions of the big show, also of the big town and the big bird. To wind up the file, let's take a look at the big country that harbors all three.

By car, or by train when the railways are not strikebound, the crossing makes an experience to remember. In autumn the lake country woods blaze with fantastic color for mile after endless-seeming mile. There are the mountains and high passes, the prairie roads laid out with a ruler, the final triumph of one ocean or the other achieved.

Even though the great traverse is easy today — no rivers to run and the tribes mostly peaceable — it still brings a sense of personal satisfaction. You have travelled a long way, over and through a varied and always dramatic topography.

At least once in his lifetime, though, I think every Canadian should cross his land from coast to coast by aid. I have never done this myself, and can only imagine how, at high altitude, the St. Lawrence opens out to its gulf, and New Foundland rises from the Atlantic.

But about two-thirds of Canada drifts under the wing as you fly west from Montreal; and this I have seen like a map unrolled.

The colors of Canada are green, black and brown, tawny, and a blue that shades from dark to palest azure. The blue is water: it is startling to note how much of Canada is occupied by water.

In sunlight and cloud shadow, Canada's fields lie all orderly in their various stages of cultivation.

The fields that run down to the St. Lawrence are narrow and small-seeming, carved as they are from the siegnory strips of an earlier era. Southern Ontario's look small too, and very orderly, and their rectangles are wider.

Then you arrive at the edge of the lake complex on this enormous map of ours, and the fields begin to wink out.

The Great Lakes appear first — Huron, a glimpse of Michigan, then Superior wide and empty except where ships creep, each in its separate loneliness, between lakehead and the locks of Sault Ste. Marie.

For a while it is all lakes in a wild tangle. They are of every conceivable shape and size, and plentiful beyond counting. With a camp here and a portage there, a man could canoe them for many summers without doubling on his course. The country's a sponge indeed! Here is an asset more vital than gold, to be guarded jealously and used wisely.

Viewed from a few feet above ground level, the change from lakelands to prairie is a gradual merging of one into the other. Not so from the air; the lakes diminish, the woods tongue out, and here are the fields again.

Only they have grown larger, and they stretch in a dead-level patch work. Most of our mid-continent bread basket is covered by cloud on this day. The overcast lies solid below us in a plain of its own, its landmarks grey-tinged humps and hillocks charged with hail for the reaped stubble.

Presently the cloud floor breaks to the westward in one long, serpentine eruption that can be no mere local weather disturbance. Bring the new horizon close, peer down through the tatters, and you see that our map has thrust up mountains.

These are the Rockies. Their old snow catches the sunlight briefly; then they too are behind, and the land slopes with spur range and lake and cupped valley toward the Pacific.

Under us now is the silt-laden Columbia. Almost the breadth of a wild, seamed, mountainy province away, the Coast Range gleams.

I have not mentioned the towns and cities on our map. They are for the most part widely scattered, and even the few large ones are lost in the immensity of the land that supports them.

Any way you look at it, ours is a big country. Possessing it, we are this world's most fortunate people.

'NOTHING TO IT,' says LS Steve Vadeboncoeur as he slides through a hatchway of the submarine Grilse. But Wallace (Doc) Patton (left) and Clyde Rose — both six-foot plus — know differently.

They Have to Buckle Down Or Learn by Cuts 'n Bruises

By TERRY IZZARD

Clyde Rose lives in a small world.

So small that the crew-cut matelot seldom manages to tower to his full height of 6' 2½".

A stoker aboard the West Coast submarine Grilse, Leading Seaman Rose has to buckle down to the job slightly more than most of the 80-man crew.

If he doesn't, he spends half his time in sick bay patching up cuts and bruises.

A submariner for the past three years, the 30-year-old seaman is something of a legend among the men of the deep.

The story goes that while he started out at six-foot plus, he now stands only 5 feet 8 inches.

If it were only true, Leading Seaman Rose would have far less problems.

Not least of which is going to bed at night.

It's a real pain in the neck. For like all bunks in a submarine, his is only six-foot long.

"It's a matter of knees bend and don't stretch," said the youthful looking Victorian.

While he can laugh off his own problems, ship's medical assistant Wallace Patton isn't quite so lucky.

After only five months in submarines, the 6 foot 4 inch leading seaman is still learning, painfully, that he has to get down to the job.

"It's rough on the head and shoulders for a while," said the well-built 27-year-old. "I still manage to get the odd knock squeezing through hatchways."

Despite the natural hazards, neither man would dream of transferring to a conventional vessel with conventional headroom.

Like every other man aboard, he is convinced this is the only real ship in the navy — despite longer than average hours and less than average time ashore.

Even for the men under six feet, life aboard a submarine is no joke.

The crew's mess is half the size of an average family dining room, while the so-called recreation area would be overcrowded if four men sat down to a game of cards.

However, the latter problem seldom arises since recreation time is limited and invariably spent in the horizontal position.

On a short trip to Vancouver this week, the Grilse' crew twice experienced their one big fear — FIRE.

On each occasion the alarm was sounded as result of an exhaust valve backfiring smoke into the engine room.

But as one long-time submariner put it: "No one takes any chances when the alarm bell sounds.

"When a submarine goes down, it usually stays down."

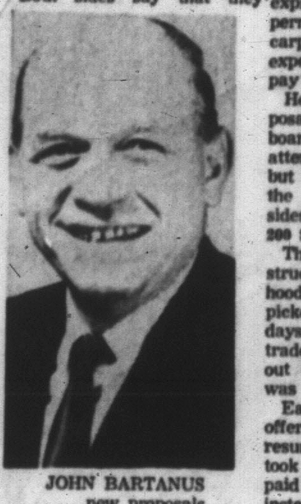
Despite the ever-present danger, it's a case of "once a submariner, always a submariner."

'WILLING TO PAY DIFFERENCE'

Chairman Can't Fathom Why School Work Halted

The chairman of Sooke School Board said today "it isn't clear" why the $250,000 Dunsmuir Road Junior Secondary School in Colwood cannot be completed by the new term Sept. 6.

"Both sides say that they would like to get the children into school by Sept. 6 even if the strike and lockout remain unsettled," said chairman John Bartanus.



JOHN BARTANUS
. . . new proposals

"But we cannot get a clear explanation why we cannot be permitted to use even one carpenter at the moment, expecially if we are prepared to pay the difference in cost."

He also said two new proposals have been made by the board to both sides in an attempt to complete the school but he preferred not to make the proposals public until both sides have considered them.

200 STUDENTS

The 200-student school was struck by the United Brotherhood of Carpenters Aug. 1 but pickets were withdrawn a few days later allowing other tradesmen to work. Later, lockout notice against carpenters was posted by the contractor.

Earlier this week, the union offered to allow carpenters to resume work if the contractor took down lockout notice and paid the men $3.69 an hour instead of the previous $3.64.

Mr. Bartanus said he was prepared to recommend the school board pick up the extra $30 involved between the two wage figures for 600 hours carpentry work.

The contractor, Luney Brothers and Hamilton, turned down the offer without comment.

MASTER COME TO GRIEF?

Dog Keeping Lonely Vigil Sparks Search in Harbor

A dog keeping a lonely vigil beside an abandoned bicycle on the Causeway early today, touched off a police search of the harbor area.

Officers patrolling the foot of Government Street came upon the dog and bicycle about 5 this morning.

The dog, white with a collar but no licence, sat beside the bicycle and refused to leave, they reported.

Fearing the dog's young master may have come to grief, police combed the wharf area below the Causway but found nothing.

Police later took the bicycle to the Fisgard Street station and arranged for the SPCA to pick up the dog.

Ask The Times

Q. Why is the Salvation Army called the "Sally Ann"? When did the organization first come to Canada? C.D.

A. A spokesman for the Salvation Army says the term "Sally Ann" is really no more than an affectionate diminutive for the proper name. Two English immigrants, Jack Addie and Joe Ludgate, brought the Salvation Army to this country in 1882 and set up its first office-chapel in London, Ontario.

Q. Has anyone discovered any comets this year? T.L.

A. The first comet of the year was discovered Aug. 7 last at the San Jose, California, observatory by a young Harvard graduate, Stephen Kilston. The Kilston comet can be seen with a telescope in the Hercules constellation towards midnight. It has no tail.

Island Can Weather Strike; Finishing Mills Hardest Hit

The rail strike will have almost no effect on the local economy unless it lasts more than a month, a survey of industry spokesmen revealed today.

The Island's main lifeline is truck transport by B.C. Ferries and so is unaffected by the rail shutdown. Only those sectors heavily dependent on rail transport will be hit by the strike.

This will change, however, if the planned mass resignation of 250 officers aboard B.C. Ferries takes effect Thursday, Sept. 8.

Hardest hit will be plywood, finished lumber and shingle manufacturers relying on railways to carry their products to inland markets. These industries employ more than 1,600 persons locally.

34 Laid Off

Smith Cedar Products of Victoria has already announced the temporary lay-off of one-quarter of its 135 workers. No decisions have been announced by other major companies including B.C. Forest Products and Victoria Plywood.

The area's two major shipyards, Yarrows and Victoria Machinery Depot, employing close to 1,000 men, will not be affected unless the strike lasts for a month.

Even then, superintendent William Houston of VMD commented, "it will affect our customers more than it will affect us."

Enough Parts

"We've got enough parts stockpiled to last us for quite some time. If the strike lasts a month we may be hampered by the lack of some ordered parts but we will still be able to operate near full capacity."

A spokesman for Yarrows agreed: "There is bound to be some effect but we won't know how much until later. We don't know how much of our products can be handled by truck until we have tried it."

Lumber companies also have a three-to-four-week cushion against the strike. Jack Stothers, general manager of Western Forest Industries, explained "practically all our lumber is trucked out for export and the strike would have to last at least two weeks before affecting us."

Hector Stone, president of Hillcrest Lumber feels "It will be only a little bit of a nuisance unless it is a prolonged strike."

Hard Hit

Hardest hit up-Island is Crown-Zellarback which ships 40 carloads a day by the E & N Railroad from its Nitnat Lake operation to Ladysmith.

The main form the squeeze is expected to take is intensified competition for truck transport — as such industries as the grain feed companies are obliged to switch from the railways.

Jack Prasloski, manager of Buckerfield's, a Duncan grain feed company, said today, "storage facilities are limited and we hope to start trucking in feed ingredients from Vancouver starting Monday."

B.C. Telephone announced it is staffing long-distance offices "to the fullest extent" while the strike lasts.

Vancouver Island division manager G. F. Auchinleck anticipated "heavier than usual traffic" causing some delay during peak periods — mid-morning, mid-afternoon and between 6 and 8 p.m. for mainly residence calling.

"Our customers can help overcome some of the delay by placing calls during off-busy periods," he said. "B.C. Telephone will do everything possible to handle traffic with the minimum of delay."

Newspaper reporters on out-of-town assignments were also affected by the strike. They have to telephone reports to their papers because telegraph service has ended.

On the mainland, air lines told prospective passengers to put their names on a standby list and wait for cancellations. But companies put on extra vehicles but had to stop selling tickets for many runs.

Through U.S.

Transportation companies reported heavy bookings by air, bus and rail through the Pacific Northwest states to bypass the rail strike.

Air Canada, in its peak season, said flights beyond Winnipeg are fully booked until Sept. 10. But a spokesman added that "we are having up to 20 per cent no-shows so the situation is not as bad as it seems."

One extra flight started Friday on the Vancouver-Toronto run and a second is planned for Sunday.

The Great Northern Railway, an American company not hit by the strike, told passengers trying to go east through the U.S. it will offer cancellations-only service until Sept. 5.

"We are having between 800 and 900 inquiries a day from people hoping to get to eastern Canada via the U.S.," said an official.

Greyhound and Pacific Stage bus lines said they will press every available vehicle into service. "We're not selling tickets unless there's a bus to cover them," said a spokesman.

With mass transportation either ended or booked to capacity, the best bet seemed to be to go by car — if possible.

NO MORE SHORT CUTS FOR CLERIC

Rev. Victor Cowell discovered Friday there's no short cut to paradise.

He tried it and ended up struggling through deep undergrowth for more than 24 hours.

The paradise in question was China Beach, five miles east of Jordan River, a haven which the 33-year-old Alberta minister visits each year.

Thursday afternoon he drove to the beach with 15-year-old Jimmy French, an underprivileged child with whom the Good Samaritan minister is sharing his holiday.

But instead of taking the one-mile path down to the beach, he tried a short cut through the woods.

Nightime found the pair still fighting their way through dense thicket, cold, hungry and lost.

When the sun finally rose, Mr. Cowell and Jimmy continued their trek to the beach, unaware than an intensive search on land and by helicopter was under way.

Said Mr. Cowell today: "We saw the helicopter a couple of times in the morning and waved to them. But they didn't see us."

It was 5 p.m. when they were eventually spotted and picked up by a local fisherman in his boat. They were still a couple of hours walking distance away from China Beach.

Said the bachelor minister: "That's the last time I try taking a short cut anyplace."

CANDIDATE CAN'T FIND 50 SOCIALISTS

Larry Tickner, Socialist Party of Canada candidate in the Sept. 12 election, indicated today he will be unable to run.

"It seems unlikely we shall be able to get the necessary 50 Socialist nominating signatures by nomination day," he said.

Nominations close Monday at 1 p.m.

"I believe we could get about 20 Socialist nominees," Mr. Tickner said, "and we could get 30 more non-Socialist nominees. But that would be contrary to our principles."

'GETTING IMPATIENT'

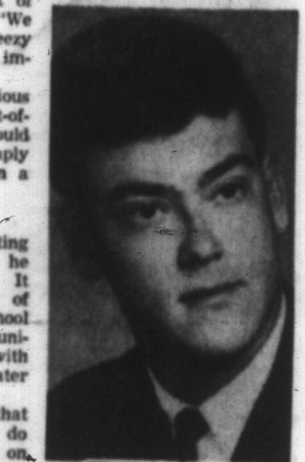
Students Demand Equality

By DESMOND BILL
Education Reporter

A student leader at the University of Victoria demanded today the provincial government immediately make it clear whether it intends to make equalization grants to students from out of town.

Stephen Bigsby, president of the Students' Council, said, "We have no more time for wheezy generalities. We're getting impatient.

"It is clear there is obvious discrimination against out-of-town students. Why should students be penalized simply because they do not live in a university centre?"



STEPHEN BIGSBY

SURVEY RESULTS

Mr. Bigsby was commenting on results of a survey he released this morning. It showed that only one out of every four up-Island high school students intend to go to university this fall compared with one out of two in Greater Victoria.

The survey also indicated that family income has a lot to do with whether a student goes on to higher education.

In Greater Victoria, one out of three students whose family income is $5,000 a year or less indicated an intention to enroll at university. But two out of three whose parental income is $8,000 and up indicated probable attendance at university.

Income is only one factor, however. It appears that environment is just as important. Even up-Island students whose family income is $8,000 and up only indicate a 36.4 per cent attendance estimate, compared with 67.8 per cent in the same income bracket in Greater Victoria.

'TEACHING DISPARITIES'

Mr. Bigsby speculated that "environmental factors and teaching disparities" account for the low up-Island attendance rate, compared with the rate in Greater Victoria.

Slightly more than 55 per cent of Greater Victoria students who said their parents encouraged them to attend university indicated they will do so. But only 35 per cent of up-Island students with similar encouragement indicated they will attend.

Mr. Bigsby commented, "The survey is very much a preliminary study . . . but there is little doubt the existing educational system grossly discriminates among cetain elements of the population.

"Abolition of fees will help but will not fundamentally affect the particular difficulties of the out-of-town student. There seems little doubt that a system of equalization grants is urgently needed in British Columbia to deal effectively with this problem."

NO MORE TALKING

Mr. Bigsby said any further "academic debate by the politicians is unnecessary. We demand that the minister of education announce immediately his party's policy on student aid, and whether the policy includes some form of equalization grant."

Mr. Bigsby said students will "blitz every political meeting" during the provincial election campaign to find how each candidate stands on educational issues.

The survey was prepared by Steven Horn, a University of Victoria political science graduate.

He made the survey among Grade 12 students enrolled in the technical academic program. His study took in students in the five senior secondary schools in Greater Victoria and the senior secondary schools at Lake Cowichan, Chemainus, Nanaimo, Qualicum, Alberni and Campbell River.

Up-Island 'They Wave And Duck'

Bush pilot A. L. Van Humbeck from Campbell River, was fined $250 in magistrate's court in Vancouver Friday for reckless flying.

"I was in the bush for a month and a half and I spotted some good-looking women waving at me and I waved back at them," Van Humbeck told the court.

He admitted he was flying at the time—at apartment-top level and lower in Vancouver's apartment-dotted west end.

"If I would have done this where I come from they would just have smiled and ducked," he told Magistrate Lorne Jackson.

FLAMES ENGULF LITTLE CAR

'Whole Front End Blew Up'

Bob Budd turned the key in his docile, usually well-behaved English car just after breakfast this morning and all hell broke loose.

"The whole front end just blew up," said Mr. Budd, of 1082 Jenkins in Langford.

A Langford volunteer fireman—he called his own department.

They were in time to save the house—the car had been in the carport—but the car itself went up in a whoosh of flame.

"I was only going to move it into the driveway," he said of the uninsured 1955 machine.

"I don't figure it.

"I know it wouldn't have been a bomb—but that's what it acted like."

One-Use Square Shunned

City council will take steps to prevent domination of Bastion Square by tourist-type activities.

Mayor A. W. Toone said Friday council realizes the square must be busy the year 'round to properly fulfil its function.

With a predominance of tourist-oriented activities Bastion Square could be a dull, quiet place in the winter.

"It won't be simply tourist-oriented," the mayor said.

SERVE AS CORE

"We would hope the Bastion Square area will serve as a core for the improvement of activity in our 'lower town' area."

The urban renewal project resulting in restoration of the square was intended to focus pedestrian interest in the former fort district and thereby to stimulate private redevelopment of adjacent buildings.

B.C. Maritime Museum and the actual "furnishing" of the square are the public projects involved, and the museum is primarily a tourist attraction although it is open 12 months of the year.

The only other undertaking on the square having popular appeal is a restaurant, also open all year.

TOURIST TRAFFIC

But it also is a fact that much of its custom results from tourist traffic.

The next undertaking in sight — a dual restaurant and other projects in Burnes House — is liable to have great tourist appeal also.

But proprietor William Enman said he and his advisors are trying to avoid any heavy tourist accent to ensure an active 12-month operation.

First stage of building restoration is being carried on as details of the development are worked out.

Mayor Toone said Bastion Square activity will come in conjunction with the pedestrian mall system, "of which the entrance to Bastion Square serves as western anchor.

"This indicates the city in its program is aiming for encouragement of private development and urban renewal in the best sense of the words, encompassing both desire and demand," the mayor said.

PLUNGING down a 120-foot embankment near Santa Maria, Calif., when her car went out of control Friday, actress Kim Novak, 33, suffered cuts, bruises and possible back injury. She was alone in her car at the time of the accident.

POLICEMAN'S SON TIED, HIT, KILLED

CHICAGO (UPI)—The bruised body of three-year-old John Jensen was found early today in a park lagoon in suburban Skokie.

His hands were tied in front of him with heavy cord.

The body was pulled from the lagooon after an intensive, seven-hour search by police, firemen, civil defence workers and approximately 50 of the boy's neighbors.

Police said there were bruises on the boy's head and face, indicating he had been beaten.

Police Chief Ken Chamberlain said his investigation into the death would wait until the results of an autopsy were obtained.

"We don't know whether we're dealing with the prank of other children that went wrong, or with the twisted mind of an older person," Chamberlain said.

The boy's father, Charles Jensen, 28, has been a patrolman on the Skokie police force for 30 months. He said the boy was playing in the back yard of his family's Skokie apartment Friday afternoon.

The boy's mother, Nancy, 24, discovered he was missing and notified police, Jensen said.

The search was launched and led to the park, a half mile through brush and trees from the Jensen home. Firemen were ordered to search the lagoon and found the body seven hours later.

A Special Message From B. C. Tel About the Use of Long Distance During the National Rail Strike

During the rail strike it may be difficult even impossible to maintain all lines of communications within Canada, particularly those involving telegraph and some forms of teletype.

HOWEVER, LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE WILL NOT BE AFFECTED. NOR WILL TWX FACILITIES WHICH ARE OPERATED BY TELEPHONE COMPANIES ACROSS CANADA.

WE ARE TAKING SPECIAL STEPS TO HELP YOU

The lack of usual facilities will inevitably mean a sharp increase in the use of long distance calling. Our main concern, as always, is to see that any use you make of telephone facilities is speedy, efficient and pleasant. Therefore, from the day the strike was scheduled to begin, we planned for additional staff to handle the increased volume, and others on stand-by to come in on a moment's notice should circumstance warrant.

YOU CAN HELP

There are ways in which you can help:

Call in off-hours if possible. Residence calls "peak" between 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. Business long distance calls "peak" in mid-morning and mid-afternoon. Please avoid these periods if you can.

'Cries of Pollution' Unheeded As Workers Blast Out a Mine

By AB KENT

MYRA FALLS — Hard rock miners are blasting a crater-size hole in a mountainside here in B.C.'s most controversial mineral development.

To cries of "desecration," "pollution" and "exploitation" Western Mines Ltd. is successfully setting up a modern mining operation wholly within Strathcona provincial park. million.

Both open pit and underground mining will be carried on when full production commences in October on at least 250,000 tons of copper, silver, gold, lead, zinc and cadmium ore valued at more than $12.5 million.

The mine has a further potential of 1,750,000 tons of ore for a total valuation of $100 million.

General manager Charles M Campbell Jr. describes the Buttle Lake development as "one of the most complex" mining projects ever undertaken in B.C., even though there are many larger ones.

The political complexities themselves have been formidable, revolving on the principles of commercial development of parkland, use of majestic Buttle Lake to dump mine tailings into, and construction of a townsite within the park boundaries.

Strathcona Park, with Buttle Lake a narrow ribbon of wilderness water nestled between two mountain ranges, is divided into two parts.

Class "A" is inviolate and must never be developed. It covers more than 300,000 of the total 530,000 park acres.

Class "B" portion applies to some 200,000 acres and is open to joint development by resource and recreational interests.

22-MILE ROAD

But a permit was issued and the provincial government is building a 22-mile access road along the east shore of Buttle Lake to the Myra Creek minesite, with the help of $2 million from Western Mines.

A legislative committee also approved construction of a townsite to house about 1,000 persons on the east shore of the lake within six miles of the mine.

And pending pollution control board approval, the mine will empty fine tailings onto the floor of the lake in order to dispose of them permanently rather than leaving unsightly waste piles near the mine portal.

POOR IMAGE

Mine manager Campbell admits the industry has a poor image because of past mineral development without regard for conservation of other resources.

Western Mines, he says, is trying to build the most acceptable operation it can and is spending far more than what is needed basically for opening the earth and refining the ores obtained.

The mine buildings themselves are carefully designed, mostly using native wood finishes from trees logged off the land they sit on.

And they are painted from top to bottom.

The extra cost here will be about $1 million.

Another $1 million will be spent to build a 4,500 horsepower hydro-electric plant on Tennent Creek near the mine to supply it and the mill with power now being generated by diesel engine.

150-FEET DEEP

Western Mines ore body is in two blocks, both belonging to the same shear zone. The first open pit development called "A" pit will eventually be more than 150 feet deep, gradually pushing back the forest around the top as the bottom deepens.

Underground works tunnel into the mountain below pit levels to reach the deeper limits of the ore body.

There are 10 underground stopes and more underground exploration is planned along with more surface diamond drilling.

A second pit is likely to be started to the east of the existing surface works, necessitating additional harvest of timber.

As "A" pit is depleted it may become a dumping place for waste material from continuing works as a kind of landfill, a mine official said.

Traditionally miners have taken instruction from their immediate supervisors, spent a minimum of time in the dry (house) with its "command post" and have known little about operations in other parts of the mine.

They usually file past their bosses at a wicket or counter alongside a narrow passageway leading to the mine portal.

Western Mines has changed all that.

ROOMY ROTUNDA

A roomy rotunda replaces the passageway, although the bosses remain behind a counter.

Mine manager Campbell explained the idea is to permit miners to discuss any phase of the whole operation as they mingle in the instruction area.

By casual communication with each other, miners will keep up to date on work in parts of the mine adjoining their own stopes and be able to corelate the knowledge to the whole operation.

In areas immediately adjoining, the men will be able to see safety films, learn mine rescue techniques and first aid.

The whole section was referred to by Mr. Campbell as the "communications centre, the principle being there are no secrets in this organization."

Harmac Mill Investigator Appointed

NANAIMO — A routine investigation by a labor department official is expected next week in a row between rival union over bargaining rights for 1,000 workers at the pulp mill near here.

Gordon Wickham, president of Harmac Local 8 of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, said today Jack Sherlock of the labor department has been appointed to investigate the situation.

The Canadian union has applied to the Labour Relations Board to decertify the rival International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers as bargaining agent for the mill workers.

If such a move is successful, the Canadian union would then apply itself for the bargaining rights.

Mr. Wickham said the board has advised that the decertification application will be dealt with "immediately." A 10-day period for submissions to the board following the decertification application ends Monday.

He said "we're not pleased because this has been dragging on for months now." The Canadian union applied for certification last May but this was rejected at the beginning of August. Ten days ago the decertification application of the international union was filed.

20-Ton Grader Hits House

A runaway road grader smashed into the side of a Sooke house Friday narrowly missing an occupant.

Mrs. Dougald de Rochie, 6435 Sooke Road, was knocked to the floor when the impact of the 20-ton machine moved the entire house 32 inches off its foundation.

Mr. de Rochie estimated damage at $13,000 to the four-year-old home.

The machine, owned by Webb and Trace Ltd., had been parked on the roadway about 140 feet from the house when it took off.

Mr. de Rochie, who was painting outside steps at the time, was warned of the grader's approach by two shouting men who were running after it.

COWICHAN STATION—Fire gutted the main barn on the Bench Road farm of Gerry Wikkerink this morning.

Cause of the blaze is unknown.

Mr. Wikkerink discovered the outbreak about 6 a.m. and called Cowichan Bay Volunteer Fire Department.

Before the firemen could attack the flames the section of barn filled with hay was destroyed.

Firemen fought to save milking equipment housed in the other half of the barn.

Damage is estimated at several thousand dollars.

Going to London? Here's a good idea!

Bring back some tax-free French Perfume.
Swiss Watches and Jamaican Rum
from Amsterdam

Fly Canadian Pacific Airlines to London and we'll throw Amsterdam into the bargain.

And what a bargain! Amsterdam has more canals than Venice, over 500 bridges, quaint 16th Century gabled houses and modern architecture. It has excellent hotels, first class entertainment and good restaurants.

The duty-free shopping center at Amsterdam's airport is the largest in the world – selling everything from tulip bulbs to diamonds. You'll be amazed at the low price of liquor, cameras, watches – and even French perfume.

Best of all – it's convenient to jet to London by way of Amsterdam. CPA will fly you non-stop to Amsterdam from Vancouver – and London is less than an hour away by connection. Only $539* round trip from Victoria.

For not one guilder more, you can visit two great cities. Arrange it with your travel agent or call any Canadian Pacific office.

World Gun Laws Still Pretty Lax

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

GENEVA (AP)—The world's off-again, on-again effort to negotiate lasting disarmament has gone into another recess.

As the 286th meeting of the current session closed, the problems of war and peace seemed basically unchanged.

Mildly optimistic statements —customary in most Geneva negotiations—have not dispelled the grim reality: East and West continue to pile up arms, the war clouds over Southeast Asia are as dark as ever, the smaller powers of the "third world" go on flexing their muscles.

Yet it may not be all grim as long as the principal opponents are expressing the desire to meet again and talk about their differences.

Defenders of the conference point out that despite its failure to obtain large - scale, concrete, achievements, it is perhaps the only hope in the tense world of atomic menace.

Conference participants note that two international pacts originated in recent years in this Swiss city: The 1963 Moscow treaty limiting atomic tests and the subsequent U.S.-Soviet agreement to cut the production of fissionable materials.

Seventeen nations — ranging from the Soviet Union, Britain, the United States and Canada to Ethiopia and Burma—have thrown a considerable amount of effort and prestige behind the talks.

This session ended Thursday in more promises to meet again next year, as usual with routine statements of "guarded optimism" and "sincere hope for success."

The session began in January on an optimistic note, with fervent wishes by President Johnson and Pope Paul for peace. Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin echoed these wishes afterward.

But the main issues soon became obscured in technical proposals disputing individual paragraphs, and the round of cocktail parties at which diplomats earnestly discussed amendments that perhaps would make their own amendments more acceptable to others.

Solid SC Wall Cracking?

By JOHN MIKA

DAWSON CREEK—Cracks have begun showing in the "solid Socred" Peace River country.

And despite the massive patching-up job here Friday night, they could widen into a serious split of the Social Credit vote on election day.

The internal conflicts may not prove enough to strip the north and south Peace River constituencies from the Socred slate Sept. 12 but the irony of the threat added to wisps of tenseness that floated periodically through Premier Bennett's campaign train.

He was to cut the ribbon later today opening the Prince George Pulp and Paper's $84 million mill at Prince George and undoubtedly would find the gala ceremony a boost to his campaign.

BAD LUCK

But for the past two days bad luck has hung over the premier's entourage like the heavy overcast that wiped out his sunny start of the tour with drizzle ever since he entered the party's stronghold in the north:

Rain splattered the streets and dampened the parade preceeding both meetings here and in Fort St. John;

A widely-publicized half-hour interview on the local television station was almost incomprehensible due to transmission difficulties and finally had to be cut off as the station went off the air.

Premier Bennett delivered a lacklustre speech here to a friendly crowd, then sent some shocks through the audience in the final moments with testy answers to troublesome questions.

And even an emergency stop for half-an-hour marred his departure southward when two

Hurricane Escapes Bop in the Eye

MIAMI (AP) — A history-making attempt to tame the fury of hurricane Faith was cancelled today as the storm lumbered toward the south-eastern Bahamas.

The storm churned toward the west-northwest on a path parallel — but 150 miles south — of a whale-shaped area where scientists had hoped to bomb her eye with silver iodide to prove that man can conquer one of nature's mightiest forces.

The seeding plans were called off because the storm was too close to land.

However, officials of Project Stormfury said the plans would be reactivated if Faith were to make a dramatic turn to the northeast. But this, a forecaster, said, "was only the slightest of possibilities."

Hundreds of scientists and technicians and a fleet of planes had stood by all week waiting for their first chance in three years to test their theory that heat and moisture can be artificially drawn from hurricanes, wrecking their structure.

Hurricane Faith, not as strong as once feared, spun north of Puerto Rico, leaving little more than high tides and occasional gales in her wake.

Near Anarchy

TOKYO (UPI) — The teen-age "Red Guard" movement sweeping China is out of hand and Peking is in a state of near anarchy, reliable Japanese reports said late today.

Nine of the youthful zealots were reported shot and killed by citizens trying to end their rampage.

BANDITS HOLD FAMILY AT GUNPOINT

'He Was a Very Nice Man'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three robbers used a San Francisco family's home as a hideout Friday and held six persons at gunpoint for 21 hours, police said.

The trio left all their captives unharmed when the three slipped away from the home late Friday night.

The gunmen permitted the Dennis Clements family to come and go individually but warned that those left behind would be "wiped out" if police were called.

Three of the Clements children, ranging in ages from nine to 18, were even allowed to attend Bible school and go shopping. Clements, 50, joined a neighbor for a beer in a nearby tavern in the afternoon.

"He was a very nice man," said 17-year-old Lily Clements of the leader. Clements said that as the last of the gunmen disappeared, "we shook hands, and he said to me: 'You're a good man.'" Clements then called police.

As patrol cars cruised by the house, unaware it had been invaded, the men divided up — before the family's eyes — some $500 taken in a drug store robbery.

Police said one gunman entered through a bathroom window, then let his two companions in the front door.

STRACHAN CHARGES:

'East Businesses Call Tune in B.C.'

By AB KENT

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan Friday said he had to go to Britain to see democracy in action and now is ready to fight to throw Social Credit out of office.

Speaking to a crowd of 160 persons at Victoria High School the New Democratic Party leader rejected an accusation by Attorney-General Robert Bonner that his summer trip to the U.K. was "to learn how to freeze wages."

"I went to Britain to see how democracy should work and I came back to British Columbia to fight to make it work," Mr. Strachan said.

He was "fed to the teeth with the ruthless, arrogant undemocratic" manner of the B.C. government, he said.

BIG BUSINESS

The government's election call for Sept. 12 was at the behest of "eastern big business," Mr. Strachan charged.

"Any time big business in the east calls an election in B.C. it's time the government which heels to the request was tossed out."

The request was because business "wants a bigger slice of the pie," the opposition leader said.

Premier Bennett's "smooth, slippery government hopes to slip quietly into office Sept. 12 merely for the sake of slipping into office and perperpetuating the regime," Mr. Strachan told the audience.

REDISTRIBUTION BIGGER

The premier had already "rigged the redistribution of seats in the legislature" and then succeeded in having the old voters" list adopted due to shortness of time offered for registration, the NDP leader said.

Mr. Bennett also "as usual didn't understand" eastern concern for provincial stability.

Mr. Strachan said it wasn't

Rail Men Breathe Defiance

'30% Wage Boost Is Sacred Figure'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Spokesmen for the two largest unions involved in Canada's country-wide railway strike say their members are in no mood to accept an 18-per-cent wage increase expected to be imposed by Parliament.

John McNicol, British Columbia strike committee secretary for the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, said the strikers view their demand for a 30-per-cent wage increase as a "sacred figure" that they will not go below.

William Apps, provincial strike leader for the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers, said in a Friday night interview:

"I am very concerned with the feeling of our membership. The members are aroused and frustrated. They are in no mood to accept an 18 per cent increase — even if it is imposed by what amounts to compulsory arbitration."

"If a settlement is considerably less than our members expect, then they (parliament) are going to have problems," Mr. Apps said.

Both Sides Await Verdict of House

OTTAWA (CP)—All eyes are on Parliament today as 118,000 railway workers entered the second day of their far-reaching national strike.

Last-ditch negotiations collapsed in Ottawa as the walkout began Friday. Both the railways and the unions are waiting to see government legislation on transportation before resuming hard bargaining.

Parliament opens emergency sittings at 2:30 p.m. EDT (11:30 a.m. PDT) Monday to deal with the crisis. The government plans to introduce two major transportation bills Monday.

The first measure would order the strikers back to work and grant them an 18-per-cent wage increase over the next two years, informants say.

The 17 rail unions involved in the massive tieup are seeking wage boosts averaging 30 per cent. Some labor leaders warn privately that the strikers would ignore return-to-work legislation embodying an 18-per-cent increase.

REVAMP RAIL ACT

The second bill would revamp the Railway Act and relate statutes along the lines recommended in 1961 by a royal commission on transportation.

The commission recommended that railways be freed to set freight rates at competitive levels, drop money-losing branch lines and passenger services and generally operate without close federal regulation.

Prime Minister Pearson has said that this second bill is comprehensive, running to 150 pages, and that it will improve the railways' earnings position.

This led Opposition Leader Diefenbaker to comment Friday that a removal of freight rate regulation would hurt shippers, especially in the Maritime and Prairie provinces.

He told a press conference that if the new transportation bill is similar to one introduced in 1964, it will lead to higher shipping costs in the Maritimes and Prairies.

WOULD FIGHT MOVE

He warned that any attempt to abolish the low Crowsnest Pass freight rates on wheat exports would be fought all the way by the Conservative opposition. These rates were set in the 1920s to protect wheat farmers and have remained unchanged ever since.

All freight rates have been frozen since 1959 when the Diefenbaker government blocked a transport board decision to increase them by 17 per cent. The railways have been compensated by special federal subsidies, which total about $100,000,000 in the current fiscal year.

Union and railway negotiators met for 4½ hours here Friday, then adjourned their talks until after the transportation bills are introduced Monday.

Labor Minister Nicholson told reporters he still hopes the negotiators can reach an agreement before Parliament has to impose one, but the outlook was gloomy. Some union leaders talked about a strike lasting at least 10 days.

In Toronto, The Telegram quotes NDP member Arnold Peters as warning he will refuse unanimous consent for the government to bring in strike-ending legislation Monday unless it also initiates a war on inflation and the cost of living.

TIEUP EFFECTS ALREADY FELT

By UPI

Fifty thousand miles of railway track lay rusting and unused across Canada today as a nationwide strike began to choke off the country's economic lifeline.

With the walkout of 118,000 railroaders in only its second day, effects of the strike were already beginning to seep through the economy and to touch remote areas.

The Alberta government may have to airlift supplies into remote communities 250-to-400 air miles north of Edmonton, where some 500 persons face food shortages if the strike lasts more than five to seven days.

The communities, strung along a north-bound railway that angles toward The Northwest Territories, have no telegraph communication, few telephones, and no medical facilities.

A scheduled food delivery missed the last train out of Lac Labiche, Alta., before the strike began at noon Friday.

In the Maritimes, the province of Prince Edward Island was linked to the mainland by two tiny privately-owned ferries, but a proposal to have the federal coast guard take over ferry service was temporarily shelved.

"The Prince Edward Island government is reluctant to act as a strike breaker," Premier Alex Campbell said.

Railway employees who normally man the island's ferry service were described

Vancouver Loses

TORONTO (CP) — Winnipeg today defeated Vancouver 4-2 in the third game of the Canadian women's softball championship.

Pickets Lifted

HALIFAX (CP) — Striking railway workers at Port aux Basques, Nfld., lifted their picket line outside the CNR ferry terminal late this afternoon and permitted vehicles and passengers to board the ferry William Carson for the trip to North Sydney, N.S. The ferry was expected to sail once it was loaded.

15 Injured

TORONTO (CP)—A ride at the Canadian National Exhibition crashed to the ground today and at least 15 persons have been taken to hospital.

None of those involved has been identified and the extent of their injuries is not yet known.

155 PROPERTY WANTED

WE ARE NOT DESPERATE BUT OUR 20 MEN (AND SALES GALS) ARE ENTHUSIASTIC AND SELL PLENTY SO THE LISTINGS ARE IMPORTANT

We have them all! The retired farmer with cash, the California millionaire (with $2500 down), the little old couple that wants a cute cottage, the prolific gentleman who needs a 6-bedroom home. People living in the country who want to go back to the city, the city folks who want a secluded home out of the city (nearly always with a Tudor home), and not for over $18,000 (on the waterfront, too. Ha, ha!). In fact, if you have a home to sell, you couldn't do yourself a greater favor than to call HAGAR & SWAYNE, LTD., an old-established firm with a PRESTIGE REPUTATION. We will be happy to valuate your home, suggest a good MARKETING PLAN and give you MORE SERVICE than you could ever expect, advertising, Open Houses (if you wish), photographs in our windows at our BUSY LOCATION, (you name it). CALL TODAY, 384-0531 (we have 30 lines), and ask for the DUTY SALESMAN, and he or any of the HIGHLY EXPERIENCED Sales Personnel will arrange for an immediate interview and discussion. We sell HOMES, BUSINESSES, BUILDINGS, LAND, SUBDIVISIONS, LOTS, ETC.

Chief Can't Understand Attitude

View Royal fire chief Al Beasley said this week he can't understand Esquimalt's attitude in the dispute over sewage connections for the planned Christie Point School.

Esquimalt has refused to allow a hookup between the school, to be built in View Royal district, and the Esquimalt sewage line.

When amalgamation between View Royal panhandle and Esquimalt was being discussed earlier this year, Esquimalt "told us they could take over (sewage) with no problem," said Mr. Beasley, a member of the regional board.

If the school board fails to obtain a sewage hookup for the $1 million school, "we either can't build the school, or will hav to install septic tanks," said a school board official.

Mr. Beasley said the sewage problem will be discussed at the next regional board meeting Sept. 14.

The topic so far has been treated as "a political football," he added.

The elementary-junior secondary school, to be built next to Christie Point Apartments, is slated to open in September, 1967, and take 750 students.

Pair Acquitted In Contempt Case

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two of 28 persons charged with contempt of court as a result of labor demonstrations last May at the Lenkurt electric plant in Burnaby have been acquitted.

Mr. Justice Macdonald will rule Sept. 19 as to the guilt or the innocence of the remaining 26 persons accused of contempt by ignoring two injunctions issued against picketing at Lenkurt.

The demonstrations followed a wildcat strike resulting from the firing of 257 employees.

GOVERNMENT OF THE PROVINCE OF BRITISH COLUMBIA
DEPARTMENT OF RECREATION AND CONSERVATION
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS, endorsed "TENDER FOR CONSTRUCTION OF A NATURE MUSEUM IN SHUSWAP LAKE PROVINCIAL PARK", will be received by the Deputy Minister of Recreation and Conservation, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C., up to 8:00 p.m. on Wednesday, the 7th day of September, 1966, and opened in public at that time in the Deputy Minister's office.

The building site is within the Shuswap Lake Park situated at a point approximately 52 miles northeast of Kamloops, on the north shore of the west arm of Shuswap Lake.

Plans, specifications and conditions of tender, may be obtained from the Provincial Parks Branch, 548 Michigan Street, Victoria, B.C., or from the Offices of the Government Agent, 635 Burrard Street, Vancouver, the Government Agent, Court House, Kamloops, B.C., and the Government Agent, Court House, Penticton, B.C., on deposit of the sum of $25.00 for each set, which will be refunded upon the return of the plans, etc., in good condition within a period of one month from the opening of tenders, except that the deposit of the successful tenderer is not refundable.

Each tender must be accompanied by a Bid-Bond in an amount of not less than 10% of the tendered price, payable to the Minister of Finance. Any tender not accompanied by such a Bid Bond may be rejected. On award and signing of the contract, the successful tenderer will be required to furnish a Performance Bond and Material and Labour Payment Bond each equal to 50% of the contract price.

Tenders must be made out on the forms supplied, signed with the actual signature of the tenderer, impressed with the Company seal where applicable, and enclosed for mailing or delivery in the envelope furnished. The tenderer shall not add any identifying marks on the envelope.

No tender will be accepted or considered that contains an escalator clause or any other qualifying conditions, and the lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

Inspection of the site may be arranged by contacting Mr. P. V. Rathbone, Regional Supervisor, at Shuswap Lake Park, or by mail at Squilax, P.O. B.C.

Vagrant Again Before Courts

A man convicted as a vagrant in Victoria Thursday pleaded guilty to the same offence in Oak Bay when he appeared in court again Friday.

Magistrate Ostler will sentence Francis Holden, no fixed address, Monday after studying a psychiatric report.

Constable Harold McNeil testified he came upon Holden at Willows Beach near Cattle Point shortly after midnight.

Holden, who had $1.04 in his pockets, said he was going to spend the night on the beach.

He had been placed on a $250 good behavior bond for six months after his vagrancy conviction Thursday.

Dentist Break-in Admitted

A 16-year-old boy admitted in central court Friday to joining two other boys in breaking into a Courtney Street dentist's office July 31.

The youth will be sentenced next Friday after Magistrate Ostler has studied a pre-sentence report.

The boys forced open a rear door to the office of Dr. Stanley Miles, rumaged through drawers and took a microphone, a camera and a pair of opera glasses.

The 16-year-old was caught by police after a three-block chase at 3:30 a.m.

One of the other youngsters had previously been given a suspended sentence while the third had his case dealt with in juvenile court.

Only the microphone has been recovered.
